Member of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment Had Gruelling Experiences at Leonforte

By JACK DeLONG

Captured for a brief period by the Nazis, rescued later by American troops, nearly cremated in a fire started when a shell exploded an enemy tank in front of a house in which he lay helpless from severe wounds while a fierce street battle for the possession of Leonforte raged without, were a few of the thrilling, yet gruelling experiences of Pte. T. J. Forbes, 26-year-old member of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment who returned from overseas Monday.

Forbes left Tuesday for his home at Peers that he has not seen for more than four years. Peers is 90 miles west of Edmonton on the main line of the C.N.R. Along with Privates E. J. Lyttle and W. Sutherley of Ashmont, the young soldier from Peers stayed overnight Monday at the Salvation Army hostel for servicemen on 98 street.

Forbes described his experiences in the Leonforte battle as he went

Seven Children Burn to Death

MATANE, Que., Jan. 11.—(CP)—Seven children were burned to death Sunday when the home of their parents—Mr. and Mrs. Delphin Cote of nearby St. Paulin de Dalibaire—was destroyed by fire.

The victims were: Berthe, 13; Marie Paule, 11; Lorraine, 10; Jeanne Irene, 6; Maurice, 4; Gerard, 3, and Enoel, nine months.

Mrs. Cote and her 14-year-old son, Gilbert, escaped with minor burns. Mr. Cote was absent from his home when the fire broke out.

Cause of the blaze is unknown and damage was reported as heavy. No other details were available.

Allied Troops Nearing Akyab

NEW DELHI, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Allied ground forces under Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten are continuing their advance along the coast of Burma toward the Japanese base of Akyab and now are in possession of Maungdaw, 55 miles to the northwest, it was announced today.

Aided by R.A.F. fighters and divebombers, the southeast Asia forces pushed ahead west of the Mayu mountains to capture a number of enemy strongpoints. "On the central part of the front, our troops made similar advances," the communique covering operations since Jan. 5 said.

Paget in Cairo

LONDON, Jan. 11.—(CP)—Gen. Sir Bernard Paget, newly-named Allied commander-in-chief in the Middle East, has arrived at Cairo to take up his command, it was announced officially.

Hopkins Ill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Harry Hopkins, closest adviser of President Roosevelt, entered the Naval hospital last week, his White House colleagues revealed yesterday. He has influenza and may be confined for some time.

Highway Cafe Owner Robbed

WINNIPEG, Jan. 11.—(CP)—It wasn't included in the cover charge but 10 diners in Jack's Place, an all-night restaurant on the Pembina highway, south of here, got a surprise.

"This is a holdup," shouted one of three masked gunmen who walked into the restaurant early today, fired a shot at the owner, Jack Whitely, and walked out with $70 in cash and a $500 cash register.

The bullet crashed across the dance floor, missing Whitely, and embedded itself in the floor. The diners were not robbed.

More Prisoners For Lumber Work

OTTAWA, Jan. 11.—(CP)—The number of German prisoners of war engaged in lumbering will be increased 50 per cent during the next month, Col. R. S. W. Fordham, director of prisoner-of-war labor projects, said today.

There are at present 2,000 prisoners in lumber camps cutting both fuelwood and pulpwood and another 1,000 will be put to work in Ontario and Quebec within the next few weeks. Lumbering is the major project in which prisoners are working. In addition about 130 have been placed on farms and 35 in an Ontario tannery operation.

The prisoners are paid 50 cents for an eight-hour day but are only allowed to spend 30 cents of their day's earnings. Originally the spending allowance was 20 cents but this was subsequently increased.

Partisans Take Toll of Germans

LONDON, Jan. 11.—(CP)—Yugoslav partisan troops are taking a heavy toll of German forces pressing a determined offensive in central and western Bosnia, a communique from the headquarters of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) reported today.

Tito's war bulletin, which was broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio and recorded by the Associated Press, said the Germans were attempting to break the partisan lines from five different directions, so far without success. The Nazis were employing strong tank and motorized columns, in addition to their infantry detachments, in the drive to wipe out Tito's forces.

On all other sectors of the long front, Tito reported, the partisans were successfully harassing German garrisons, troop concentrations and lines of communications.

Rinfret Sworn in As Chief Justice

OTTAWA, Jan. 11.—(CP)—Mr. Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret was sworn in last night as chief justice of Canada, at a Government House ceremony. Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Rt. Hon. Sir Lyman Duff, the retired chief justice of Canada, and Arnold Heeney, clerk of the privy council, were present.

Fifth Army Closing Pincers On Cassino

By WES GALLAGHER

ALGIERS, Jan. 11.—(AP)—A 5th Army pincers closed in on the German bastion of Cassino, 70 miles from Rome, today with one arm reaching the outskirts of Cervaro, fortified village four miles to the east, headquarters announced.

British troops completed capture of Mount Pedro, five miles southeast of Cassino, and continued to forge ahead. Americans threatened the German mountain defences of Mount Trocchio, less than three miles from Cassino.

As the tentacles of the Allied offensive stretched out to take Cervaro, American troops captured Mount Di Piperia, 1,500 yards from the village and then pushed down toward the heavily-defended town itself.

DRIVE NOT SLACKENING

American infantry established a foothold on the mountain in the morning against stiff resistance, and then launched an afternoon attack which met no opposition as the Germans had withdrawn.

There was no sign of slackening in the Allied 5th Army advance, which started a week ago and is progressing steadily. However, there was no evidence of weakness in the German defence nor any indication that the Allies will be able to make a breakthrough for a big gain.

Roosevelt Proposes All U.S. Adults Be Available For Essential War Work

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(AP)—National service legislation, designed to make available for the war effort the abilities of every able-bodied adult in the United States, topped a five-point quick-victory program laid before Congress today by President Roosevelt.

He reported that his recent conferences at Teheran and Cairo involved no "secret political or financial commitments, but were aimed solely at winning the war and laying the groundwork for future world security."

Then the president said that national service legislation would guarantee an earlier victory "and reduce the toll of suffering and sorrow and blood."

DIRECT ALL WORKERS

Under such legislation, the government would give direction to the work of all citizens, and through it, Mr. Roosevelt said, "every man and woman can find that inner satisfaction which comes from making the fullest possible contribution to victory."

Presumably, such an act would be administered for civilian tasks much as selective service is administered for military service.

In a report on the state of the nation, read separately in the house and senate by clerks, the president also laid down a pattern for what he described as "a second bill of rights" covering future individual security, ranging from adequately

Edmonton Regt. "Best in Italy" Veterans State

Life in Sicily and Italy under wartime conditions makes a fellow appreciate just what a wonderful country Canada really is. The Loyal Edmonton Regiment is "tops"—"the very best in Italy today," and it's a great feeling to look at Edmonton again after four years away.

These observations in brief, were the reactions expressed by five wounded veterans of the Sicilian and Italian campaigns who arrived in Edmonton Monday afternoon from Calgary.

Four were members of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment and a fifth served with the Royal Canadian Engineers.

Two of the returning heroes limped from leg and foot wounds, and a third had his right arm in a sling.

Returning Monday afternoon were Sapper J. McKercher, R.C.E., of 12138 101 street, wounded in the foot when the bulldozer he was driving exploded an enemy mine; Pte. T. J. Forbes, Peers; Pte. W. Brodyk, Smoky Lake; Pte. W. Sutherly, Ashmont, and Pte. E. J. Lyttle, Ashmont.

Capt. A. W. Hardy, former Edmonton physician and surgeon, of 6604 127 avenue, also wounded in Sicily, returned on the Monday night train from Calgary.

Will Not Stop Until Troops Enter Tokyo

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., reporting the Japanese fleet is seriously crippled, declared today "we will keep on pressing and hitting him continuously," until Tokyo is occupied.

The 51-year-old commander of naval forces in the South Pacific urged that the people refuse to accept any peace until troops reach Tokyo.

Asked about the apparent reluctance of the Japanese fleet to fight, he replied:

"Either they are saving their force until we approach the shore of the Japanese empire or think they can wear us down by attrition tactics, and we'll get tired and make a negotiated peace suitable to them, which God knows, I hope, no one will permit."

DURHAM, Eng., Jan. 11.—(CP)—Miners of Easington colliery who have been on strike since Thursday night over a wage dispute, returned to work yesterday pending negotiations with the management.

Airline Extension To City Is Sought

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Jan. 11.—(CP)—A joint letter from the board of trade and city council to Prime Minister King, is being prepared requesting the intervention of Mr. King as member of parliament for the Prince Albert federal riding to have the Canadian Pacific Airlines Regina-Prince Albert-North Battleford service extended to Edmonton.

Decision to take this step was taken at a joint meeting of the city council and the board of trade.

"Prince Albert is being sidetracked in aviation as it was in railroad transportation," H. M. Sibbald, chairman of the boards' aviation committee declared.

The prime minister is being asked to advise his constituents why the application for the extension of the air line was refused by the cabinet.

His advice as to what is the best next step to take to keep Prince Albert in the aviation picture is also being asked.

Willkie Is Believed Certain to Seek G.O.P. Nomination

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Reports circulated among supportres of Wendell L. Willkie, last night that the 1940 Republican presidential nominee will formally announce his candidacy for the 1944 nomination within the next two weeks and open campaign headquarters in New York City. Ralph H. Cake, Oregon national committee member, is expected to be in charge of the headquarters and to manage Willkie's pre-convention campaign.

Suggests 10,000 "Most Guilty" Nazis Be Hanged

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP)—The New York Mirror today quoted James W. Gerard, former United States ambassador to Germany, as saying that his 50-year study of the German people convinces him the Allies' post-war reorganization should begin with hanging the 10,000 most guilty Prussians responsible for the Nazis' crimes against civilization.

The newspaper said Gerard declared yesterday: "but remember, this wholesale extermination of high-ranking Junkers would be only a temporary remedy. The German people are a hopeless problem. They must be constantly watched or they'll follow new leaders into another war."

"I feel this time the Allies will not make the mistake of stopping at the German borders," Gerard was quoted, adding, "Germany must be broken into independent states."

Rain, Snow Lack Hitting U.S. Crops

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Lack of normal rain and snowfall during the fall months today is causing considerable concern to agriculture department and War Food Administration officials in the United States who have been charged with the task of providing large amounts of food in 1944 for civilians, the armed services and lend-lease.

The agriculture department said the prospect for a continued heavy volume of crop production in 1944 is not as favorable as it was at the beginning of 1942 and 1943.

The 1942 crop set an all-time record, however, with 1943 figures only slightly lower—and officials point out that an increase in precipitation along with an expected increase in acreage planted this year would bring in a tremendous food crop.

Poland's Exile Government Likely To Accept Soviet Territory Offer

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The Polish exile government met today to consider Russia's offer to return to Poland some 7,000 or more of the 77,700 square miles occupied by the Red army in 1939, and a favorable reply was anticipated within the next 48 hours.

Russia made the offer early today as a compromise toward settlement of the Soviet-Polish border dispute, the most serious threat to unity among the United Nations to date. The Soviets also offered to conclude a treaty of mutual alliance with Poland against the Germans.

The Polish exile government was known to be reluctant to back down on its demand for the entire territory occupied by Russia by agreement with Germany, but well-informed sources said the situation now had reached the stage where the Poles "must accept or shut up."

Some quarters believed it not unlikely that the Soviet offer would precipitate a Polish cabinet crisis resulting in the resignation of the present government or a complete re-shuffle, especially since the Russians attacked the incumbents as incapable.

The Russians said the present

Wounded

Capt. E. L. Boyd of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Boyd of 8525 90 street, who was wounded in action on Dec. 27 according to information received by his parents. Announcement of his promotion to the rank of captain from that of lieutenant was made early in December, 1943. Capt. Boyd, who is only 23 years old, was born in Edmonton and attended Rutherford Public and Scona High schools. Prior to his enlistment in the Canadian Army Dec. 8, 1941, he was a member of the staff of the south side, and main north side branches of the Royal Bank of Canada. He went overseas in July 1942, after receiving officer's training courses at Gordon Head and Currie Barracks and has served throughout the Sicilian and Italian campaigns.

Nazi Blockade Runner Carried Argentine Flag

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 11.—(AP)—A German blockade runner sunk last week in the south Atlantic was camouflaged and flew the Argentine flag, the newspaper O Globo said today, and had Argentines among its crew members.

(It is customary for German blockade runners to fly the flag of a neutral country in efforts to ward off attack. Use of crew members from a neutral country on such boats is contrary to international law. In the role of a neutral nation Argentina would have no reason to camouflage boats under its flag).

11 ARGENTINES

O Globo, in a dispatch from Recife, said 11 Argentines were among crew members landed in Brazil after the blockade runner sank. It said the Argentines were mostly of adult age while German crew members were mostly youngsters.

Definite Proposal To Settle Montreal Strike Is Expected

QUEBEC, Jan. 11—(CP)—Leaders of the 21-day strike of Montreal municipal white collar employees left Quebec last night amid a general feeling that they had a definite proposal for ending the deadlock to submit to the workers at a mass meeting Tuesday night.

The strike leaders, left after two days of conferences with the provincial government and the Quebec municipal commission.

While there was no official comment on the result of the meetings, it was learned that the strike leaders, although they had been given full powers to reach a settlement before they left Montreal, wished to present the proposal to the 2,000 workers involved before reaching a definite decision.

Labor-Progressive Stand Is Attacked

OTTAWA, Jan. 11.—(CP)—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, today had this to say about the Labor Progressive National Executive's statement that it will aim at "electing a majority of C.C.F., Labor and Farmer members to the next House of Commons."

"I have no doubt the Communist Party, pursuing its usual tactics, will seek to destroy everything in the way of its desired control of political and labor organizations, which it would use for its own subversive purposes."

He said the Labor-Progressives are free to organize in any constituency "like any other of our opponents."

The C.C.F. has declined offers of affiliation with the Labor-Progressives who hold two seats in the Ontario legislature and are led by Tim Buck of Toronto.

Soviet Units Drive Nearer Vital Railway

LONDON, Jan. 11.—(CP)—The Red Army driving toward Sarny in Rovno province in pre-war Poland has forged the Sluch river, which borders the vital railroad city on the east, Moscow announced tonight.

MOSCOW, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Russian spearheads, steadily bringing war nearer to Rumania, drove toward the Odessa-Warsaw railway today, and advance scouts felt out the eastern bank of the southern Bug river after capturing a long stretch of land southeast of Zhmerinka, a junction on that main railway line. To the rear, the 2nd Ukrainian army of Gen. Ivan S. Konev fought within 15 miles of the Dnieper bend rail town of Smela, after wiping out 8,000 Nazis encircled north of Kirovograd.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—German sources reported today that the Red army had driven 62 miles deep into old Poland, was attacking the key rail junction of Sarny from two directions, and was threatening to encircle Rovno, the Nazi administrative capital, from the Ukraine.

A Berlin dispatch of the Nazi-controlled Scandinavian telegraph bureau to Stockholm acnowledged a landslide of German setbacks in the old Polish state, indicating that Adolf Hitler's armies on the Russian front virtually had been split.

Other Stockholm advices reported a Nazi admission that the Germans "probably had lost Sarny, rail juction on the lower rim of the Pripet marshes 36 miles west of the pre-war Soviet-Polish frontier.

A Berlin report of a 62-mile Red army penetration of former Polish territory did not specify the location. A day earlier, however, the German high command had reported Soviet patrols operating west of Sarny.

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Count Galeazzo Ciano, the swaggering blackshirt who married Benito Mussolini's daughter and helped create his Fascist empire, died before a firing squad in Verona today as a traitor to Il Duce and Fascism.

Ciano was brought before his Axis executioner shortly before 9 a.m. and shot, less than 24 hours after a tribunal had found him guilty of high treason.

The German DNB news agency announced the death of the glittering Ciano in a terse official bulletin which disclosed that four other prominent blackshirts had died with him—Marshal Emilo de Bono, 77-year-old veteran of the Fascist march on Rome and leader of cabinet, "severed from its people," has proved unable to establish friendly relations with the Soviet Union or organize "an active struggle against the German invaders of Poland itself.' The cabinet, "by its incorrect policy, often plays into the hands of the German invaders," the Soviet statement said.

Poland Likely Accept Offer Made by Soviet

Well-informed sources here believed Russia's offer, which suggested the "Curzon line" of 1919 as a possible Soviet-Polish boundary would be the final gesture by Premier Josef Stalin during the war with the possibility that if the question were left until after the war, Poland might lose much more territory.

Russia broke off relations with the exile government last April 26 after the Poles had asked the International Red Cross to investigate a German propaganda claim that the Soviets had massacred Polish army officers.

REITERATE DEMANDS

There has been widespread speculation that Polish exiles in Russia might set up a rival exile government but none has materialized. However, the union of Polish patriots has been very active in Moscow

The Polish exile cabinet reiterated last Wednesday its demand for "re-establishment of Polish sovereign administration" over liberated portions of the polish state, but at the same time expressed hope of a resumption of Russian-Polish relations.

The Russian compromise offer, disclosed by the official Soviet news agency Tass early today, represented the first concrete gesture by either side toward compromising its demand for the entire strip of eastern Poland taken over by the Soviets under the Molotov-Ribbentrop agreement.

Re-affirming Russia's desire for a "strong and independent Poland," the new Soviet statement said the government "does not consider the Polish borders of 1939 as being unalterable" and proposed that they be altered "in such a way that the regions in which the Polish population predominate would be ceded to Poland."

FOLLOW CURZON LINE

In the east, "for example," the statement said, the new Soviet-Polish frontier could follow the so-called "Curzon line."

The "Curzon line," proposed by Lord Curzon during another boundary dispute in 1919 and approved at that time by the Allied powers, roughly ran from Grodno at the southern tip of Lithuania through the Bialystok, Brest Litovsk and Przemsyl areas to the northern frontier of Czechoshovakia.

Of the territory occupied by Russia in 1939, she would give up under this plan a triangle of 6,750 square miles between Grodno and Brest Litovsk, and a smaller triangle at the southern end of the line.

Poland would regain Bialystok in the north and Przemsyl in the south, while Russia would retain Wilno, Brest Litovsk and Lwow.

Poland's western borders "must be extended by the inclusion into Poland of integral Polish lands taken away earlier by Germany," the Soviet statement said, while her northern borders must include an outlet to the Baltic sea.

UNALTERABLE CLAIM

The Russians asserted their unalterable right to the Western Ukraine and Western White Russia, which they said were incorporated into the Soviet Union in 1939 "In accordance with the will of population . . . as expressed in a plebiscite carried out in conformity with wide democratic principles."

"The injustice done by the treaty of Riga of 1921, forced upon the Soviet Union in relation to the Ukrainians inhabiting the Western Ukraine and White Russians inhabiting White Russia thus war corrected," the statement said.

The statement asserted the Soviet government again was declaring its desire to "Establish friendship between the Soviet Union and Poland based on firm, good and neighborly relations and mutual respect and—if the Polish people should want it—on a basis of mutual alliance against the Germans as the main enemies of the Soviet Union and Poland.

"Joining Poland to the Czechoslovak-Soviet treaty of friendship, mutual-assistance and post-war collaboration would help in this task," the statement said.

Recalling that the Red army already was thrusting across the Western Ukraine, the Russians said the "Possibility now was opening of a resurrection of Poland as a strong and independent state."

"But Poland had to arise, not by seizing Ukrainian and White Russian lands, but by restoring to Poland integral Polish lands which have been taken away from it by the Germans," the statement said.

Pulpwood Imports By Firms in U.S. Will Be Controlled

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Firms in the United States importing pulpwood from Canada or elsewhere henceforth must first obtain authorization from the War Production oBard.

W.P.B.'s order issued yesterday will cover the 1,250,000 rough cords of pulpwood which Canada has agreed to ship to the United States during 1944 for allocation to firms which normally depend on Canada for this material. This particular tonnage is for other than newsprint usage.

The important control is invoked, W.P.B. said, to permit the building of a reserve supply . meet unforeseen and urgent war needs which may develop during 1944

SHUTTLE RAIDS FROM BRITAIN, ITALY LIKELY

By LYNN HEINZERLING

AT A U.S. BOMBER BASE IN ITALY, Jan. 11.—(AP)—United States heavy bombers have been tearing at Axis strongholds in Europe and the Balkans from new bases in Italy for weeks, it may now be disclosed.

The stage has been set for shuttle atacks on Hitler's fortress from both Britain and Italy.

Movement of the heavy bombers from Africa to Italy was a natural consequence of the invasion of Italy but arrival of the bombers here was not announced earlier for security reasons.

Two-engined bombers hit San Benedetto, 35 miles north of Pescara, the 8th Army's objective on the Adriatic coast, while dive-bombers attacking communications north of Rome destroyed six German vehicles, a large ammunition truck, a tank and locomotive.

R.A.F. and American bombers and fighters supported Allied troops in the battle area, while R.A.F. Wellingtons bombed an airfield at Sillorba, 30 miles from Venice, and R.A.F. Mosquitoes and Marauders shot up trains in the Po valley and near Bordeaux and Toulouse in France.

Nine German planes were destroyed for a loss of three Allied aircraft, headquarters said.

The British destroyers Jervis, Troubridge and Tumult, sweeping the German-held Adriatic coast Friday night, sank three German schooners and bombarded the railway at Civitanova and Ancona. The next night they found four more schooners in the area, damaging them so badly they were abandoned. The destroyers topped off the night by shelling San Benedetto.

VOTED AGAINST DUCE

All were members of the Fascist grand council and voted last July to depose Mussolini as dictator of Italy.

The 40-year-old Ciano's blackshirt career began more than 22 years ago when he joined the "castor oil" march on Rome. His star ascended with his marriage to Mussolini's red-haired daughter Edda, and his appointment to the post of foreign minister in 1936. It waned last February when he was removed from that post and named envoy to the Vatican.

Of the 14 other members of the grand council that unseated Mussolini, 13 had escaped from the Axis part of Italy and were condemned in absentia, and former Minister of Corporations Tullio Cianetti received a 30-year prison sentence, possibly because he testified against his fellow-blackshirts.

Million Hollanders Ousted to Provide Room For Germans

LONDON, Jan. 11.—(CP)—About 1,000,000 residents have been turned out of their homes in the Netherlands by the occupation authorities to make room for Germans bombed out of cities in the Reich and to permit razing houses for construction of defence works along the Netherlands coast, radio Orange, the Free Netherlands station here, reported yesterday. The exodus from Netherlands homes has taken on the proportions of a mass movement, with more than 200,000 families already evicted, the broadcaster said.

Labor Officials Study Problems At Conference

SASKATOON, Jan. 11—(CP)—Departments of labor officials from the three prairie provinces in conference here yesterday agreed on "certain general principles" in connection with labor laws, it was announced last night.

R. J. M. Parker, Saskatchewan minister of municipal affairs, said in a statement following the closed sessions that "We arrived at certain general principles, the details of which will be worked out by the three provinces individually."

PLAN JOINT ACTION

In an effort to achieve greater uniformity in existing labor regulations, Mr. Parker said that "As a result of the conference we will make joint representations to the federal government."

The conference, with Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta as chairman, studied uniform basic wage legislation in the three provinces, with a view to bettering conditions for employees and employers as well as assisting the provincial departments of labor, Mr. Parker said.

Minimum wage laws were considered in the light of maximum wage regulations of the National War Labor Board.

Mr. Parker said that the Saskatchewan department of labor has under consideration the possibility of legislation in respect to apprentices. Representations had been made to the government for a general apprentices act, he said.

West End Y.M.C.A. Seeking Members

An army of volunteer membership campaigners will invade the west end section of Edmonton Tuesday night to canvass every block and house in the vicinity for membership in the Mountglen Community Y.M.C.A., according to Miles Palmer, chairman of the drive.

The canvass particularly for family memberships, will continue until Friday, Jan. 17, when a report will be made to the temporary board of the Mountglen Community Y, which will meet in the evening at the Westglen school.

Folders outlining the membership plan, the leadership and program of the new organization have been distributed throughout the west end section. The Mountglen Community Y.M.C.A. will be closely affiliated with the downtown branch of the Edmonton Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Palmer stressed the importance of family memberships in the organization. These memberships may be taken out by the head of a family and will entitle any member of his family, upon registration, to participate in program activities at the Mountglen Community Y.M.C.A.

Edmonton Navy Fathers were hosts at a "smoker" aboard H.M.C.S. Nonsuch Monday evening. Among those present were His Honor Judge J. L. Crawford; S. W. Field, K.C.; Dr. C. W. Hurlburt; Chief Constable R. Jennings; John Michaels; Harry Pinsky; W. J. Williams, secretary, Canadian Legion; R. P. Lefroy and Chester Brown, C.P. Airlines. The following special guests were in attendance, all members of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment and casualties from the 8th Army: Pte. T. J. Forbes of Peers; Pte. W. Brodyk of Smoky Lake; and Pte. E. J. Lyttle of Ashmont.

About 50 fathers spent an enjoyable evening with the ship's company, in all a gathering of about 150. Songs of the sea and the forces were much enjoyed. The program opened with the officer commanding, Lt. Cmdr. J. A. Dawson, giving the King's toast. For the entertainment part the following persons received special mention: Mr. Enright of the K. of C. entertainment board, through the kindly co-operation of Harold Wright of the War Services Board; Dennis Clayton, pianist; Jack Jones, song leader; James Grant, in his usual music-hall style; Ordinary Seaman Miller, who sang "Land of Hope and Glory" with full meaning. O/Std. Florkow was in excellent form with his doll "Seaweed." His ventriloquism was 'tops'. T. Broadbent showed agility with his castanets (bones).

A word of thanks is due to Lt. Jenks who, with R. E. (Buster) Browne, were responsible, through the commanding officer, for arranging the evening.

Earl of Athlone Offers Tribute To Late Editor

WINNIPEG, Jan. 11.—(CP)—Tribute to J. W. Dafoe, president and editor-in-chief of the Winnipeg Free Press, who died Sunday, was contained in a message of condolence sent to Mrs. Dafoe yesterday by the governor-general, the Earl of Athlone.

The message read: "Princess Alice and I are deeply distressed to hear of the sudden death of your distinguished husband. He was a great Canadian and he will be sadly missed by his many friends. Please accept our profound sympathy."

Gable Is Injured In Auto Collision

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Capt. Clark Gable, unscathed in bombing missions over France and Germany, is nursing bruises from an automobile collision. Gable, a police report said, was making a boulevard stop when the rear of his car was struck by a war worker's auto.

Start Big Fires

R.A.F. Follows Up Yank Raid on Sofia

AN ALLIED BASE, Italy, Jan. 11.—R.A.F. Wellington bombers intensifying what appeared to be an aerial offensive to blast Bulgaria out of the war, started fires visible for more than 55 miles last night in the second Allied raid on Sofia in 12 hours.

Guided to their target by fires kindled in the American attack yesterday, the twin-engined Wellingtons, many of them Canadian-manned, carried out what returning crews described as a "highly successful" raid. Flames from one fire shot 100 feet into the air, they said.

The twin raids on Sofia coincided with reports relayed from neutral sources of a political crisis that may result in Bulgaria becoming the first of Germany's Balkan satellites to collapse under the threat of heavy Allied air attacks and the approaches of the Red Army.

RUMANIA WORRIED

(A Stockholm Svenska Dagbladet dispatch from Budapest said Rumania was preparing feverishly to evacuate the government from Bucharest because of the danger of Allied air raids. All foreign legations have been urged to move from the capital to Transylvania, the dispatch said.)

Coincidental with the American raid on Sofia yesterday, other Allied bombers attacked railroad targets at Skoplje, Yugoslav bottleneck on the trunk railway running into Greece. Many direct hits were scored on vital installations, official sources said.

Allied losses in the Sofia and Skoplje raids were not specified, but three aircraft were lost in all operations yesterday, which included attacks on Italian targets.

$2,500,000 Blaze Sweeps U.S. Plant

MARYSVILLE, Mich., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Fire swept the six principal buildings of the Morton Salt Company's plant here last night, and destroyed several lesser structures, causing a loss which General Manager Fred Philbrick said would exceed $2,500,000.

The plant, with a capacity of 250,000 tons a year, occupies a two-acre site on the shore of the St. Clair river.

The blaze broke out in a co-operative shop and warehouse. In less than four hours it raced through the six buildings.

The buildings were largely of old-type frame and masonry construction. Value of equipment in one building alone was estimated by Philbrick at $700,000.

U.S. Communists To Quit Elections

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Earl Browder, American Communist leader, said last night the Communists would co-operate with capital's free enterprise system in the United States and also abandon the practice of entering party candidates in elections.

Also affirming an earlier announcement that the Marxists would drop their party label, he said in an addressat a mass meeting in Madison Square Garden that the steps were being taken to promote national unity for "realization of the perspectives laid down in Teheran."

Browder asserted the Communists were neither joining, endorsing nor condemning the Democratic or Republican parties, but "were taking the line of issues and not of parties."

Heavy Force U.S. Bombers Over Germany

By JOSEPH GRIGG

LONDON, Jan. 11.—An hour-long parade of American planes streamed into Axis Europe today and the Berlin radio reported that the raiding bombers and Nazi fighters were locked in an air battle over central Germany.

The big bombers crossed the channel in waves, in a daylight follow-up to the R.A.F.'s Mosquito attack on Berlin last night.

Berlin broadcast a Transocean news agency dispatch that American four-motored planes attacked targets in central Germany at noon.

The Luftwaffe, conspicuously absent during the heavy Allied raids on the French invasion coast in recent weeks, rose in strength to meet the American bombers, according to Transocean, which said "heavy losses" were inflicted on the raiders.

HIT INVASION COAST

Simultaneously with the apparent resumption of the U.S. air force's offensive three-day rest, strong formations of Allied medium bombers and fighters attacked the French invasion coast.

Twin-engined R.A.F. Mosquitoes resumed the British offensive against Berlin with a nuisance raid last night as authoritative air ministery sources estimated that the campaign to knock the Nazi capital out of the war had been 40 per cent completed.

The Mosquito raid may have been a prelude in the nature of a reconnaissance attack to new block-buster assaults on Berlin, last hit by British and Canadian heavy bombers early on the mornings of Jan. 1 and 2. Mosquitoes last attacked Berlin Jan. 5.

The speedy plywood bombers also attacked unspecified objectives in western Germany last night. All raiders returned safely to their bases.

Before the Magistrate

Henry W. Rogers, pleading guilty through counsel to a charge of selling nembutal, without prescriptions, was fined $100 and costs or three months imprisonment, by Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., in city police court, Tuesday morning.

Members of the R.C.M.P. and city officers, with an order to search the premises of the accused, after two women had acted upon police instructions and purchased 10 tables of the drug, seized 23 prescriptions which showed a total of 273 capsules having been purchased.

At the same time, a check on the source of the tablets showed that 3,000 more of them had been purchased. Marked money used by the authorities was found on the accused.

Leslie Kennedy and Agnes Myers, or Munroe, pleaded guilty to not having a permit to have liquor in their possession, and each was assessed $50 or two months. Kennedy, the court was told, had "an extensive record" while the other accused was "no stranger to this court."

William Frost, pleading guilty to causing a disturbance, was fined $10 or 14 days. A police officer stated he spoke to the accused about 11:35 p.m. Monday, about threatening to fight another man. At 12:40 a.m. Tuesday, he heard another disturbance and upon investigating, found the accused in the centre of things. Frost said he "always talked loud."

Steady Drive Of Red Troops Nears Rumania

threatening Rovno, 52 miles south of Sarny and 22 miles inside old Poland, the first big town on the Warsaw-Ukraine trunk railway.

Moscow announced the capture of Lyudvipol, 25 miles northeast of Rovno yesterday. The Soviets also revealed that their spearheads had driven to within 54 miles of Rumania and 20 miles of the Warsaw-Odessa railway while cutting two of the remaining supply lines for the Germans threatened with entrapment in the Dniper bend.

The Scandinavian telegraph bureau reported from Berlin that the big winter battle on the eastern front showed no sign—as it entered its third week—that the climax had been reached. The only hope the German press was able to hold forth, it said, was that Russian attacks, "despite everything, must sooner or later fade out."

DISCARD PRETENSE

Discarding the pretense of concealing heavy losses, the Nazis were now reported admitting that many of their units were encircled and fighting to the last man.

The German high command reported that the Red Army yesterday launched an expected attack from a bridgehead northeast of Kerch on the Crimean peninsula of the same name. It possibly marked the beginning of a Soviet campaign to clean out the Crimea, isolated except by sea.

The Berlin communique said several Russian divisions supported by artillery and battle planes attacked on a narrow front inside the Dnieper Bend southwest of Dniepropetrovsk. The reported offensive would represent an extension to the southeast of the drives by the First and Second Ukrainian armies, with Krivoi Rog the likely immediate objective.

The Nazi Vichy radio hinted at another Russian victory brewing on the approaches to the Baltic States. The Red Army has achieved "important breaches" in the German defences in the Vitebsk area of White Russia and has thrown considerable reinforcements into an effort to "accelerate the encirclement" of enemy forces, the broadcast said.

ANOTHER LANDING

The German DNB Agency reported that the Soviets also had landed troops on the northern coast of the Kerch Peninsula at the eastern tip of the Crimea opposite the Caucasus yesterday at dawn. The Russians previously had beachheads on both the north and south coasts of the peninsula, but the Germans claimed to have liquidated them.

Erskine Church Has Good Year

The congregation of Erskine United Church met Monday night at the church hall to hear reports of various committees on church activities, and to discuss plans for 1944.

In spite of a "most difficult year," the report of the board of stewards given by M. Urquhart, president, showed that "the financing of the church had been carried on successfully, with total receipts from all sources amounting to $2,517.21 for the year."

It was also reported that the church had contributed $130 to the headquarters of the missionary and maintenance fund.

Retiring members of the board of stewards, E. Michie and Mr. Urquhart were re-elected to serve another term.

Mr. Fazackerley and Mrs. Leach made reports on the activities of the Sunday school; Russell Hamilton reported on the boys' work, and Miss Ina Ward discussed the C.G.I.T. activities.

Great Expansion Seen in Post-War Mineral Industry

TORONTO, Jan. 11.—(CP)—C. H. (Punch) Dickins, veteran northland flier and general manager of Canadian Pacific Air Lines, yesterday told a group of Toronto mining executives that the post-war period would likely see a great expansion of Canada's mineral industry.

He said his company is planning to build—in co-operation with local interests—a number of landing fields at strategic northern mining points. "This will make it possible to use wheel aircraft the year round, eliminating the break-up and freeze-up periods, which, in the past, have brought air operations to a standstill for almost three months a year," he said.

Cargo Tonnage Sunk by Subs Shows Big Drop

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—U-boat warfare cost the United Nations only 40 per cent as much cargo tonnage in 1943 as in 1942, a joint Anglo-American statement reported last night, while the tonnage of new merchant vessels constructed was more than twice as great.

The tonnage of cargo ship losses to submarines in the Atlantic in December "was again low, despite an extension of (U-boat) operating areas," said the monthly communique issued by the office of war information under authority of Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt.

FEWER SUBS SUNK

"Fewer U-boats were destroyed during the month by our air and sea forces owing to several factors, including increased caution by the enemy," the report stated. "Our supp routes were, however, well secured against U-boat attack."

The communique did not total the number of U-boat kills chalked up by Allied forces during 1943, nor the cargo tonnage lost. It did reveal marked improvement in the last half of the year.

Nearly half the merchnat ship tonnage sunk was lost in the first three months of 1943, 27 per cent in the second qurater, and only 26 per cent in the third and fourth quarters combined.

Previously it had been announced that 150 U-boats were destroyed in the second and third quarters of 1943, a total greater than the number of Allied ships lost by submarine action.

U.K. Press Lauds Late J. W. Dafoe

LONDON, Jan. 11.—(CP)—The Times and Telegraph in London and the Manchester Guardian today paid tribute to the late John W. Dafoe, editor of th Winnipeg Free Press, as a great Canadian and dean of Canadian editors.

The Times published an obituary of 1½ columns in which he was described as "a man who ranked as one of the foremost Canadians of his day and generation." The story praised afoe's liberal thought and his editorial writing and said, "At the end of his career Mr. Dafoe found himself the acknowledged leader of his profession in Canada."

The Daily Telegraph's "London Day by Day" column said, "Canada loses the man whom many consider the Dominion's greatest journalist. He has been editor-in-chief of the Free Press for more than 40 years and the impress of his cultured liberalism remained throughout that time the dominant feature of its editorial page."

The Guardian in its London column said, "It is not only Canadian journalism but the orld of journalism that loses much by the death of that great, independent-minded, forward-seeing veteran of the press, Mr. Dafoe."

French Demand Increased Aid For Patriots

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

ALGIERS, Jan. 11.—(AP)—The French consultative asembly demanded yesterday that the United Nations officially recognize French guerillas as the vanguard of invasion and include them in the strategy for attack.

At the same time Gen. Charles de Gaulle blamed the Allies for what he called "painful, dolorous negotiations" with the French National Committee for arming the patriots.

ADOPT RESOLUTIONS

After the assembly unanimously adopted a five-point resolution calling on the committee to seek official recognition for the underground resistance groups through both military and diplomatic channels, de Gaulle asserted that battle of France "is one and indivisible," waged by the people within and without France and would continue until the French government returned to France.

"This is a special kind of war," he said. "It may surprise the Allied governments who could not picture it. Much has been done, but not enough (to aid the French patriots.)"

Interior Commissioner Emmanuel d'Astier de la Vigerie, summing up a two-day discussion of the resistance movement, declared a purge of "traitors" would be conducted regardless of the British and American governments, adding, "To the Allies we would say: 'The sooner the purge is over, the sooner order will be re-established'."

Big Bomb Loads Blast Jap Bases

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Jan. 11.—Allied planes and torpedo boats, pounding at Japanese transports supplying and reinforcing enemy troops in the New Guinea and New Britain areas, sank 22 barges, a communique said today, while American marines, taking a toll of seven to one, hunted scattered remnants of Japanese forces near Cape Gloucester.

Other American planes, the communique said, continued their attacks on Japanese installations from the Dutch East Indies to the Birmarck Archipelago.

More than 2,000 Japanese dead had been counted through Saturday, it was announced, while marine casualties in the Gloucester campaign, including wounded, were less than 15 per cent of that total.

American troops on the Huon peninsula of New Guinea continued to press enemy rear guard elements around Saidor. The Americans moving steadily south, and the Australians, moving north.

Navy Planes Sink Japanese Auxiliary Oiler in Attack

PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 11.—(AP)—United States navy planes, swooping low over Wotje Atoll in the Marshall Islands the night of Jan. 9, sank a Japanese auxiliary oiler and another small vessel, wrecked two enemy airplanes on the ground and damaged shore installations.

This was the heaviest of four new air attacks on the Marshalls, announced yesterday by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz. The assaults were made by army or navy planes on Jan. 8 and 9. Wotje was hit twice and Jaluit and Kwajalein once each.

All the attacks were carried out without loss of an American plane. One medium bomber of the 7th Army Air Force was damaged by anti-aircraft fire in the sweep over Jaluit the morning of Jan. 8.

Sees 'Short' War If Republican U.S. President

By HAROLD OLIVER

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Election of a Republican president next November will shorten the war "by months if not years" because it will guarantee America's military leaders home front support "they never have had before," Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, said last night in an address prepared for delivery to more than 200 Republican leaders.

Apparently anticipating a Democratic argument that now is not the time to "change horses" in the midst of war, Halleck told the Republican national committee members and state chairmen and vice-chairmen:

TIME TO CHANGE

"We must demonstrate to the people of America that the minute to change horses in the middle of the stream is that moment when the new horse can cross the stream more quickly, more efficiently, and without spilling its burden."

Halleck, new chairman of the house Republican campaign committee, was the principal speaker at a dinner in advance of Tuesday's national committee meeting to select a time and place for the party's national convention, which is expected to be held in Chicago about June 25.

The national committee held a closed session late yesterday with state chairmen and vice-chairmen to talk over campaign plans and to hear National Chairman Harrison E. Spankler rip into the Roosevelt administration for what he called its "orgy of economic experiments, wasteful extravagance, and criminal neglect of military preparedness," which he said resulted in the "grim tragedy of Pearl Harbor."

He challenged what he described as the president's attempt to label the Democrats to "win the war" party and said any candidate who seeks to make political capital of the war will earn "the repudiation of the voters."

Edmonton Regt. "Best in Italy" Veterans State

too tough," the returning soldiers said of the fighting in Sicily and Italy.

"We are mighty proud to be serving with The Loyal Edmonton Regiment. The regiment is really tops, the very best of all," the young veterans declared.

All the returning soldiers wore the badge of the crusader's shield, the distinctive insignia of the famed British Eighth Army.

Spr. McKercher, who left here with the 9th Armp Troops Company, R.C.E., in January of 1940, declared: "Edmonton sure looks great to me."

Former Edmontonians overseas are in good health and fettle, McKercher said. He mentioned Sgt. Pete McCready and Capt. Jimmy Blatchford.

McCready will be remembered as a baseball star, while Captain Blatchford is a brother of Wing Commander Howard Blatchford, D.F.C., also of Edmonton, who is believed to have been lost after aerial action over enemy territory last summer.

The returning soldiers were welcomed home by Canadian Legion officials, Area Commandant Lt.-Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., and representatives of various service unit women's auxiliaries., the Canadian Red Cross and Salvation Army War Service officials.

GREETED MEN

Prominent among those greeting the returning heroes was Mrs. J. C. Jefferson, wife of Lt.-Col. J. C. Jefferson, D.S.O., E.D., officer commanding The Loyal Edmonton Regiment overseas. With four of the returning men members of the famed regiment it seemed almost an Edmonton Regiment show. Others on hand included.

Maj. D. Rea representing the Salvation Army War services; Mrs. W. G. Paterson, president of the Canadian Legion Ladies' Auxiliary; Mrs. A. Gagnon, 9th Army Troops Company Auxiliary; Mrs. F. H. Russell, Royal Canadian Signals Auxiliary; Mrs. W. E. Currie, 61st R.C.S.; Mrs. F. Kingzette, Edmonton Fusiliers; Mrs. E. H. Mitchell, 92nd Bty.; the Canadian Red Cross; W. Williams and J. C. 319 Employees in Plant at Regina To Be Laid Off

WINNIPEG, Jan. 11.—(CP)—Gordon P. Wilkinson, grand lodge representative of the International Association of Machinists, said here last night that layoff notices had been given to 319 employees of Regina industries last Friday. Mr. Wilkinson announced he would leave Tuesday for Regina to confer with machinists who will be affected by a termination of employment. At Regina, officials of the company said the layoff was due to completion of certain war contracts.

U.S. National Service Law Is Proposed

FOR WAR'S DURATION

The national service act was proposed for the duration to "prevent strikes" and with some exceptions, "to make available for war production and for any other essential services every able-bodied adult in this nation."

These were his other four points:

1—"A realistic tax law."

2—Continuation of the law permitting renegotiation of war contracts.

3—A "cost of food law."

4—Re-enactment of the Economic Stabilization Act which expires next June 30.

In his annual message to Congress, which he was prevented by the grippe from delivering in person, Mr. Roosevelt dwelt largely on domestic problems, but he spoke also of the war and its progress.

His legislative program was proposed "in order to concentrate all our energies and resources on winning the war and to maintain a fair and stable economy at home."

His five measures, the president said, "form a just and equitable whole."

ACT IS NECESSARY

The president said he was convinced a national service act was necessary.

"Although I am convinced," he said, "that we and our allies can win without such a measure, I am certain that nothing less than total mobilization of manpower and capital resources will guarantee an earlier victory."

Supporting his arguments for a national service act, he said millions of Americans "are not in this war at all" and that the act would be a means by which every man and woman could make the fullest possible contribution to victory.

Mr. Roosevelt described "a realistic tax law" as one which would tax all unreasonable profits, both individual and corporate, and reduce the ultimate cost of the war.

The revenue bill now in congress, which would yield only about a fifth of what the administration had sought, does not start to meet this test, he said.

COST OF FOOD LAW

On his third point, a cost of food law, he said it should enable the government to put a reasonable floor under farm prices and a ceiling on the prices that consumers pay. It should apply only to necessities, he declared, and public funds will be required to effectuate it. He figured the cost would be about one per cent of the present annual cost of the war.

Unless the stabilization statute is renewed, he said, the country can expect "price chaos by summer."

The President touched with relative brevity, at the outset of his message, on the war conferences which took place overseas in the final weeks of 1943. He hailed them as intended to prevent mistakes made at the conclusion of the last war.

"Of course, we made some commitments," he said. "We most certainly committed ourselves to very large and very specific military plans which require the use of all Allied forces to bring about the defeat of our enemies at the earliest possible time.

"But there were no secret treaties or political or financial commitments.

SECURITY IS OBJECTIVE

"The one supreme objective for the future, which we discussed for each nation individually, and for all the United Nations, can be summed up in one word—security.

"And that means not only physical security. It means also economic security, social security, moral security, in a family of nations."

Mr. Roosevelt warned against over confidence and complacency, asserting the way to fight and win the war is "all out" and not with half an eye on battlefronts and half an eye on personal, selfish, or political interests at home.

He said he hoped congress would recognize that while 1944 is a political year, "national service is an issue which transcends politics."

He said he believed the American people would welcome a measure based on a just principle of "fair for one, fair for all."

RAPS PRESSURE GROUPS

Asking congress to look into means for implementing what he termed an economic, second bill of rights, Mr. Roosevelt vigorously assailed "whining demands of selfish pressure groups who seek to feather their nests while young Americans are dying."

He spoke of the need for unity at home, pounding away on a theme he has used before—that there is only front in the war.

"Each and every one of us," he declared, "has the solemn obligation under God to serve this nation in its most critical hour—to keep this nation great—and to make this nation greater in a better world."

NEW BILL OF RIGHTS

His second bill of rights, under which he said a new basis of security and prosperity could be established for all, included these points:

1. The right to a useful and remunerative job.
2. The right to earn enough to provide adequate food, clothing and recreation.
3. The right of every farmer to a return for his products which will provide a decent living for him and his family.
4. The right of every business man to be free from unfair competition and domination by monopolies.
5. The right of every family to a decent home.
6. The right to adequate medical care and an opportunity to achieve and enjoy good health.
7. The right to adequate protection from economic fears in old age, illness, accident and unemployment.
8. The right to a good education.

ADD UP TO "SECURITY"

"All of these rights spell 'security'," the President said. "And after the war is won we must be prepared to move forward in the implementation of these rights, to new goals of human happiness and well being.

"America's own rightful place in the world depends in large part upon how fully these and similar rights have been carried into practice for our citizens. For unless there is security here at home there cannot be lasting peace in the world."

If history were to repeat and America were to return to the so-called normalcy of the 20's, he said, it is certain that though we have conquered enemies on battlefields abroad "we shall have yielded to the spirit of Fascism here at home." All clear thinking business men, he added, share a concern over the grave dangers which would ensue from a "rightest reaction" in America.

It is definitely the responsibility of Congress, the President emphasized, to explore methods to effectuate the economic Bill of Rights. Some of its features already are covered by pending legislation, he said, and he added that he would communicate with Congress from time to time on these and further proposals.

WARNING TO CONGRESS

He gave congress this warning: "In the event that no adequate program of progress is evolved I am certain that the nation will be conscious of the fact.

"Our fighting men abroad—and their families at home—expect such a program and have the right to insist upon it. It is to their demands that this government should pay heed rather than to the whining demands of selfish pressure groups who seek to feather their nests while young Americans are dying."

Although he did not make the recommendation at this point, the President appealed for federal legislation to give soldiers, sailors and marines the right to vote.

Men in uniform know that an overwhelming majority of them will be deprived of a chance to vote, he said, if the matter is left entirely to the states under existing state laws, and that there is no likelihood of these laws being changes in time to let them vote at the next election.

"It is the duty of congress," Mr. Roosevelt said, "to remove this unjustifiable discrimination against the men and women in our armed forces—and to do it as quickly as possible.

No amount of legalistic argument, he said, can becloud the issue in the eyes of 10,000,000 Americans in uniform.

Asserts Canada Must Open Door Or Be Invaded

TORONTO, Jan. 11.—(CP)—Canada, in the end, will be conquered either by immigration or by invasion, Jean Charles Harvey, editor of the Montreal French language weekly Le Jour, said here yesterday.

"Canada," Mr. Harvey asserted in an address to the Canadian Club, "now is one of the few countries where another 60,000,000 people might live comfortably, and we must either be prepared to open our doors or to keep constantly under arms sufficient forces to withstand all aggression, armies, incidentally, which we cannot raise in sufficient number today, owing to the numerical weakness of our population."

IMMIGRATION SALVATION

Saying that "immigration is our salvation," he added:

"By that means we can guarantee ourselves thirty years at least of "immediate prosperity; we can avoid all the social and political crises and the revolutionary movements which we hear rumbling around us.

"For we can, in this way, set ourselves on a patch of development, where private enterprise can have a free chance, and where democratic institutions, which can not be separated from freedom and enterprise, will once again show their efficiency and superiority."

Assuming that millions of immigrants would enter Canada during the next 20 years, Mr. Harvey said that "the situation of Canadians of French speech would not be hopeless."

"We will survive—on condition that we adapt ourselves to the realities of North American life."

Serious Outbreak Typhus Reported In Kirkenes Area

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Norwegian legation sources said today that a serious outbreak of typhus in Kirkenes, chief German base in the far north, had forced the Germans to isolate the area to prevent the fever from spreading to other fronts. The Germans themselves reported a 100 per cent. increase in cases of grippe in Denmark, and said diphtheria and scarlet fever also were spreading rapidly.

"I was first wounded at about 9 p.m. on the evening of July 21, when we were fighting in the streets of Leonforte. Pieces from a mortar shell struck me in the left side," began Pte. Forbes.

He continued: "As I was alone at the time I decided I would try and find our forward dressing station. About 15 minutes after I was hit I saw a German tank going down the street with about 20 infantrymen following. I thought if I followed them they would lead me toward our dressing station, for I knew the bridge across a stream near it had been destroyed, and that the German tank could not get across to the other side. I kept far enough behind the Germans so I could just make them out against the skyline.

"Then the Nazis came under fire from Canadians in another part of the town and the tank started to sweep the streets with machine gun fire. That's when I got it in the arm. I kept walking along in the dark and suddenly I was challenged in English. It was one of our officers, I forget just who.

"He asked me where the German tank had gone and I told him. I went along with him and he put a dressing on my wounds, gave me some morphine, and put me in a big house. The officer went away and said he would be back later. He came back at 2 or 3 a.m. and said he would come again, but he didn't return. I believe he was hit.

HAD A FEVER

About 10 a.m. the next morning I was running a fever; my arm and side were stiffening up and I needed water badly. I crawled to the door and managed to pull it open and looked out.

"An Italian civilian came along and I asked him for 'aqua' but he shook his head and said there was none. But he came back later with some milk.

"About noon two Nazis came to the house. I think they were probably Red Cross men. They looked me all over and then picked me up, making a chair of their hands, and started to carry me down the street. About 100 yards away two U.S. soldiers sighted us. They yelled and the Germans dropped me and started to run. The Americans fired at them but I don't know whether or not they dropped them. The Yanks, who were policing the town, carried me to another building and said they would send help but they too, did not return.

BOYS COME ALONG

"Later two little Italian boys came along and looked me over. Finally they got a wicker chair and carried me through the streets of the town, putting me in another house on a pile of hay. No, it wasn't a barn. In Sicily the people live right alongside the livestock.

"A lot of people came to see me and jabbered away. Then a German tank came down the street and our artillery opened up on it. A shell scored a direct hit on the tank in front of the building I was in. The blast blew the door of the house off its hinges and I was scared the hay would catch afire. There were pieces of tank flying all over the place.

"Believe me I was really scared when the artillery started to blast the area. Fighting was going on all the time in the streets.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

"Finally, late that evening a party of Canadian artillerymen came along and found me. They took me to a hospital and I passed out. When I came to I was all bandaged up and stiff as a board, from plaster.

And that concluded the story of the ordeal of Pte. Forbes on the battle-swept streets of Leonforte.

Pte. Lyttle was having a job to pull a sock on over a badly swollen left foot, that had been punctured clean through by a Nazi machine gun bullet on August 4. He has had two operations on the foot to date and fears he may need more treatment yet.

"I crawled more than half a mile after I got hit," Lyttle said.

Deny Von Papen In "Peace Talks"

LONDON, Jan. 11.—(CP)—The Nazis took cognizance last night of reports that Franz Von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey, had been sending out peace feelers. The agency D.N.B. said in a broadcast: "In Wilhelmstrasse circles all rumors about alleged peace actions of German ambassador in Ankara Von Papen are to be delegated to the realm of the imagination."

Prominent Figure In Cafe Society Indicted in U.S.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Gert Hans Gontard, 37, brewery heir and cafe society figure, pleaded not guilty yesterday after a federal grand jury indicted him and four other men on a charge of conspiracy to violate the selective service act. The trial date was set tentatively for Feb. 3.

Von Gontard was identified by assistant United States attorney J. Gerrard Cregan as a grandson of the late Adolphus Busch, founder of the Anheuser-Busch breweries in St. Louis, and a former husband of Lucia Toelle, German screen actress.

Indicted with him on the conspiracy charge were John Edward Wilson, 58, former chief clerk of a New York local draft board; Dr. Arnold Arron Hutschnecker, 45, a German refugee physician; Army Lieut. Francis X. Grottano, 33, a former New York city detective, and Michael Mangano, 43, secretary of the G. M. Uniform Company.

Seek More Books For Armed Forces

OTTAWA, Jan. 11.—(CP)—A nation-wide "more books for the services" campaign sponsored by the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire was opened here yesterday by Princess Alice, honorary president of the order. Her Royal Highness said 1,500,000 books were collected in previous drives for the Order's armed forces library service. The present drive, which ends Jan. 22, has as its objective 350,000 books from across Canada.

Farm Ownership "Risk" Said High

SASKATOON, Jan. 11.—(CP)—Hadley Van Vliet, professor of farm management at the University of Saskatchewan, forecast yesterday that "probably one half of the farms of Saskatchewan will be taken over by a new group, either through inheritance, by sale or by tenancy in the next 10 years." He believed the biggest problem was to achieve the right-sized economical farm unit.

Addressing the Saskatchewan Agricultural College Graduates Association, Mr. Van Vliet maintained that the "painful experiences" of the last 10 years had left the younger farmers with a belief that risks of ownership were extremely high.

He suggested that if the bad farm debt situation was improved it would help the sale of lands "but the serious inflationary land values of the past two years . . . will have a poor effect on the future."

In review of land ownership and tenancy, Mr. Van Vliet showed that tenancy had increased in Saskatchewan from four per cent in 1901 to 41 per cent in 1941.

TO REGAIN STRENGTH MORE QUICKLY

After Cold Weather Ills

Any doctor will tell you that it is when you are tired out, nervous and generally run down in health that you easily catch cold and other infectious ailments. You lack the strength to fight off the evil bacteria.

In this condition your recovery is likely to be slow and tedious unless you avail yourself of restorative treatment.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is recommended because it supplies the food minerals and vitamin B_1 which help to improve digestion and enrich the blood.

There is no question of the dependability of this time-proven treatment. So for better sleep, better digestion and to hasten the recovery of strength and vigor use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

CHEMISTRY HELPS TO WIN THE WAR

WAR PAINT FOR A FIGHTING NAVY

C-I-L paint is efficient battle dress for a fighting navy—tough, durable paints that stand up to the ravages of war and wind and weather.

To keep them in fighting trim the ships of the Royal Canadian Navy—destroyers, frigates, corvettes, minesweepers and auxiliaries—must wear protecting coats of paint. For protection against the wear and tear of salt water, marine growth, rust and extremes of climate. Paint also protects in battle by ship camouflage.

For war paint the Canadian Navy uses special marine finishes and other heavy duty paints that prevent rust and fouling. Many of these paints have been developed to meet the rigid demands of war at sea. On shore, too, paint has its special values for the navy at docks, training stations and shore establishments.

Of course, paint has always been a fighter—even in peacetime. It is continually battling the destructive forces of rust and decay. Its wartime uses only serve to emphasize its importance at all times.

Supplying war paint for Canada's fighting navy is one of the wartime jobs of C-I-L's Paint and Varnish Division.

Rehabilitation

Elsewhere on this page is the first in a brief series of articles by Mr. A. J. H. Powell on some of the problems of rehabilitation in the Edmonton district. Mr. Powell, who is chairman of the Citizens' Rehabilitation Council of Edmonton and also of the Rehabilitation Section of the War Services Council of Northern Alberta, gives a vivid and clear-cut picture of what should be done and what will be done for discharged members of the armed forces.

The rehabilitation plans of the Dominion Government are more far-reaching than anything that has ever been attempted before. But the task of rehabilitation is still a tremendous one because of the difficulties involved in the practical application of them. In this job civilian and voluntary co-operation must be widely extended. It is everyone's responsibility.

That is why Mr. Powell's articles are important. For his groups represent the focus of civilian and voluntary efforts along this vital line. These articles are commended to every reader.

No Japanese, Please

The protests presented to the City Council by the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Legion and the Trades and Labor Council over the admission of Japanese families to this city will be endorsed by a good 90 per cent of the citizens.

As the Legion has pointed out, the admission of Japanese may benefit one industry, but will ruin dozens of others.

Edmonton people are sufficiently close neighbors of Vancouver to know what the Japanese infiltration did to the latter city. They are sufficiently well acquainted with Vancouver sentiment to know that the coast city will never permit the oriental invaders to return.

Why, then, should Edmonton deliberately shove her head into the same noose that was placed around Vancouver's neck by the "diplomatic" circumlocutions of Ottawa?

The admission of Japanese to Edmonton would cheapen and disorganize every industry in which they would seek to engage.

Now is the time to keep them out.

A Million Per Week

Stock marketed at Edmonton stockyards and processing plants during 1943 mounted up to a total value of more than $50,000,000. On the average a sum approximating $1,000,000 was paid out each week to farmers in the central and northern areas of the province in return for hogs, cattle and other farm animals delivered to the plants and yards.

The increase in market value of the stock was about 17 per cent. In other words, a sum only one-sixth less than last year's total was paid out in 1942. While last year's distribution of payments was substantially more, it was only a bigger-than-usual instalment of stock-money that is being distributed here year by year.

That $1,000,000 per week volume of purchasing power turned over to farmers in payment for stock helps to explain the enormous business done at Edmonton stores last year. And the handling of this great stream of meat animals is one reason why employment in the city was at the peak.

Impressive as these figures are, the more important fact is that the distribution of stock-money goes on year after year, in amounts smaller than in 1943 but still huge. Its packing plants and stock-buying interests are permanent and very powerful factors in shaping the business conditions and outlook of Edmonton.

Blaming It on Adolf

Maybe wishful thinking inspires the recurrent reports that Hitler and his generals are only getting along with each other in a state of non-belligerent hostility. But what German military commentors are saying about the military situation doesn't seem to disclose or encourage harmonious relations between the Fuehrer and the Old Guard.

Thus Capt. Sertorious states frankly that the Russian winter offensive has not yet reached its climax, and another representative of the military caste says the German army may have to get out of Russia altogether. These are not laudatory remarks, and remembering it was Hitler who picked the Dnieper line as winter fighting ground there is no doubt upon whom they reflect.

From the Allied point of view of course the important point is not who got the Nazi army into the Russian bear trap but the fact that it is there. Recriminations and side-stepping are to be expected in such circumstances among the higher-ups, but if the militarists are trying to shoulder all the blame on Hitler they are ignoring one relevant matter of record.

When the Fuehrer declared war on Russia he said he was placing the fate of Germany "in the hands of the army". The generals did not register any denial that this meant putting direction of the war into their hands, and the world has not yet been informed that they ever handed back the commission.

Squirm as they may, the militarist spokesmen cannot obscure the fact that the German supposed super-generalship has been beaten on the eastern front. Hitler ordered the attack on Russia and marked down the location of the "blood line". But the generals, not the Fuehrer, have been directing the armies in the field. Their reputation for invincibility is in tatters, like the men who are fighting for their lives—or fleeing for their lives—in the Dnieper bulge.

Cousin to the King

One year ago, Victor Emmanuel of Italy declared that Josef Stalin was "civilization's greatest enemy". Now he is said to have given him the highest decoration within the giving of the Italian crown.

Twenty-two years ago, Victor Emmanuel admitted Mussolini and his gang of thugs to office in order to keep out communism which Victor Emmanuel declared to be "humanity's greatest curse". Today Stalin, the world's chief communist, is cousin to Italy's king.

For the Order of Annunziata, which entitles the recipient to wear a white satin costume with a purple cloak embroidered with red roses and gives him precedence over all other officials in Italy, also confers this kinship to his diminutive majesty.

This is what might be called getting along in the world. For to graduate, in one short year, from earth's greatest monster of iniquity to a relative of the Italian king and get all dressed up in a white satin party dress (with purple cloak and red roses) is really going places. Stalin must be speechless with gratification.

The transition, of course, does strike a blow at the stability of all standards. For, in some miraculous way, either Josef Stalin or Victor Emmanuel must have undergone some mighty change in the past year. Or perhaps the Annunziata has been reorganized to constitute a badge of demerit rather than merit in accordance with other comic developments in Italy.

But it is a sudden rise, an amazing rise. The Horatio Alger books had nothing like this.

It is announced at Ottawa that in future all air mail matter destined for oversea points will be flown across the Atlantic. The plane, that is to say, is now considered reliable for ocean flying at all times of the year. It is now mid-winter, a season when not many years ago no airmen ventured the ocean hop. The new ruling has been made as the result of services flown by R.C.A.F. and Trans-Canada planes over several months. It indicates very plainly the progress that has been made in the improvement of aircraft under pressure of war conditions.

Canada's Program for Rehabilitation of Servicemen

Good Plans Support Good Intentions for Return of Troops

By A. J. H. POWELL

Chairman of the Citizens' Rehabilitation Council of Edmonton and of the Rehabilitation Section of the War Services Council of Northern Alberta.

There is a good story about the country editor who wrote a front page column in honor of the boy who came back from the last war. When half the issue had gone through the press he noticed a bad misprint in the headline. He hurriedly changed it and ran off the rest of the issue. Next morning half the community read: "Battle-scarred Hero Returns to Home Town" while the other half read: "Bottle-scarred Hero Returns to Home Town". The moral of the little story is, good intentions are not enough.

Every citizen should know that Canada has good plans, as well as good intentions, for her men and women returning from the war. It is the purpose of these articles to describe in some detail what those plans are, and how far they are already in effect.

The body responsible for all re-establishment plans is the Department of Pensions and National Health at Ottawa. Edmonton has a sub-district office of that department, located in the Veterans' Pavilion just behind the northwest corner of University hospital's main building. This office has the full-time services of several experienced doctors and several more specialists for consultation when required. This organization is not new; it has been a going concern ever since the last war, and has gained valuable knowledge of the needs and problems of veterans all over Northern Alberta. An important agent of D.P. and N.H. is the Veterans' Welfare Officer, who has his office down town on 101A avenue, in the Unemployment Insurance Commission premises. He is there to hear sympathetically the problems of the returned man or woman, to give them information and to guide them to where they can get help if help is needed. He cannot give handouts, however, and should not be expected to do so. If financial help seems necessary, the Veterans' Welfare Officer gives the applicant help in putting his case before the District Rehabilitation Board.

The District Rehabilitation Board is the king-pin in the re-establishment structure, and the facts about it should be widely known. It is not a voluntary or charitable body, but a board set up by dominion authority to administer the benefits made available to veterans by the Order-in-Council PC 7633. That is to say, this board pays out the taxpayers' money to returned men, in accordance with rules made in Ottawa. It consists of a senior man from the Sub-district office, the Veterans' Welfare Officer, and a third man whose special interest is education. Usually the group is enlarged and aided by the presence of one of the staff doctors and the head of the Youth Training and War Emergency Training school. This District Rehabilitation Board covers Alberta north of Red Deer (Calgary being the centre for the rest of the province). It has been in active operation since October 1941, meeting as often as needed—usually twice a week. During these two years its duties have not been heavy, because the demands of industry have been so great that discharged men have readily found work at attractive wages. Nevertheless, several hundred discharged men have already received welcome assistance from the board.

What sort of help? Let us follow the fortunes of John Doe, who received gunshot wounds early in the Sicilian campaign, was evacuated to North Africa and later brought back to a Canadian hospital. He has just had a month's leave at home and is now being discharged from the service as unfit for further duty. First of all about the pension. He does not have to run here and there looking for an official to take up his case; his papers will go automatically to the Pensions Commissioners who will consider the nature and probable permanence of John's injuries and make their award accordingly. If he feels that the award is unfair, John may take up the matter with the Pensions Advocate in Edmonton. The public should know about the pensions advocate. He is a professional lawyer and an ex-soldier of the last war. He is on the permanent staff of the Sub-district office over at University Hospital, and it is his duty to make out the best possible case for John Doe and his pension, just as vigorously as he would defend John Doe's interests in a court of law. The soldier pays nothing for this service, since the advocate gets his salary from the Dominion government.

However, the pensions award takes a little time to come through, and John does not care to lie around when everyone else is busy and earning. He has received $65 clothing allowance which he has spent frugally on a suit, shoes, shirts and a tie or two. He has also received on discharge, thirty days' pay which is melting rather rapidly as he treats himself and his folks (perhaps the girl friend too) to a little high life after his long exile from home and the bright lights. Now he wants to get going.

If he has read the little blue card "Rehabilitation Benefits" which was given to him by the discharging officer, he will go straight to 10019 101A avenue, Edmonton, and have a talk with Mr. MacLaren the Veterans' Welfare Officer or with his assistant, Mr. Goodwin But probably he has lost that card in all the excitement of getting home, so he asks the man next door (who wears a Canadian Legion button) what he should do. The neighbor tells him to drop around at the Memorial Hall and see Mr. Williams, the manager there. John does that, and is sent round to the Veterans' Welfare officer. At last he is in the groove. But remember, he could have saved himself time and trouble by studying his blue Rehabilitation card and going there in the first place.

Now he has his feet under the table with the Welfare officer, whose immediate job is to find out all the relevant facts about John. John is twenty-one years old, single, and living with his parents in the Eastwood district. He went to school in the city, going as far as Grade Ten, which he did not complete. He was employed in a small store before enlistment, but does not believe there was any future in it.

He has talked over various jobs with his friends, and thinks he could get a job up at Aircraft Repair.

"Well now, just a minute," says the V.W.O. "You mean a job minding a machine? . . . Yes. Well, that isn't quite good enough. There are tens of thousands of machine minders in this country, and when the war is over they will be looking for something else to do. What you want is to get re-established so that you don't come unstuck as soon as the war is over. Have you thought about the Civil Service? There's a preference for ex-servicemen in the Civil Service, you know."

But John doesn't relish the thought of office work all his life. He was never a good writer nor a studious type. He liked shop work at school, still likes doing things with his hands.

"Just run your eye over this list," says the V.W.O., handing John a card. It is a schedule of classes offered by the War Emergency and Youth Training organization at the old Technical School. John looks it over and asks: "What is this sheet metal course?" The V.W.O. explains that when a new house is built a lot of sheet metal goes into it in the way of cold and warm air registers, furnace jacket, eavestroughs, etc. He adds that Edmonton is short of several thousand houses, that houses are being built right along, and that there will probably be a building boom after the war. "People will always want houses, you know."

The V.W.O. then inquires about the injuries which led to his discharge. John replies that it was chiefly a matter of a broken shoulderblade, but recovery has been very good. It is still pretty stiff, but the doctors tell him that if he works himself back gently and puts up with a little discomfort he can expect to have the full use of it again.

"In that case," suggests the V.W.O., "we can give you just about the right thing for you; you can come into our training school for a few months, go at a pace that won't hurt you, and get the groundwork of the trade. At the end of that time we can expect to place you with a good firm at decent wages, and you can get the rest of your training on the job and have a life's work ahead of you."

John thinks that sheet metal looks good to him. So he makes an appointment to appear before the District Rehabilitation Board over at the Sub-district office behind the University Hospital on Saturday morning at ten o'clock.

Best Foreign Policy is Based on Candor

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The controversy between Mr. Willkie and Pravda does nothing to clarify issues. Mr. Willkie undoubtedly meant his article as a friendly gesture. He also meant it, I think, as an instrument for mollifying home critics of Russian-Polish affairs. From Moscow, however, the article looks like a movement on the part of a presidential candidate to open a matter they consider settled. Both the article and the reaction to it show the wide difference in the evaluation of the issue. The question is not considered of vital national interest to the people of the United States, who therefore feel free to discuss it in terms of general principles. The question is considered vital by the Russian government and therefore they refuse to discuss it at all.

Dorothy Thompson

The fact that the New York Times cabled the article to Russia in advance of publication did not help matters. No doubt it was cabled as a gesture to indicate the friendliness of Mr. Willkie's intentions. But in Moscow they must have regarded the cable as proof that the article was not addressed only to America, but also to the Kremlin.

It is characteristic of the Anglo-Saxon and Democratic method to believe that you can settle issues if you just sit down as friends around a table. Actually we only settle such issues that way as don't greatly matter. Whenever genuine national interest is involved we settle it, ultimately according to the power naked or veiled, that we are able to muster.

And nothing is ever more dangerous to peace, than for a country to meddle in affairs where it has neither the intention nor the power to enforce its decisions. By that method it increases distrust, and actually encourages the other side to extend its claims and enlarge its power, in anticipation of possible future trouble.

Thus a sound foreign policy must first of all be based upon recognition of the existing power structure. The effectiveness of a stand on "principles" is exactly measured by the ultimate willingness to fight for them. Neither Great Britain nor the United States is willing to fight over any western borders that Russia has so far claimed. We do a grave disservice to our Polish allies by every gesture that might encourage them to think we would. Leaving all matters of sympathy aside, the Anglo-American countries are not in the power position to do so.

The United States has no commitments in Europe whatsoever. The Atlantic Charter is not a commitment; it was made months before America entered the war, and is an expression of principles that the president, at least, would like to see observed. Our Polish friends cannot call upon it, however, because they have never been willing to accept its principles. They demand the incorporation of East Prussia into Poland, though by no stretch of the imagination can one apply to this the principle of "no change of territory without the will of the population." The Polish government is concerned with questions of power and strategical frontiers, exactly as Russia is. When Poland took the western Ukraine, Cilna, and Teschen, she was not observing Atlantic Charter principles but referring to history and national necessities, and exploiting the weakness of her neighbors. Now Poland is the weak neighbor of a strong power, and the situation is reversed.

Britain, by the treaty of 1939, is committed to restore an independent Poland with its pre-war western frontiers. When the treaty was made the British government was trying to make an alliance with Russia, and did not dream of encouraging Russia's suspicions, already aroused by Munich, that Poland might become part of an anti-Russian bloc. And the 1921 frontiers of Poland were drawn against British intentions.

The United States recognized early in the war that the conquest of western Europe, Africa, and the British Isles would bring an enemy much too close, but even when France was conquered we did not enter the war. We went to war because we were attacked and because Hitler declared war upon us.

Now, the only safe way for us to plan for the future, is to determine where our interests are primary, where they are secondary, and where they are negligible, being prepared to fight where they are primary, negotiate where they are secondary, and keep still where they are negligible.

It is only on such candid grounds that we will ever achieve a system or real collective security and end distrust.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—General Arnold did not say so in his report to the Secretary of War, but the tremendous job of expanding air forces personnel is almost finished. He might have penned a little footnote, saying, "We have pilots running out of our ears."

Drew Pearson

No cadet training bases have been closed as yet, but the Army will close approximately one dozen schools for training pilots between now and April. Air Forces officials find that the elaborate program has now produced enough competent navigators and pilots to finish the job in both theatres of war.

The tip-off to this is found in recent changes in policy of the Transport Command.

Army Transport Command, which does non-combat flying all over the world, has always preferred to take pilots from the open market, usually from the airlines. These pilots are specially trained in safe, efficient, transport flying, as distinguished from the combat type of training in the Army Air Forces.

Recently, however, Transport Command has been forbidden to take on civilian pilots, and has been forced to accept combat-trained pilots from the Air Forces.

As one Transport Command officer expressed it, "They are stuffing 'em down our throats".

Russia's Dead

Most requests from the Russians for military or civilian equipment are okayed almost immediately because of the heroic achievements of the Red Army. But the other day, one came along that wasn't.

It was a request for a considerable quantity of dry-cleaning equipment. Though at the head of the Russian list, U.S. officials turned it down.

They thought at first that the Russians were getting fancy, going back to civilian normalcy with a rush. Dry-cleaning equipment, they figured, would take up valuable space on a ship which could be used to better advantage.

Following the turn-down, the Russians appealed. They still insisted that the dry-cleaning equipment was most important and should be at the head of the list. They also explained that, because of the scarcity of textiles in Russia, they could not bury Russian dead in their uniforms, but must remove the uniforms and clean them for other soldiers.

The dry-cleaning equipment, if shipped immediately, they explained, would get to Russia this winter, in time to clean thousands of summer uniforms removed from those killed last summer and fall. These uniforms would be needed in the spring for the big campaign.

The Russian request was granted immediately.

Evil Influences

Distinguished 71-year-old Senator Dave Walsh of Massachusetts has appointed himself a committee of one to protect the purity of American womanhood. The Navy Department wants to send WAVES overseas, but Walsh, a chairman of the Senate Naval Affairs committee, says, "American women must not be subjected to the evil influences of service abroad."

The Navy wants WAVES overseas because of the manpower problem. As things stand now, the Navy is obliged to use men for clerical work at many overseas bases nowhere near war zones.

The Navy has large establishments in Puerto Rico, Trinidad, Newfoundland, the Canal Zone. These are no more dangerous militarily than New York or San Francisco. WACS are allowed to serve there, and the Navy is allowed to send civilian women there, but WAVES are barred because Dave Walsh is out to protect American womanhood.

Everybody high up in the Navy has pleaded with Congress for authority to let the WAVES go overseas, including Secretary Knox, Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of Naval Personnel, and Captain Mildred H. McAfee, director of the WAVES.

Admiral Jacobs told House Naval Affairs that Admiral Harold Stark, European Commander-in-Chief, had sent word: "Send me WAVES. I could use fifty in my London offices and replace fifty men for fighting."

The House committee was impressed and was willing to give the WAVES a break, but Walsh blocked action on the Senate side. The matter never came out for debate on the Senate floor. Walsh sat on it in committee.

Meantime, the War Department has sent 1,000 WACS to the North African theatre alone.

Red Meat

Meat producers in Mexico would like to send a million pounds of fresh beef a week to the U.S.A., but the U.S.A. decline to receive it.

There is no question of foot-and-mouth disease, as in Argentina. It is merely a technical question of whether or not U.S. Federal meat inspectors should cross the border.

Washington says "no." The law gives our inspectors no authority to operate outside the United States. Washington says Mexico will have to set up its own Federal meat inspection system before the beef can be shipped across. It is a game of tick-tack-toe, with the housewife suffering.

A new meat-packing plant has just been completed at Juarez, on the border, for the purpose of processing meat for sale to the United States. President Avila Camacho personally dedicated the plant, and its operators expected to slaughter 250,000 pounds a week, for shipment across the border.

But not a pound can come across. Actually, an old plant at the same site years ago had U.S. Federal inspection, under a special agreement, and the present operators can't see why this agreement cannot be revived.

Dr. George E. Totten, chief of meat inspection in the department of agriculture, mentions the matter with annoyance, but seems to do absolutely nothing about it. Meanwhile, we buy tons of meat from our Latin American critic, Argentina, while spurning meat from our ally Mexico.

War Chaff

From the Philippine grapevine: Puppets of Japan are called "military objectives" by Filipinos loyal to the U.S.A. Many 'military objectives" have been shot at, including puppet President Jose Laurel. . . . In teaching Filipino citizens proper respect for the Japanese Imperial forces, the Japs instruct them to bow low and toward the north (the direction of Japan). . . Suggestion for saving manpower received from various army camps: Have fewer chauffeurs sit in cars for hours waiting for commissioned officers. Officers are pretty good drivers themselves, and the WACS are excellent. . . . Major Si Bartlett, husband of Ellen Drew, the movie actress, is back from overseas. He was the first American to release a bomb over Berlin. "Berlin," says Si "is still my favorite target." . . . At Scott Field, Ill., civilians get good pay, including time and a half over 48 hours, for teaching radio operators. Meanwhile, noncoms at $66 a month do the same job, plus school guard, fire guard, barracks guard, calisthenics, barracks orderly, shoveling coal. Many of the civilians are draft-deferred.

What People Think

From the Toronto Telegram

The smashing of the C.C.F.-Socialist slate in the Toronto municipal election on Saturday should resound from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Not only did the party fail to win ground—it lost the four seats it held in City Council and Board of Education in 1943. There will not be one C.C.F. member in either of these bodies this year.

The people of Toronto made two important declarations. They destroyed the aspirations of the C.C.F. candidates and they shattered the first attempt ever made by a Federal political party to get control of civic affairs.

The Queen City has lined up with many other Canadian municipalities — Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Guelph, Hamilton, Mimico—which have repelled efforts of the C.C.F.-Socialists to capture local councils and boards. This is a tremendously significant development. It means a repudiation of the whole socialistic policy of the C.C.F. and the program of ruthless eradication of private enterprise which party members like Harold Winch and Prof. G. M. A. Grube have advocated. The unexpected vote which they received in the Ontario provincial election went to their heads and they over-estimated their popularity with the people. The results in the municipal elections show just what the people think of them, and if there were another provincial election in the near future it is quite likely that the C.C.F. leader, E. B. Jolliffe, would find himself with a far smaller following in the legislature.

An analysis of the vote in comparison with the results a year ago reveals that when the balloting is heavy the C.C.F. candidates are the losers. Approximately 38 per cent of the Toronto electors cast their ballots. This was a great improvement over the total a year ago when only 20 per cent voted. For the increase this year the Board of Trade deserves great credit in urging the people to use their franchise.

The C.C.F. candidate for the Board of Control, William Dennison, ended in seventh place in the contest. Labor-Progressive candidate, Stewart Smith, ran ahead of him by 11,000 votes, and at that Smith was defeated.

In Ward 3 one year ago, John Frank, a C.C.F. candidate, was elected an alderman at the head of the poll with 1,684 votes. J. S. Simmons was in second place with 1,396 votes. In the last election with the much heavier vote the position was entirely changed. John Frank received 1,937 votes and was defeated. Mr. Simmons' vote went up to 3,563, and Harold Fishleigh, who polled only 462 votes a year ago, received 2,521 this election and was elected.

Prof. G. M. A. Grube, the C.C.F. candidate and a Ward 1 school trustee in 1943, can now devote all his time to his professional duties. E. M. Davidson, party candidate in Ward 3 and a school trustee last year has also been left at home.

Journey Among Warriors

Mr. Chang Tells of China's Great Road-building Program; How Ling Moved Factories From Shanghai

Chapter VIII.

By EVE CURIE

On my arrival at Chungking I had felt so ignorant about China that I had decided to pay calls systematically on every informed Chinese willing to talk to me about his country. After meeting General Ho Ying-chin, I went to see one of the busiest men in the capital: the Minister of Communications, Mr. Chang Kia-ngau, by profession a successful banker. In his house I had my first elaborate Chinese dinner and came to know the refinements of Chinese hospitality. We ate complicated and delicious food. I drank some Chinese wine that smelled like a flower, in a tiny silver cup that I was supposed to empty every time one of my hosts lifted his own cup and, looking at me, said, "Gam Pai!"

It was not a big party, but something much more pleasant and flattering: a Chinese family dinner. The Minister's wife was there with his plump twelve-year-old daughter. So were his young brother and an older brother, Carson Chang, the leader of a political group which bore the unfortunate name of "National Socialist Party."

Eve Curie

Before dinner I sat alone with Mr. Chang Kia-ngau in front of a map. The stout, bald Minister explained to me in his precise voice how in the last five years, the communication system of China had been tragically affected by military retreats and by the loss of vital ports. The twelve main railroad lines of the country had fallen to the enemy with the loss of Peiping, Shanghai, Nanking and Hankow. In some places the rails had been torn up to slow down the Japanese advance.

Meantime, amidst unspeakable suffering and confusion, the Chinese soldiers and some twenty million civilians had withdrawn into the hinterland in one of the greatest migrations of history. The rescued rails and rolling stock were used later on to build new lines in central and western China. In turn, some of these freshly completed lines had fallen into Japanese hands or had been cut off. At present only three railway lines, plus a few fragmentary ones, were in operation in Free China, while three more were under construction.

INTENSIVE USE

To supplement the deficient railroads, Mr. Chang was making an intensive use of rivers. Some 1,400 government-owned junks, with a capacity of ten tons each, had since been built on the Minister's initiative, in addition to the innumerable junks owned by private companies.

Mr. Chang was responsible for the construction of highways and for the improvement of the ancient Chinese roads. The famous Burma Road, 1,600 miles long—now doomed —which had been erected in a record time of ten months, was only one among several new routes that the industrious Chinese had opened up while fighting their war. Since the beginning of hostilities a total of 10,000 miles of roads had been either built or surfaced in China by a swarm of three million coolies.

The Minister was devoting a great deal of attention to the ancient caravan route which linked China, by way of Hami, with central Russia and the Black Sea. Centuries ago, precious Chinese silks had been carried to Europe on these tracks, traveling for months on camels' backs. By the same route the Soviets had been sending a certain amount of war material to the battling Chinese.

With admirable conviction and insistence, Mr. Chang Kai-ngau said:

"Remember: it is never a waste, it is always worth while, to secure new lines of communications in Asia. We are in for a long war. In one or two years from now the United Nations might desperately need some of the highways that I want to build in Free China and in which, today, they are hardly interested."

Then, viewing the problem of China's supplies in its emergency aspect, he declared:

YEARS OF BLOCKADE

"We must prepare for several months or years of blockade. It will last until the Indian, Tibetan, or Mongolian routes can be operated, or until the Allies retake Burma and reopen the port of Rangoon. At this time only planes can help us to survive, to hold on, by bringing us oil and non-bulky war material. Transport planes are our urgent, vital need. Calcutta is eight hours by plane from Chungking. Each machine can carry four tons of cargo. On paper, one hundred planes, making trips every other day, could carry 6,000 tons of oil a month into China, which is what we used to get as an average, about a year ago, over the Burma Road."

A trip, in a shaky rickshaw, in the streets of Chungking, on a windy day. . . . I was going to learn about some of China's economic problems from Mr. Ong Wen-hao, the Minister of Economic Affairs. The interview, to my delight, took place in French, Mr. Ong, a geologist, a former university president and a former mining engineer was a graduate of Louvain University in Belgium.

UNFORGETTABLE FACE

Like Mr. Chang Kai-ngau, he was more an expert than a politician. He had an unforgettable face: lean, bony, ascetic, dark yellow in color, with a strange broken scar on the narrow forehead. Behind a banal American desk, he did not look at all like a businessman, in his long gown of dark silk. He spoke a swift, fluent French. He started thus:

"What is this war about? Primarily, Japan wants to control Chinese raw materials and Chinese trade. As a preventive measure against the modernization of China, she wants to eliminate her future industrial competitors. Had Japan not decided—as Germany did—that she must dominate her neighbors, our two countries could indeed have collaborated efficiently: Japan has steel mills, and China has the coal and iron ore for these mills. Japan produces textiles, and China is one of the three greatest cotton growers in the world. . . . But no: what Japan wildly desires is an absolute monopoly of commerce, industry, and military power in the Asiatic half of the world. It can well be said that we are waging this war, among other things, to compel Japan to recognize the necessity of international trade."

"The new factor of tremendous importance is that, if we allow Japan to consolidate her victories, if we give her the time to reorganize production in the countries she has conquered, we will have to face a rich, well-supplied enemy—thus a very strong one.

"The Japanese will find oil in Malaya, the Dutch Indies, and Burma, iron in Malaya and the Philippines, rubber in Java and Tavoy, wolframite in Burma, rice in Burma and Indo-China. China's answer must be to develop to the utmost her agriculture, her mining and her manufactures, while establishing, at the same time, a tighter control over the distribution of goods and their prices.

DEPENDENT ON ALLIES

"We are potentially self-sufficient as to foodstuffs and raw materials: We have rice, coal, iron ore and cotton, which means food, heat, arms and clothing. China's weak industrialization, however, makes her dependent on the Allies for a large number of war weapons. Oil is another serious problem. Fortunately, we had accumulated stocks on the Burma Road, before Rangoon's fall. As a substitute we produce 15,000,000 gallons of alcohol annually, which is being used by our large fleet of commercial trucks. . . . By the way, trucks are also something we badly need to import.

"Another paradoxical result of the Pacific war," continued Mr. Ong, "is that Chinese exports may become necessary to our allies. Yes; the territories from which the same materials were formerly obtained have now been lost, and the United Nations, for instance, may be particularly anxious to get our tin, mercury, wolframite and antimony. Here is one more reason for establishing safe transport lines and for working overtime in our factories and mines."

ORDER TOO LATE

I visited some of the refugee plants with the very man who had got them to Szechwan: Mr. Ling Chi-lung, the director of the Business Department of the Industrial and Mining Readjustment Administration. The word "readjustment" used in this connection was a masterpiece of understatement. It meant that, one fine morning in 1937, Mr. Ling had been summoned to the offices of the National Resources Commission and ordered to "transport immediately the Shanghai plants into western China." As he told me the story, Mr. Ling mildly remarked: "I got a little bit of a shock when I heard that." He did not mention, however, that the evacuation order had really come too late; the coastal industry was to suffer irretrievable damages, adding up to 1,465 factories or mines, $237,403,568 worth, either destroyed or lost to the enemy. In all—according to the figures printed in the official year book, which could hardly be accused of minimizing Chinese achievements—only 386 factories had been saved, 140 of them from the Shanghai area. Considering the difficulty of the task, it would be more fair of me to write that as many as 386 factories had been saved. Small as the amount was of rescued machinery—a total of 68,000 tons—it probably had not looked small at all to Mr. Ling Chi-lung when it came to carrying the hastily packed crates over thousands of miles, by junks, trains and trucks, by sampans, or on the backs of millions of coolies.

Mr. Ling—one more Chinese businessman who laughed easily—chatted with me while we drove through Chungking's suburbs on the road which followed the Kailing River. Looking at the pale water down below, he exclaimed, as if he were recollecting happy memories: "Once I lost ten thousand tons of machinery on a highway that got unexpectedly covered by the floods." I looked at him in dismay. He added jokingly: "Oh, it was all right in the end. I recovered the machines when the water receded."

MOVE FACTORY

He modestly pointed out that all he had done was to carry the plants "from here to there" and that the rebuilding of the workshops was not his own achievement. It had happened, however, that because of the continuous enemy advance, he had been called on to move a factory for the second, and even the third time. This had meant taking the machines apart again, transporting them, and reassembling them once more at their place of destination.

The first plant that Mr. Ling made me visit—a cotton mill—had left Chengchow, in Honan province, at a time when the Japanese were only forty miles away, on the other side of the Yellow River (Hwang Ho). It had travelled by train down to Hankow. Then it had been taken by steamer up the Yangtze as far as Ichang, and still further upstream by junks. Finally, after a whole year of wanderings, 1,000,000 parts, packed in 11,800 crates and cases and loaded on 360 junks, had arrived at Chungking. They had been reassembled on something that used to be a hill but that had been leveled, meantime by 1,500 coolies.

The factory was employing 3,000 women who operated 25,000 spindles. It was being kept busy day and night, with two shifts working eleven hours a day, six days a week. On the initiative of T. V. Soong, Madame Chiang's brilliant and celebrated brother, the Bank of China had spent a huge sum of money on this enterprise, making it one of the "model" factories of Free China.

"Victory Weapon"

United Nations' Resources Co-Ordinated Against Foe By Means of Lend-Lease

By PAT USSHER

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(CP)—How lend-lease has enabled the United Nations to co-ordinate their resources and put them to most effective use in the task of smashing the Axis is outlined by C. R. Stettinius in his book, "Lend-Lease, Weapon for Victory."

The book, to be published Tuesday gives a comprehensive picture of how the productive power of the Allies has been harnessed. It is authoritative because its author was administrator of lend-lease from August, 1941, until he was appointed United States under-secretary of state last September.

Stettinius says "lend-lease has been a measure of war, a program through which the United Nations have pooled their economic resources for winning victory. Lend-lease operations . . . will some day draw to a close, but we know already that the principle of mutual aid must live on."

CANADA NOT INCLUDED

Canada has not figured in lend-lease operations, all her dealings with the United States having been on a cash basis or by agreements between the two countries, as in the case of the Alaska Highway and the Canol project, both financed by the United States.

But Canadians will find some interesting references to Arthur B. Purvis, who headed the British purchasing commission established in the United States in November, 1939, until his death in an airplane accident in 1941.

Purvis is described by Stettinius as "a remarkably able and vigorous man, . . . working as hard, I believe, as any man I have ever known to get the weapons Britain needed in her critical hour."

Purvis' biggest moment came just before the fall of France in June, 1940. The British purchasing commission was instructed by the British government to deal with the emergency which the collapse of France would create. British and French purchasing commission officials went into conference and the upshot was that Britain took over all the contracts France had placed for war materials in the United States.

ALL ASSETS FROZEN

The transfer was completed at 3:30 a.m. June 17. Five hours later the treasury department froze all France's assets.

Stettinius observes that the huge expenditures by Britain—and France before her defeat—for war plant construction in the United States, so that the orders the two countries had placed could be filled, helped in the expansion of American war production later. Britain and France spent $84,000,000 for new airplane engine plants.

But by the end of 1940 Britain's supplies of United States dollars were almost exhausted. She had spent in the 16 months following the outbreak of war nearly $4,500,000,000 for war supplies from America. To meet the situation the Lend-Lease Act was passed by Congress.

TWO-WAY OPERATION

Lend-lease as a two-way operation is described clearly in the book. Britain has supplied airfields, barracks and complete accommodation for United States troops in Britain. American warships and merchant ships are repaired in British shipyards, just as British ships are repaired in American yards.

British warships have provided the bulk of the protection for American troops crossing the Atlantic. Britain has made food supplies available for United States troops in the United Kingdom.

Early in 1943 a compilation of the reverse lend-lease supplies received in Britain was made for Congress and it was estimated that it added up to 1,121,786 ships' tons, the equivalent of more than 370 full shiploads. This did not include construction materials.

ADDITIONAL BENEFITS

Similarly, the United States has benefitted from reverse lend-lease in India, Australia, New Zealand, Pacific Islands, Africa and the Middle East.

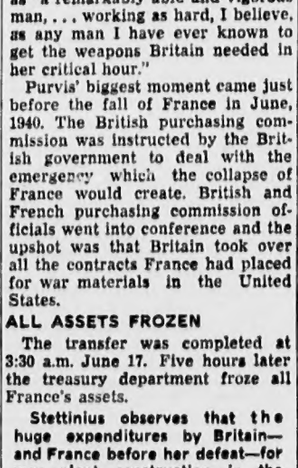

"Who can say which of us has given most of what we had to give?" he asks. "We cannot measure their lives against our dollars, or their pounds and rubles against our lives . . . all we can ask now is that all of us . . . put everything we have into winning the war in the ways that circumstances and our strength make possible. That is a combination which will balance out in victory."

Special Education Urged For Eskimos

OTTAWA, Jan. 11—(CP)—Rt. Rev. A. L. Fleming, Anglican bishop of the Arctic, expressed belief yesterday that the Canadian government can best help the Eskimo by educating him in those things that will help him in his way of living.

In an interview here, the bishop said the government should not attempt to train the Eskimo in the white man's way of life.

Eskimos at first were wary of all things brought in by white men but their confidence was gradually won. As a result the infantile death rate had been considrably reduced because Eskimo women had agreed to undergo pre-natal care and go to hospital for confinement when possible.

Many natives made progrsse along lins that improved their living conditions but attempts to adapt them completely to the white man's life and move them south had failed, the bishop said.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

AS A RESULT of their 4-2 triumph on Monday night, last season's champion Canadian Athletic Club juniors are now just one point away from the league-leading E.A.C. squad. They are scheduled to play H.M.C.S. Nonsuch on Wednesday night and a win would put them out in front. Should the Sailors come through Navy would be tied with the Clubmen for the top spot.

Coach Joe Brown's pucksters clicked in a big way during the initial two periods, even though they did have only three counters to show for their work. They faltered, however, in the final chapter when the E.A.C. swung into high gear for the first time and banged in a pair of counters in jig time.

Best performance of the night though was that of Sammy (Sparky) Milner in the E.A.C. nets. The former Stadium Flyer midget was plenty busy in the first heat, but in the second batted, booted and tossed out pucks almost continuously without one reaching the hemp.

BUSY NIGHT FOR "SPARKY"

TRUE enough some of the shooting done by the Canadians was a bit screwy. And hitting a goal post is not altogether unusual, but when one team does it four times—one player (Cyril Thomas) turning the trick twice—that is really something. Ivan Krook, the Drumheller boy, and Jim Slubb, recent arrival from Coleman, both pulled it once.

Some shots went over the net and many others were near misses, but that didn't detract from Sparky's spot in the moonlight, for he handled a powerful lot of ticketed rubber.

While Milner was kicking out around 40 in the second session alone, Alex. Cavalli, at the other end was merely a spectator. The Canuck goalie had to make only one save in the middle frame and four in the first. Even in the third when the E. A. Cee's had their share of territorial play, excepting possibly in the last couple of minutes, Sparky held out 13 to his opponent's six.

CANUCKS USE NEW CENTRE

BILL DREVER'S E.A.C. roster last night was just the same as in the Saturday affair against Navy, but the boys weren't going as they did in either of their other games. Bill was forced to use Graham Cragg and Bill Ingram on defence for almost the entire 60 minutes and he must miss the three juvenile forwards who played in the opener—Eric MacDonald, Terry Cavanagh and Ron Lane. Ab Superstein and the two Jacks—Brown and Evans—initiated some nice rushes.

Jim Slugg, who centred a line usually with Cyril Thomas and Arnold Armstrong or Arnold Payne, added punch to the Canadian attack. The Coleman boy skates and handles himself well. John Rypen, a team-mate from the mining town, 17 years old and reputed to be quite a left-winger, will be out on Wednesday night for the Navy game. Ivan Krook was moved back to defence and worked as a rule with Harvey Green. Bob Causgrove, the Canadians' ace defenceman, was off for the third period through injury.

Canucks Outplay League Leading Clubmen in Registering First Win

Canadians Topple E.A.C. Juniors 4-2

Milner Gives Fine Display Net Minding

CANADIAN Athletic Club squared accounts with the E.A.C. squad by handing the leading Clubmen a 4-2 setback in Monday night's City Junior Hockey League game at 119 Street rink. Just one point now separates these two teams.

Canucks held complete command for the first two periods, but some miraculous work by "Sparky" Milner in the E.A.C. nets, especially in the second session, held the swarming Canadians to a three goal lead. Showing a reversal in the final period, the losers battled on even terms and actually outscored their opponents two to one.

Canadians carried the play to the E. A. Cees almost continuously for the first 10 minutes and it was not until the period was half over that Jack Evans got in the first shot at the Canuck goalie, Alex Cavalli.

Graham Cragg was sent off for boarding and Canadians renewed the pressure. Superstein was held out on a breakaway, but Fleming followed with a close in one from Ken Cox which Milner kicked out nicely. Superstein again got away with nobody back, but missed the goal as Cavalli came out to meet him.

Canadians were shooting wild, but Armstrong finally clicked on a play with Thomas at 18:12, going right in on Milner.

When Jack Brown was banished for tripping Cox, Canadians returned to the attack again. Christenson was through, but lifted the puck over the goal. Fleming made the count 2-0 at 19:29 with a blazing shot from about 15 feet out.

Milner saved another hot one from Christenson before "Christy" cashed in on a three-way passing play with Cox and Thomas with two seconds left to go.

• • •

The middle period was all Canadians', the E.A.Cees having only one shot at Cavalli, this being on a play by Pete Petaske and Bill Ingram. For the rest of the time the puck was in the neighborhood of the Clubmen's goal and Milner was either kicking it out or the Canadians were missing by inches.

Thomas hit a goal post twice and Jim Slugg and Ivan Krook both accomplished the feat once, but the period ended without any change in the score.

Thomas was sent off for tripping Cragg and E.A.Cees kept on pressing, but the teams were at full strength, when Bill Ingram, after carrying the puck down with Superstein, fired from beyond the blue line to make the score 3-2.

Cragg grabbed the rubber while on the ice in a scramble at the E.A.C. goal and went off, but the defence held tight while the team was shorthanded.

Green, Evans an Slugg were also sent off, but no damage resulted.

Cubans Surprise Garden Fans

Habaneros Introduce More Than Mustachio to Garden Fans

Handlebar was the thing in good old days of John L. Sullivan. Ivan Podubny demonstrated that all the hair wasn't in the mat. Frenchy Bordagaray was safe by a whisker as a Brooklyn Dodger. Luis Sanjurjo shows what Cuban basketball player is wearing.

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—When the University of Havana basketball squad hit Broadway to tackle Long Island U. at Madison Square Garden, they said it was a case for Nelson Rockefeller, coordinator of Pan-American affairs. They asserted that booker Ned Irish should be arrested for pairing the Habaneros with the Blackbirds.

The Long Island Potatoes should be asked not to pile up the score. That wouldn't do the Good Neighbor policy any good.

Bookmakers rated Long Island 17 points the better. It was a shame to take the money. Cuban cagers might have come on the last several years, but not to this extent.

Pre-game publicity stressed the fact that the Caballeros were introducing the mustache to basketball only because a waxed mustachio is what the well-groomed young Cuban is wearing.

LATIN LEGERDEMAIN

So what happened? The Cubanolas, used to playing outdoors and unaccustomed to crowds of 17,000, hopped around like frightened rabbits until L. I. U. got off to a lead. Then Latin legerdemain quickly turned out to be the slickest ever seen in New York, where the boys pride themselves on ball-handling.

The Caballeros' passing made amazing patterns. They looked one way and chucked the other. They threw long and short passes under and over. Capt. Frank Lavernia, floor leader and play director, passed between his legs like a football center. And always they threw strikes. They had the customers diving off the shelves.

To match six-foot Irving Rothenberg, whose racket is taking the ball off the backboard, the Cubanolas trotted out six-foot two Louis Sanjurio, Pan-American high jump champion who has done six feet six in competition.

The Clear Havanas were swift afoot and ran 40 minutes.

If the Colorado Claros had been able to shoot as well as they passed, they would have lost Long Island instead of shading the Blackbirds, 40-37.

They prefer to slip under the basket and manoeuvred the defence into position where they had a 3 to 2 advantage at least 40 times. They couldn't even hit with foul shots.

NINE-MONTHS SPORT

They employed a man-for-man defence in its strictest sense, something that was considered correct 25 years ago. No matter where an L. I. U. player went, he had company, which requires a quick break, blazing speed and remarkable anticipation.

Prof. M. A. Moenck of the university is the Dr. Naismith of Cuba. He was a star at Tulane 25 years ago. The coach is Dr. Livio Morales, a stocky 200-pounder of 38 with a limited English vocabulary but a basketball background. Afterplaying at Havana, he attended coaching schools at Columbia and Northwestern.

Basketball is a nine-months sport in the Pearl of the Antilles and nine of the 11 players on the Havana varsity have been together three seasons.

Had the Habaneros been able to throw the ball in the ocean against L. I. U., it would have been a case for Cuba's protagonist of the Good Neighbor policy, not Nelson Rockefeller.

Follow R.C.A.F. Ruling

Army Clubs Unable to Play In Ordinary Puck Leagues

OTTAWA, Jan. 11.—(CP)—Announcement by defence headquarters last night that army hockey teams and players henceforth may not participate in hockey games which might lead to championship play-offs places them in the same position as R.C.A.F. teams and players, banned by an air force ruling of Jan. 6 from engaging after that date in anything but garrison and defence loop competition.

The army's hockey policy previously had been interpreted as permitting army teams and players to continue competition in their present leagues but forbidding them from entering Allan and Memorial cup playdowns.

Last night's ruling prohibits officers or soldiers of the active army from playing in any organized leagues whose championship would qualify them to play off for the Allan cup or the Memorial cup.

Like the R.C.A.F., however, army teams are permitted to play intermural games in local garrison leagues, and they may also play exhibition games against teams of the other services, providing these are within the same geographical boundaries as the command or district to which the army team belongs.

Under last night's army ruling, civilian clubs in quest of either the Allan or the Memorial cup will lose their service players.

The army's hockey policy was based upon the consideration that participation in hockey or any other sport could not be allowed to delay "the complete and earliest training" of every soldier for dispatch overseas.

Army personnel, said a headquarters statement of Jan. 7, "being either in training or in readiness to proceed overseas, cannot engage in any activity which might take them away from their stations for period of time which would be necessary if they become eligible for cup playdowns."

GARRISON CIRCUIT SLATED FOR ALBERTA

CALGARY, Jan. 11.—(CP)—Alberta Services Senior Hockey League is expected to disband at a meeting scheduled for today and immediately following the Tecumseh-Mustangs, Currie Army, and Red Deer Army representatives will immediately organize the Alberta Senior Garrison Hockey League.

The latter group, which will have no connections nor interest in Allan or Memorial cup playoffs, will elect officers from representatives of the various armed forces.

The new army ruling or the previous R.C.A.F. ruling is not expected to affect the Garrison circuit, the three clubs of which are only interested in carrying on activities to declare a championship among themselves.

PRESIDENT'S OPTIMISM HARDLY SEEMS JUSTIFIED

NANAIMO, B.C., Jan. 11.—(CP)—President Jack Ryan of the Pacific Coast Senior Hockey League announced last night the league has withdrawn from Allan cup competition but added that any team in the circuit could challenge for the cup when the playoffs begin.

Mr. Ryan reported that word has been received from defence headquarters at Ottawa that Nanaimo Army Commanders could complete the regular schedule but could not participate in any playoffs.

The league president said he does not know how that ruling will be affected by last night's announcement that Army teams may play only in garrison leagues or against teams of the other services in the same area.

Before Sea Island R.C.A.F. Seahawks were withdrawn from the league in line with air force headquarters instructions, an attempt was made to have all teams renounce Allan cup ambitions and thus allow Seahawks to continue, however, one of the six teams refused and headquarters was not asked to allow Seahawks to remain in the loop.

Under the latest interpretation by Ryan, the league could withdraw from Allan cup competition thus possibly allowing R.C.A.F. and the Army to continue, and any team in the league would still be in the position to challenge and thus keep alive hopes for the Canadian senior title.

The air force ruling put Seahawks out of the league and four airmen were prevented from continuing with Vancouver St. Regis. If Army cannot play under the latest Ottawa ruling despite the no-Allan-cup setup, the league would lose Nanaimo along with several soldiers playing for Victoria Machinery Depot.

AIR FORCE TEAM OUT OF COAST LOOP

OTTAWA, Jan. 11.—(CP)—R.C.A.F. sources said last night that the air force would not be permitted to return to competition in the Pacific Coast Senior Hockey League.

They were commenting upon a Nanaimo, B.C., dispatch quoting Jack Ryan, president of the P.C. S.H.L., as saying the league has withdrawn from Allan cup competition, but that any team in the circuit could challenge for the cup when the play-offs begin.

Sources here said the headquarters ruling upon participation by R.C.A.F. teams in organized leagues whose championship would qualify them to play off for Allan or Memorial cups remains unchanged.

C.A.H.A. TREASURER DOESN'T COMPLAIN

MIDLAND, Ont., Jan. 11.—(CP)—"That's definite enough: We'll just have to take it," said George Dudley of Midland, past president and now treasurer of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association when informed last night of the ruling by defence headquarters at Ottawa which prohibits army hockey teams and players from any hockey games which might lead to sectional championships qualifying for the Allan and Memorial cup Canadian championships.

Dudley said he believed that enough civilian teams would be left to stage the Canadian championships this season but that the C.A.H.A. would have to investigate the entire situation.

HALIFAX SENIOR CIRCUIT DISBANDS

HALIFAX, Jan. 11. — (CP) — Army and R.C.A.F. orders restricting activities of service teams brought disbandment last night of the Halifax Senior Hockey League.

A meeting of the league decided that the regular schedule will be discontinued, with the leading navy team meeting the R.C.A.F. in fortnightly exhibition games and playing outside teams in occasional exhibitions.

At the time of its breakup, the circuit was composed of Navy, Air Force and civilian Crescents. It started out the season as a four-team league, but the army had to drop out earlier.

Hockey Practice

The Canadian juveniles will hold a hockey practice Wednesday night at the Stadium rink from 9 o'clock until 10. A full turnout of team members is requested.

South Side Juveniles Win

Maple Leafs Halt E.A.C. To Take Over Leadership

Maple Leafs took over the leadership of the City Juvenile Hockey League Monday night when they handed E.A.C. its first defeat, 5-2, at the 96 Street rink. South Side gained their initial victory by beating Canadians 4-3 on the 81 Avenue ice.

Phil Joncas set the pace for the Leafs in their triumph with two goals, one of which was the winner coming early in the third period, and assisted in another.

The teams started each frame on even footing, the score being tied 1-1 at the end of the first session and 2-2 at the close of the second.

The 2-2 tie was soon broken when Joncas went through the E.A.C. defence early in the last period to beat goalie Grant DeFraine. Bud McPherson, assisted by Mike Tomas made it 4-2 after nine minutes of the canto had been played and then Joncas picked off another unassisted goal to clinch the game.

CANADIANS LOSE SECOND STRAIGHT

Frank Lappin scored two goals last night and assisted in one by John Christenson, which proved to be the winner as South Side handed Canadians their second straight setback of the young season.

South Side took an early lead on a pair of tallies by Don Robertson and Lappin in the first period and remained ahead at the end of the canto as they held Canadians to one, netted by Bob Jackson.

Holmes tied the count early in the second frame on an assist from Crook, but Lappin and Christenson tallied a pair for the winners to make it 4-2 at the end of the session.

Leo LeClair took a pass from Nick Hrynyk to bring the Canadians within one of deadlocking the score, but they were unable to overcome the South Siders' second period lead.

"Jug" McSpaden Cards 278 To Cop Los Angeles Open

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Philadelphia Monday captured the United States' richest golf championship, the $12,500 Los Angeles open, with a 72-hole score of 278.

Finishing the last 18-hole round on the Wilshire Country Club course with a blistering 66, McSpaden established a new low 72-hole score for the championship on this course. The best previously was the 281 in 1933 by Craig Wood, national champion for the duration.

Johnny Bulla of Atlanta, the Los Angeles open winner in 1941, finished in second place with a 281. He took a par 71 for his final round after starting it in a 54-hole first-place tie with Leonard Dodson of La Jolla, Calif. Dodson wound up in a tie at 283 with Craig Wood and Byron Nelson of Toledo.

Dodson played in a three-some with McSpaden and Olin Dutra of Los Angeles, and the pace was too stiff for him. The veteran Willie Hinter of Santa Monica, Calif., finished with 284, followed by Dutra with 285.

McSpaden's five-under-par performance yesterday was one of the two best rounds of the championship. Sammy Byrd of Detroit also bagged a 66 in the first round.

Athletics Hold Annual Meeting

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11—(AP)—Stockholders and directors of the Athletics held their annual meeting Monday and decided, Vice-President Roy Mack said, that the club "Should make a determined effort to quit the American league cellar this year."

"If and when we can obtain ball players to help our club," said the son of Connie Mack, "we are going out and get them. My father believes Philadelphia fans should have a better representative in the American league than the teams we have been showing them in the past.

Connie Strachan Leads Starlets To 45-19 Victory

Led by Connie Strachan, who scored a total of 13 points, Starlets trounced the Y. Bees 45-19 Monday night in a City Girls' Basketball league game played in the McDougall school gym.

The winners took command in the first quarter by counting eight to the Bees' two and were never headed. They added nine to the losers' four in the second session to make the half time count 17-6, and then went on to increase the margin by outscoring the Bees 18-5 in the third frame and 10-8 in the final.

Bernice Callaway also turned in a sparkling game, hooping eight points to back up Connie Strachan's effort; Frances Fraser, Phoebe Fostor and Dot Bolander, with six counters each, May Pringle with four and Evelyn McCormick with two were the other scorers for winners.

Kay Heim and Peggy Edwards paced the Y team with six points each and Vera Hole with five and Joan Cragg with two also counted.

LINEUPS

Starlets: Connie Strachan (13), Frances Fraser (6), May Pringle (4), Phoebe Fostor (6), Dot Bolander (6), Bernice Callaway (8), Gladys Limming, Evelyn McCormick (2), Maud McLean; total, 45.

Y Bees: Kay Heim (6), Blanche Tiviotdale, Peggy Edwards (6), Vera Hole (5), Joan Cragg (2); total, 19.

Hockey's Big 7 Remains Same

MONTREAL, Jan. 11—(CP)—Despite the fact 42 goals were scored in four National Hockey league games during the week-end, no one changed places in hockey's Big Seven. Boston's Bill Cowley and Herb Cain, who head the list with 52 and 44 points, respectively, did not earn any points, while the other players picked up a few—but not enough to change their positions.

402nd Squadron Cagers Lose

Nonsuch Triumphs 43-42 As Service Loop Resumes

H.M.C.S. Nonsuch won a close game from 402nd U.S. Service Squadron Monday night at the Navy drill hall as the second round of the Inter-Service Basketball League resumed action.

Trevor Davies, counting most of his points on long shots and Bruce Hembling showed the way for the Sailors with 19 and 14 points respectively while Larry Chatfield dropped a total of 15 through the hoop to lead the Service Squadron team.

The contest was hard-fought all the way, but Navy took the lead soon after the opening whistle and were never headed although the U.S. club came within one point of tying the count about two minutes from the final bell when the score sheet read 41-40.

The Sailors promptly dropped in a basket to make it 43-40 and with less than 40 seconds to go Service Squadron again came within one point of deadlocking the score, but were unable to overcome the winners in the remaining seconds.

Service Squadron played one of its best games of the season as they held a large portion of play, but were off on their shooting accuracy while the Navy team was shooting with very good accuracy.

LINEUPS:

Gilchrest (2); Davies (19); Mayson (4); Stewart (4); Hembling (14); Geehan; Climie; Burnett; Smith. Total 43.

402nd Service Squadron: Diamond, Little (2); Chatfield (15); Adcock (9); Withrow (7); Purtell; Aggas (2); Holstein (5); Epperson, Woodward (2). Total 42.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Jan. 11.—George M. Weiss, vice-president of the New York Yankees, insisted Monday that the development and stability of post-war baseball all will depend largely upon the farm system, despite current "schemings" for legislation against it.

Husky, fresh-complexioned Weiss—who inspected the Yank's new spring-training quarters in Atlantic City over the week-end—said that any attempt to ban or curb chain-store ball will be "farcial." The Yankee chain chief was referring to anti-farm proposals that may be considered later this month at the Chicago meetings.

Weiss emphasized, "The farm system needs no defense. However, its opponents recently have given so many distorted criticisms to the public that I think it's high time someone set the fans straight on farming—explained its true functions and value."

FARMING A NECESSITY

FARMING was a necessity in modern baseball, he said, because (1) it assures financial stability for the minor leagues; (2) it provides for proper development of minor league players, and (3) it furnishes major league clubs with a source of able replacement talent.

"Financial instability was the greatest weakness of minor league ball in the old days," he continued. "Independent operators of minor clubs too often were unable to weather the slightest depression. It was a common practice for clubs to fold up after the fourth of July—leaving the players unpaid, and leaving countless other debts.

"Too many of the minor clubs, operating on a shoestring, were unable to attract or obtain promising young players. They were unable to get good managers and coaches to develop their players. They could not provide proper food, living conditions, transportation or uniforms for the players. They couldn't give the fans good teams; so the fans didn't turn out. And the clubs folded.

OTHER CLUBS HURT

"When a team quit during the season, it hurt the est of the clubs in its league—hurt the men who had invested money in those clubs. Independent operators became reluctant to pour good money into minor clubs and so entire leagues evaporated, thus destroying sources of future talent for major-circuit clubs.

"Because of this unhappy situation, farming experiments were made in the early 1920's. They proved so successful for all concerned that gradually chain-store ball—through outright ownership of minor clubs or working agreements with them—became widespread. Minor leagues flourished, thanks to financial stability and to directional assistance. Before Pearl Harbor, 43 minor leagues were operating, and at least 80 per cent of their clubs had farm connections.

F/O. Tony Golab, Rider Grid Star, Reported Missing

OTTAWA, Jan. 11.—(CP)—F/O. Anthony (Tony) Golab, 25, who starred for several seasons with Ottawa Rough Riders, has been reported missing on active service with the R.C.A.F. overseas. His wife was notified last night.

Golab, born in Windsor, Ont., played for Sarnia Imperials in the Ontario Rugby Football Union before joining the Rough Riders in 1939.

Under the guidance of Coach Ross Trimble he developed into a strong forward passing and defensive star, and was noted as a driving plunger. With Riders he played on three eastern Canadian championship teams.

In 1941 he was named "athlete of the year" in The Canadian Press sports poll. Golab joined the air force in 1941, and later was commissioned a pilot officer. He arrived overseas about a year ago.

Last July a Sicilian dispatch from Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, mentioned that Golab was flying out of Malta and had been on operations over Sicily. In August, while stationed in Sicily, he was promoted to flying officer.

Later he was posted to a North African base. In October his R.C.A.F. unit was sent to Italy. Last May, F/O. Golab's brother, Sgt. Frank M. Golab, was reported a prisoner-of-war of the Japanese.

Move Into 2nd Place Tie

Moose Jaw Gains Revenge By Downing Flin Flon 7-3

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Jan. 11.—(CP)—Moose Jaw Vics got revenge for their 11-4 setback at Regina Saturday night by coming from behind Monday night to whip Flin Flon Bombers 7-3 and go into a second place tie with the northern Manitobans for second place in the Saskatchewan Senior Hockey League.

Vics scored five times in the third period to cinch the verdict with Bob Kennedy, one-time Alberta star, scoring three of the goals.

Other Moose Jaw counters were scored by Tommy Sanders, who netted twice, and Bill Passmore and Ron Lardner.

Bob Wiesl, assisted by Bill Cunningham, netted all three Flin Flon counters.

Flin Flon and Moose Jaw now are both five full games behind the league leading Saskatoon Navy.

LINEUPS

SUMMARY

First period: 1—Flin Flon, Wiest (Cunningham, Skinner), 14:50. Penalty, Cunningham.

Second period: 2—Moose Jaw, Sanders (Runkel), 4:10; 3—Moose Jaw, Passmore (Kennedy, Myles), 16:23; 4—Flin Flon, Wiest (Cunningham), 16:37. Penalties, none.

Soldiers Defeat Sailors by 5 to 3 Winnipeg Hockey

WINNIPEG, Jan. 11. — (CP) — Army's hockey team defeated H.M.C.S. Chippawa 5-3 here last night to wind up the present Winnipeg Services Senior League three points ahead of the Navy and R.C.A.F. Bombers.

Pte. Edgar Laprade slammed in four goals while another Lakehead star, Pte. Steve Wochy, assisted in two of Laprade's counters and scored the other Army goal. OS. Joe Bell, the league's leading point-maker, netted two for the Sailors and OS. Wally Stefaniw got the other.

League officials indicated after last night's game that an attempt would be made soon to form a garrison league to replace the present three-team loop. Teams suggested for the garrison circuit are the present Navy and Army teams and possibly a team from No. 3 Wireless School.

Army moved into a 2-0 lead in the first period, counted twice in the second with one reply from the Navy and staved off the Sailor's third period rally when Bell and Stefaniw made the count 4-3. Laprade cinched the game with less than four minutes to go with his fourth goal.

V

VICTORIA, Jan. 11. — (CP) — Stoker Hal Brown scored three goals as Esquimalt Navy defeated Vancouver St. Regis 6-2 here last night in the Pacific Coast Senior Hockey League.

Other scorers for the league-leading sailors were AB. Joe McArthur with two and AB. Murdo McKay. Jim Neilson and Larry Kwong counted for St. Regis.

TORONTO, Jan. 11—(CP)—The C.A.H.A.-N.H.L. arrangement by which amateurs may play in the major professional league without losing amateur standing is profitable to players concerned. The Toronto Star quotes Manager Paul Thompson as saying he paid the Toronto amateurs, George Grigor and Whitey Farrant, $100 each for their appearance against Leafs here the other night. In addition to the 100 seeds and by way of bonus, Thompson added his gratitude. "I figured they were willing to help us out and I felt grateful to them as well as giving them what I did." That angle must have been a hangover from mediaeval days when "gratitude" was the only reward of an amateur athlete.

TUESDAY TOPICS

Major Gen. H. N. Ganong, awarded the C.B.E. in New Year's honors, was a member of the New Brunswick rink in the 1930 Macdonald's Brier curling competition . . . Guy Patrick, brother of the more widely known hockey men, Lester and Frank, was bereaved by death of his wife last week. Guy, who has been managing a theatre in Vancouver, Wash., formerly owned the Vancouver Lions' hockey team and started many big league stars on their professional careers, including Clint Smith, Bryan Hextall and Hec Highton.

INCIDENTALLY

The former Saskatchewan men's tennis champion, Flt. Sgt. Bill Baldwin of Regina, is reported killed in air operations overseas . . . Spunk Sparrow, whose hockey with Regina and Calgary in the old Western Canada professional league is a colorful memory to old-time fans, has a son with the R.C.A.F. at Macdonald, Man. Spunk now lives in Philadelphia.

Pete Palangio, former N.H.L. player with Canadiens and Black Hawks, is coaching a North Bay and district league hockey team and trying to regain amateur standing so he can play again.

Many Careers Extended

New Major League Marks Unlikely To Be Set in '44

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP)—War and its manpower demands has extended the major league careers of numerous veterans but it is unlikely that any of them, with the exception of Mel Ott, will do much revamping of the record books.

Ott, now boss of the New York Giants, will be starting his 18th season under the big top in April and already owns the National League marks for runs batted in and homers. His home run total is 463, as compared with the 714 pounded out by Babe Ruth. His National League R. B. I. total is 1,695. Ruth also is the pace-setter in runs batted in with 2,209.

Paul Waner of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Joe Cronin, manager of the Boston Red Sox, equal Ott's 18 years in the majors but none approach the 25 years put in by Eddie Collins of the Chicago White Sox and Philadelphia Americans or Rhody Wallace, who spent his quarter century at Cleveland and St. Louis.

Waner leads the active players in at bats, with 9,316; hits, with 3,112; doubles, with 599; and triples with 189. Those marks compare with the 11,429 at bats of Ty Cobb; the 4,191 hits by the Georgia Peach; the 793 two-base blows of Tris Speaker, and the 312 triples by Sam Crawford, who played for Cincinnati and Detroit.

Ott also leads the active players in the number of runs scored, having notched home plate 1,693 times and has slugged the ball for 4,590 total bases. He's shooting at the marks of 2,244 and 5,883, respectively, both of which are the property of Cobb.

Other long-time veterans in the big time are Dick Bartell of the Giants, who will be starting his 17th season; Mel Harder of Cleveland, who will be going through his 16th, as will Bill Dickey and Rollie Hemsley, a pair of New York Yankee catchers.

Pratt Credited With Six Assists

TORONTO, Jan. 11—(CP)—Walter (Babe) Pratt, defenceman of Toronto Maple Leafs, Monday was officially credited with six assists in Toronto's 12-3 victory Saturday night over Boston Bruins. Pratt, who had previously been credited with assists on five of the Leaf goals, was given another by scorer Bill Graham after the game on a goal scored by Jack Ingoldsby. Graham also gave Elwin Morris of Toronto and Ross Kopak of Boston single assists with which they were not credited during the game.

Red Deer Rinks In Full Swing

RED DEER.—Although the start of the season was the latest in some years, members of the Red Deer Curling Club are now making up for lost time and interest is exceptionally keen. Owing to the mild weather curling did not start until Dec. 30, but six sheets are now in use. Norman MacDonald is icemaker and caretaker at the rink.

Officers for the season are: Honorary president, R. H. Blades; president, Frank Stewart; first vice-president, Douglas Gray; second vice-president, Art Lundie; secretary-treasurer, J. C. Knight; executive, E. A. Bowering, James McRobbie and Fred Smith; chaplain, the Rev. Andrew S. Wood, pastor of Leonard Gaetz Memorial church; trustees, A. R. Little, N. M. Burnett and Hugh McLevin.

Club Secretary Jack Knight reports a membership of 107, which he says is the largest membership in the last 20 years. Two rinks are entered from No. 36 Service Flying Training School, Royal Air Force, Penhold, and two from A20 Canadian Army Service Corps Training Centre, Red Deer. In addition, there are some other service men playing on other club rinks.

The first competition of the season, the annual president vs. vice-president match, attracted an entry of 24 rinks and play has also started in the club cup competition.

A. G. A. Clowes, of Calgary, has arrived to take over his duties as sheriff and clerk of the supreme and district courts. For many years he was deputy sheriff at Calgary. He lived here for some time in 1911 and 1912.

M. Millard, who has been sheriff and clerk of the court here since 1936, is leaving shortly for Calgary where he joins the law firm of Porter & Allan. He was active in affairs of the Red Deer Kinsmen, the Red Deer National War Finance Committee and the Boy Scouts.

Women at Trochu Commence Curling

TROCHU.—The ladies' curling club has started its first draw this week with five rinks competing for the Keir trophy. The following are the skips chosen: Mrs. P. T. Rutherford, Mrs. M. McArthur, Mrs. H. Mealing and Mrs. T. Kelly. The men's curling club has started the draw for the Crown Lumber Company cup with 10 rinks. Skips are J. Frere, L. Frere, P. T. Rutherford, J. Findlay, R. Houchin, R. Speelman, W. H. S. Garrick, E. Fiala, M. McArthur and J. P. Ferguson.

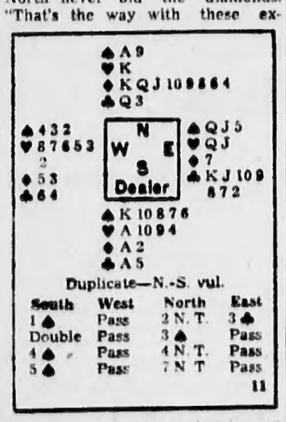

The January meeting of the St. Paul's Ladies' Guild was held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. R. H. Slipp. It was decided to hold a supper in the church Jan. 17 with a concert and social evening to follow.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. McLaughlin spent a few days with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. McLaughlin in Edmonton. Mrs. E. Curling returned to Vancouver last week after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Lynch. Maria Mathew left for Fort Kent after visiting her mother here. Mr. and Mrs. E. Fortier and Mrs. R. Langshaw visited Dr. J. Fortier in Edmonton last week.

McKenney On Bridge

Bob Hawk of radio quiz fame dropped in one evening at the Hotel Astor in New York, and he certainly selected an interesting hand to kibitz. When the hand was over, Bob wanted to know why North never bid the diamonds. "That's the way with these ex-

North and South were using the Blackwood slam convention, which was ideally suited to this hand. North's bid of four no trump asked his partner for the number of aces in his hand. With one ace the response would have been five diamonds; two aces, five hearts; with three aces in his hand, South made the correct response of five spades. Now North could count 13 tricks—two spades, two hearts, eight diamonds and one club and therefore his jump to seven no trump was correct.

"Simple when you know all the answers," said Hawk. "But I still want to know why he didn't bid diamonds." North was anxious to conceal the diamond suit. In tournament bridge it is desirable to play a hand in no trump rather than in a suit, since no trump counts more; also, honors do not count in tournament bridge.

MUNDARE—The former Red and White store which was owned by A. J. Pylypchuk was taken over by a co-operative several months ago. At that time the co-operative consisted of 300 members and this number has increased by another 50. Bashaw Brothers Killed in Action

BASHAW—Two sons of Mrs. L. Northey of Bashaw were both killed in action with the Canadian army in Italy, according to word received by their mother.

Arthur Eric Northey, of the Seaforth Highlanders, was killed Dec. 11. He was wounded at the time of the Sicilian campaign, receiving shrapnel wounds in the back and legs, and had rejoined his regiment to fight in Italy. He was 32 years old.

Lloyd Henry Northey, of the 48th Highlanders, was killed Dec. 30. He took part in the fighting in North Africa and Sicily. He was 30 years old.

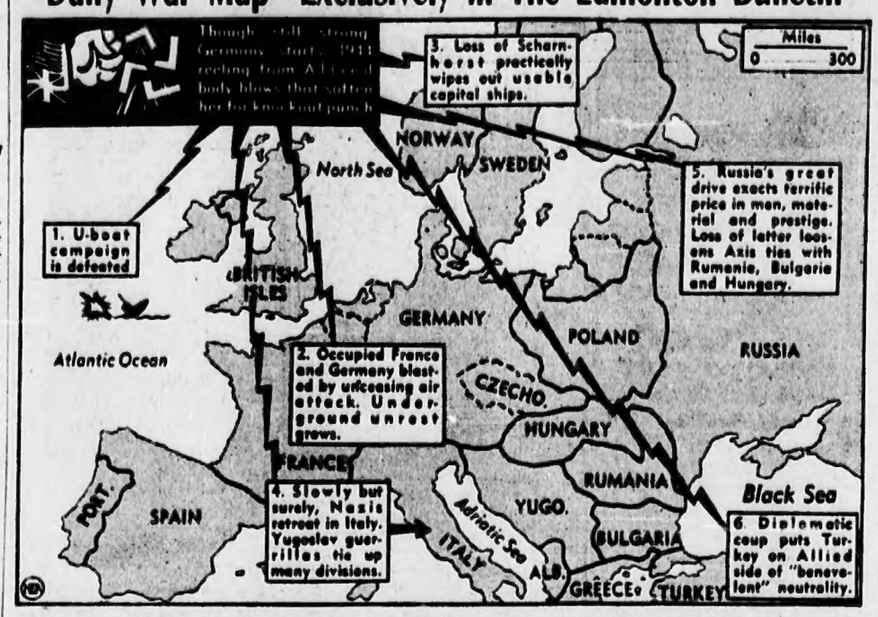

The brothers enlisted and trained together in the Edmonton Fusiliers. They went overseas in Sept., 1942, and until Feb., 1943, both served in the same unit. They were transferred to different units and were both fighting in Italy.

Besides their mother they are survived by four brothers, WO. William Northey, of the United States army; Mel, of Millet; Tom, of Donalda, and Osborne of Bashaw; and one sister, Mrs. Eric Lowther of Bashaw.

Storage Charges On Grain Studied

OTTAWA, Jan. 11—(CP)—Canadian wheat board members headed by George McIvor of Winnipeg, their chairman, yesterday conferred with Trade Minister MacKinnon at what officials termed a "regular meeting." It was understood storage charges for grain in western county elevators were among the subjects discussed. The board has favored reduction of the charge from 1-50th of a cent a bushel a day to 1-60th, but this rate has not met with unanimous approval among elevator companies.

15 Canadians Captured in Ortona Fighting Freed as Tables Turned on Nazi Captors

By DOUGLAS AMARON

WITH THE CANADIANS IN ITALY, Jan. 11.—(CP)—Captured in street fighting for the Adriatic coast town of Ortona late in December, 15 Canadian soldiers were released by a patrol from their own battalion after several harrowing hours in a house with the Germans.

The enemy, commanded by a youthful parstroop lieutenant, treated the Canadians well and, when the tables were turned by the arrival of the patrol, surrendered their weapons and left the house as prisoners of their erstwhile captives.

CSM. John Elaschuk of Turin, Alta., pieced together the story as he enjoyed a rest at company headquarters. Elaschuk, promoted from sergeant only Saturday, was getting his first respite from forward company duties since the Canadians entered the Mediterranean fighting.

TOOK OUT SNIPERS

"An hour after Christmas dinner we went back into action and during the night took out two sniper posts," said the slim N.C.O.

"At about 6 a.m., after we had consolidated our positions, about 32 Germans moved in on us and captured our flanking section."

Elaschuk had a rendezvous with the corporal in charge of this section, and, not knowing he was a prisoner, made his way through holes in buildings to the appointed spot. Pte. Wilfrid Haimes of Vancouver was with him, following a few yards behind.

"I crossed the yard and went through the gate to join a group of men I thought were the corporal's section and the first thing I knew three German automatics and a machine-gun were pointing right at me," Elaschuk said.

OTHER PRISONERS

They led him to a house where the other Canadians already were being held prisoner. The soldiers there included Cpls. Alex Ray, Vancouver; T. R. Plant, Calgary; Ptes. Stan Simon, Creston, B.C.; George Cunningham, Joussard, Alta., and V. A. Murphy, Vancouver.

There were twice as many Germans in the building as Canadians and only two loaves of bread. The only order was that the men keep quiet and muffle their coughs.

None of the Germans was more than 24 and Elaschuk said one of them was "not a day over 17." Their officer, who spoke French and English, was about 20.

The Germans tried hard to pump information from the Canadians, using indirect methods which had little effect on the wary westerners.

NUMBER INCREASES

The number of Canadian prisoners, only seven or eight at the start, increased to 15 as it became lighter. When Elaschuk was captured two Germans had taken Haimes to another house and asked him where his section was quartered.

"I told them I didn't know," said Haimes. "After they had finished with me they took me back to the street. We passed house and one German wanted to throw a grenade through the door but the other stopped him, shone a flashlight in instead.

"Just then a gramophone in the house started playing (it was a record from the opera 'Carmen') and the door opened. A corporal came out and the German grabbed him. Then they went in and brought out the others."

The Canadians were brought together in the same house and 15 were in one small room with a guard which varied from six to eight Germans. Other enemy troops were in upstairs rooms overlooking the street.

CANADIAN ATTACK

"About 12:30 p.m., the Canadians went into the attack and were coming closer to our building," Elaschuk said. "The men took me aside and told me all the men must keep very quiet.

"Then he went upstairs and as soon as he had gone the six Germans in the room turned their weapons over to me—all but the youngest who held on to his automatic until a Jerry sergeant-major took it away from him."

Things began to happen fast. The Canadians in the street let loose everything they had at the house and Elaschuk said "All you could see in the room was feet flying as the Jerry soldiers tried to get away from the firing."

Elaschuk and the other Canadians started shouting and only their yells prevented them from being mortared. Some of the prisoners and the Germans, who by this time were prisoners of the Canadians, started across the street. The Germans upstairs opened fire, killing a Canadian and wounding the German sergeant-major.

KILLED IN SCRAMBLE

The German officer came downstairs to surrender and a German upstairs fired after him wounding a Canadian Bren gunner. In the scramble which followed the officer was killed.

It was not very clear what happened after that for, said Elaschuk, "It was just a case of Germans and Canadians scrambling from one building to another until we reached our headquarters."

"The Jerries were just as anxious to get away from that place as we were and they were genuinely glad to be our prisoners."

Before the afternoon ended 20 prisoners had been brought in and four Germans killed. Elaschuk returned to action that night and helped to round up the eight enemy of the original 32. Three of them were killed and the other five taken prisoner.

Offices Hard Hit

Reconnaissance Photos Show Extent of Berlin Devastation

By GLADWIN HILL

LONDON, Jan. 11.—(AP)—So many German government buildings—from Hitler's private chancellery on down—were destroyed or damaged in the first six R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. raids of the battle of Berlin it is doubtful that the Nazi war administration could have been continuing from the capital even a month ago.

A list of destroyed or damaged places issued by the air ministry yesterday on the basis of reconnaissance photographs up to Dec. 21, includes, besides the Fuehrer's offices:

Offices of Reichsmarshal Herman Goering.

The foreign office, the treasury, the ministries of justice, transport, food and agriculture, armaments and munitions, education, the home office and the army records office.

60 PER CENT. DESTROYED

In the central Tiergarten district, packed with government offices, more than 60 per cent. of the buildings were destroyed. In the midst of the government centre district there were 628 acres of damage—an area nearly as large as the whole of central London.

The total building-covered area in the "built-up" section of Berlin is reckoned by the air ministry at about 8,000 acres.

At least 17 per cent of the actual building area in the "built-up" section—an acreage more than half covered with buildings—was destroyed in the first six raids, the air ministry said.

That 17 per cent—doesn't include a square foot of open space—is the rock bottom minimum based on small scale photographs taken from around 30,000 feet.

More detailed pictures when the weather is clearer are expected to show much more damage.

OPERA HOUSE DAMAGED

In addition to the blows struck at official quarters, the Kroll opera house, meeting place of the Reichstag since 1933, has been damaged by fire. Berlin's main shortwave studios were hit and 236 military huts were destroyed.

Four gasworks, including the city's largest, were hit. Seven waterworks, five trolley depots and the main postal depots were damaged. The Lehrer and Potsdamer railroad stations were gutted.

Ninety-eight identified industrial plants were bombed including the great Rhein-Metall Borsig armament factory which makes everything from tanks to torpedoes—one third of the Alkett car assembly plant was gutted and the Siemens electrical plant, blasted last summer, was further destroyed.

PLANE PLANTS HIT

The Dornier-Heinkel airplane parts plants and the Argus and BMW airplane engine factories hit.

All this damage was done in the rain of 9,000 tons of bombs up to Dec. 16. Since that time, four more raids have added 5,000 tons of bombs and destruction.

Italo Party Chiefs Still Oppose King

NAPLES, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Italian political party leaders told members of the Allied control commission in a series of individual conferences yesterday that they were determined to continue their opposition to King Victor Emmanuel until he is forced to abdicate. Members of the control commission have been in Naples for two days.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from Merrick Drug Stores or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

New Floods Occur In Calgary Area

CALGARY, Jan. 11.—(CP)—New floods broke out west of Calgary last night at Shouldice, and Calgary firemen had occasion to use their boat for a second time to rescue residents from water-surrounded homes.

Two families residing a short distance north of Shouldice bridge, the Nelsons and Ericksons, were taken from their homes by firemen.

However, while firemen were at the scene, the water broke through the ice jam near the bridge, and the river level behind the ice pack dropped six feet within a short time, as the water was released. Chief McKinnon stated he believed the danger in that area had passed, temporarily at least.

37 More Bodies Found in Disaster

CAPE MAY, N.J., Jan. 11—(AP)—Thirty-seven more bodies of victims of the collision of a navy patrol boat and a merchant vessel 60 miles southeast of Cape May Thursday night have been recovered, it was learned yesterday, bringing the total of known dead to 67. The patrol boat, which sank, was the St. Augustine, formerly a palatial yacht. The merchant vessel has not been named.

Blockade Runner Scuttled by Crew

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 11—(AP)—A German blockade runner was scuttled by her crew on Jan. 3 while being chased by American and Brazilian navy and air forces and 145 crewmen have been made prisoners of war in a camp at a northeastern base in Brazil, the newspaper O Globo reported yesterday.

The newspaper said this was the same ship which an official announcement on Saturday stated was sunk by joint action of United States and Brazilian navy ships and planes whil en route to Japan from Germany with contraband.

O Globo added the ship was destroyed somewhere between Ascension Island and the African coast and was the third blockade runner sunk while attempting to carry war supplies from Japan to Germany in recent months.

Trustees Ask Government Take 50 Per Cent Schools Costs

Establishment Provincial Salary Schedule Is Urged For Teachers In Alberta

The Alberta government has been asked by the Alberta School Trustees' Association to take over 50 per cent of the total cost of operation of public and high schools in the province, it was revealed here Tuesday. The request was contained in one of 30 resolutions passed at last November's trustee convention, and submitted to the government last week.

Full text of the resolution calling for the 50 per cent share in education costs, reads as follows: "Resolved that the government of the province of Alberta should provide 50 per cent of the total cost of operations of the public and high schools within the province, grants being apportioned on the basis of financial needs of any particular school board."

The proposal was submitted to the trustees' convention by trustee boards of the school districts of Lac Ste. Anne, Crossfield, Sedgwick and Bowden.

A delegation from the School Trustees' Association, headed by Percy G. Davies, K.C., Clyde, and consisting of H. E. Spencer, A. E. Ottewell, Rudolph Hennig, J. Pilon, A. G. Andrews, general secretary, and S. Bruce Smith, K.C., met with education department officers and submitted the resolutions. Hon. Solon E. Low, minister of education; Dr. G. Fred McNally, deputy minister; Dr. W. H. Smith, chief inspector of schools, and V. H. Shaw received the delegation.

"The views of the school trustees' association were sympathtically received, and consideration for the proposals put forward was promised," Mr. Andrews said, in making public texts of the resolutions.

Another request put forward by the delegation asked that for the duration of the war the Alberta school year should end on or about July 15, and should begin on or about Oct. 1. The present year, as amended at the last session of the legislature, ends July 31 and a new one commences some two months later.

ANOTHER MOTION

A third resolution put before the government asks for establishment of a provincial salary schedule for teachers. "Each successive year proves the futility from an educational point of view of the continued competition between school boards to attract teachers by salary increases," and urges that the government establish a provincial wage schedule "without delay" to cover towns, villages and rural areas.

Further resolutions submitted asked for an opportunity for all children, "regardless of their location or the financial position of their parents," to have the advantage of a full high school education; that vocational training be expanded in schools of the province, and that a more equitable method of taxation for educational purposes be substituted for the land tax.

A resolution submitted to the trustees' convention by Vermilion branch of the association, which stated that the association should go on record as opposed to a provincial sales tax, also was passed on to the government.

Charles Munton, Auctioneer, Dies At City Home

Long-time resident of this city, Charles Munton, well-known auctioneer and businessman, died Tuesday morning at his home at 10224 99 street. He was 56 years old.

Mr. Munton first came to Edmonton in 1904 from Cromer Eng. He had been in the auctioneering business since 1919. He had an outstanding record as an auctioneer, and was distinguished by reason of having sold more horses by auction than any other man in the province or in the entire Dominion. He was an active supporter of the Kinsmen Milk-for-Britain fund and other similar war relief organizations.

He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. A. Cload, Mrs. Ralph Olson, Mrs. Jack McCloy, all of Edmonton, and Nursing Sister Lt. M. Bridges, R.C.A.M.C. overseas; his mother, Mrs. E. Scott of Cromer, England; one half-brother, W. Scott of Edmonton, and one sister in the Channell Islands.

A funeral service will be held Thursday at 2 p.m. from Howard and McBride's funeral chapel. The Rev. Canon A. M. Trendell will officiate. Burial will be in Edmonton Cemetery. Howard and McBride funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

Disease Reveals Increase in City

The incidence of communicable disease cases reported to the city health office increased sharply during the week ended Jan. 10, according to a statement filed Tuesday with the city commissioners by Dr. G. M. Little, city medical health officer.

Chief increases were recorded in the number of chickenpox and measles cases reported. There was also an increase in the number of scarlet fever cases compared with the previous week.

The comparative statement of cases reported reads:

	This Week	Last Week
Chickenpox	96	49
Measles	70	56
Mumps	1	4
Scarlet Fever	16	10
Septic Sore Throat	—	2
Whooping Cough	1	1

THE QUESTION

It's 1944, and Leap Year. Not that it matters, very much—or does it? However, what do you think about it?

THE ANSWERS

ANNE LUCHKO, waitress: All through this year I'm going to have my own way! It's "Ladies' Year' and I think that all of us should realize that.

• • •

BARNEY MORRISON, jeweller: I think it's up to the ladies. They only get one chance in four years to tell the boys how they expect it to be done.

• • •

RUBY LINDBERG, waitress: I don't believe in the old superstition where a girl up and proposes. I'll let my friend take his own sweet time to pop the question. And he has an extra day to do it in (if he wants to!)

Building Permits Off to Good Start

Edmonton, second ranking city in the Dominion for the total of construction in 1943, got away to a flying start this year when the United States Engineers took out a permit Tuesday for $1,314,000, and the department of national defence one for $13,000.

The permit taken out by the United States Engineers covers work done and in course of construction at Edmonton's airport. It covers the erection of 53 buildings of various types.

The department of national defence permit covers the erection of a frame and asbestos canteen on the campus of the University of Alberta.

Mattress Burns In Hotel Room

Fire said to have been caused by a lighted cigarette, burned a mattress and bedding in a room at the New York hotel occupied by Robert H. Bower, and damaged one wall, at 5:10 a.m. Tuesday. Two halls responded to the call.

Assister by other guests of the hotel, the desk clerk hauled the burning mattress from the room, but not before one wall was burned. The loss is covered by insurance.

Three other calls were answered by city firemen over Monday, two of them found to be false. Fire in a house at 81 street and 103 avenue, at 3:57 p.m. Monday, was the only other call.

Larson, on operational duty, has been overseas for two years, the first of which was spent on instruction duty. The son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Larson, 11232 94 street, he was born and educated in Edmonton, and attended Victoria High school. He enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in January of 1941, and went overseas in the fall of the same year.

Hairy Hill Man Accident Victim

Wasyl Szekla, resident of Hairy Hill, died in Willingdon hospital Monday night, as the result of an accident which R.C.M.P. believed to be of the hit-and-run type. He was 72 years old.

Szekla, according to R.C.M.P., was walking home, about 11 p.m. Sunday, and when about two-and-a-half miles north of Hairy Hill, was struck by the unknown vehicle.

The injured man was not located until 3 a.m. Monday, when he was removed to the Willingdon hospital.

Dr. J. Yak, coroner, Vegreville, was notified, while the Andrew detachment, R.C.M.P., conducted an investigation, which is continuing.

A-R-O-U-N-D THE TOWN

Four private garages were reportedly broken into and entered Sunday and Monday, city police stated Tuesday morning. In no case did anything appear to have been stolen.

A 1939 model, station wagon, owned by James Gbson, U.S.E.D., was taken from 102 avenue and 100 street, between 6:30 and 7 p.m. Monday according to city police. The vehicle bears license No. 16-4304-C.

His Honor Judge E. D. Woodburn, judge of the district court of the Cariboo judicial district, British Columbia, arrived in Edmonton on his way to Pouce Coupe where he will hold court sittings. A mixed docket of criminal and civil cases are listed for disposal.

G. O. Sutherland, Edmonton, has passed third-year examinations in medicine at the University of Toronto, according to results recently released by university authorities.

Acting head of the history department of the University of Alberta, Prof. Morden H. Long has been named Alberta's representative on the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada.

Mary Shannon, officer in charge of the women's department of the Unemployment Insurance and Selective Service Commission office of Calgary, arrived in Edmonton Tuesday to confer with Mrs. Rex Eaton, assistant national director of employment.

Elmer E. Roper, M.L.A., called east to attend a meeting of the advisory committee to John Atkins, Dominion administrator of printing and publishing, will leave Tuesday evening by airplane for Toronto. The committee is scheduled to meet on Thursday.

Peter Hellum, 18-year-old son of P. Hellum, Warspite blacksmith, struck on the head by a falling tree, late Saturday, at the Nero lumber camp, where he was employed, was rushed to General hospital, Edmonton. Admitted at 9:30 p.m. Saturday, the youth's condition was described as "fair."

The following have been appointed to the grand council of the Legion of Frontiersmen representing the Corps of Imperial Frontiersmen in Canada: Maj.-Gen. H. D. B. Ketchen, C.B., C.M.G., R.O., and Lt.-Col. A. P. Gower Rees, M.C., L.M. S.M., M.A., D.C.L. As of Jan. 1, 1944 the Alberta Provincial Command will become the Sixth Canadian Frontiersmen's Brigade. Edmonton squadrons will parade at City Police lecture room at 20:30 hours Wednesday, Jan. 12, for continuation of training. Dress: mufti

New Manager H.B.C. Store Has Widespread Knowledge Of Western Canadian Public

By STANLEY WILLIAMS

With an extensive knowledge of merchandising covering Alberta, British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, H. S. A. Johnson, newly-appointed manager of Hudson's Bay Company retail store in Edmonton, brings to the city a comprehensive understanding of buying tastes of the Western Canadian public.

"Harry" Johnson, as he is known to business associates from Vancouver to Winnipeg, arrived Monday from Saskatoon, to succeed Clare N. Chubb as local manager of "The Bay." The latter leaves this week for Victoria, B.C., to take over management of the H.B.C. store there.

Born at Golden, B.C., where his father was connected with the Canadian Pacific Railway, Mr. Johnson moved to Vancouver in 1907. He attended public and high schools and the University of British Columbia, taking an arts and science course at the university.

He began his business career in Vancouver in the main branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, was transferred to the bank's Seattle branch, but returned to the coast city in 1926 to work for the firm of I. Claman Ltd., a men's clothing store.

In 1927, he began his career with the Hudson's Bay Company, starting as a salesman, in the men's clothing department of the Vancouver store in April. Later in the same year, he went to Calgary as manager of the men's and boys' clothing departments in the company store there. After six years at that post, he was transferred to Winnipeg, where he was appointed to a similar position in the H.B.C. organization.

Referring to his Edmonton appointment, Mr. Johnson said, "I like the city very much, and am glad to be back. I've made 14 visits here in the 17 years I have been stationed in Alberta, so it's almost like coming home."

First coming to Edmonton in 1934, Mr. Johnson was merchandise manager of "The Bay" here for three years and then was named merchandise manager of the company's Calgary store.

In another three years, he was awarded further promotion, and went to Winnipeg as divisional merchandise manager. In 1941, he was appointed to the store managership at Saskatoon, where he was active in business and community endeavors until his appointment to head the H.B.C. retail store here.

13 YEARS IN ALBERTA

Of the last 17 years, Mr. Johnson has spent a total of 13 in this province, nine and one half years in Calgary and three and one-half in Edmonton. In that time he has gained a wide knowledge of business and merchandising conditions in Alberta, as well as acquiring a host of business friends from border to border of the province.

Probably the tallest store official in the west, Mr. Johnson is six feet three inches in height. Athletically inclined, he is a former star basketball centre on University of British Columbia teams, as well as a well-known Vancouver baseball player.

Golfing and fishing are Mr. Johnson's hobbies, to which he jocularly said travelling might be added, in view of the number of moves he has made since joining the H.B.C. staff. Now keenly interested in hockey and baseball, he won small block letters at the University of British Columbia for basketball prowess.

PLAYED FIRST BASE

While active in baseball, he played first base position with the Mission team in Vancouver senior league, at the U.B.C., he also played English rugby.

In Saskatoon, he was a member of the Rotary Club, a Board of Trade director, and was active in Canadian Red Cross, Navy League and Family Welfare Association activities. He was in addition an associate director of the Saskatoon Exhibition Association.

He married Miss Evelyn Ramsay of Vancouver, whose father was connected with the well-known Ramsay Biscuit Company of that city. There are three children in the family, Bill, 14, Doreen, 10, and David, two years of age.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will live at 9818 107 street, the former home of Mr. Chubb. Having arrived Monday, the family is staying at the Macdonald hotel until residence is taken at the 107 street address.

Auto Hits Bridge: Dislocates Ankle

Carl Hartson, 8220 Jasper Avenue, received a dislocated ankle and other injuries, when the auto he was driving crashed into Latta Ravine bridge, 91 street and Jasper Avenue, at 9:45 p.m. Monday. Hartson was taken to the Royal Alexandra hospital by Smith's ambulance, where he was found to have received slight abrasions to his nose, right cheek and forehead, as well as the ankle injury. The auto was extensively damaged.

The auto, at a speed estimated between 30 and 35 miles an hour, swerved sideways as it approached the bridge, police were told by LAC. Bond, No. 3 "M" Depot, a pedestrian.

The car's right rear fender hitquarters the south side of the structure, he said, and then swerved across the bridge, jumped a two-foot curb, and struck the steel fencing on the north side. Two railings were broken off in the impact. The auto came to a stop with the front end across the sidewalk and against the railings.

Police arrived on the scene to find Hartson still in the auto, and with the assistance of LAC. Bond, the driver was taken to police headquarters.

Killed in Action

Pte. Robert Leverington, of 12623 69 street, who was killed in action in Italy Dec. 17 while serving with the Seaforth Highlanders, according to word received by his wife.

Five Soldiers From This City Die in Action

Five Edmonton soldiers have been killed in action in Italy according to word received here by relatives, it was learned Tuesday.

Pte. Douglas McPherson, of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment, who enlisted two years ago, was 35 years old. He had been serving overseas since last August. Wounded in Sicily he spent five months in hospital, and had just rejointed his unit in Italy. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. McPherson, 11830 92 street, and two brothers, Cpl. James and Pte. Archie also are with The Loyal Edmonton Regiment, and have been overseas for four years.

He is also survived by his wife and three children of 10262 109 street, and three sisters, Mrs. E. Hilker, Mrs. A. Clare, who has lost a son in the R.C.A.F. and Mrs. A. Reid, whose husband is also serving with The Loyal Edmonton Regiment.

Pte. Martin Ullman, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Ullman, of 9332 104 avenue, was 23 years old. He enlisted in 1939 and went overseas with the Loyal Edmonton Regiment later in the same year. He took part in the Spitzbergen raid and fought throughout the Sicilian campaign.

Memorial services will be conducted Tuesday at 7:45 a.m. for Pte. Ullman in the Sacred Heart church. Two other brothers are in the armed forces and a third was in the army and recently discharged.

Sgt. Gordon Warring was killed in action Dec. 18 in Italy. He was the son of Mrs. William Warring, 11527 86 street.

FOUGHT IN SICILY

Pte. Leslie Jinks, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Jinks, 11828 54 street, was 23 years old. Enlisting with the Edmonton Fusiliers he was transferred to The Loyal Edmonton Regiment and went overseas Oct., 1942. He was wounded in Sicily last August but had re-joined his unit in Italy.

Pte. Robert Leverington was the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Leverington, 12623 69 street. His wife also lives in Edmonton. He enlisted in Sept., 1942, with the Seaforth Highlanders and went overseas last March. He was 22 years old.

A brother, William, is in England with an anti-tank unit and three other brothers are in Edmonton.

WO. Frank Campbell Bushfield, former resident of Edmonton, has been killed in flying operations in Ireland, according to word received by his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Frank Bushfield, now resident at Gibson's Landing, B.C.

Tax pre-payments for 1944 continue to top the payments of 1943 with collections up to Monday totalling $386,582.34 compared with $377,854.10 for the same period of last year, according to a statement issued Tuesday by Thomas Walker, city assessor. Large payments made on Monday include: Canadian National Railways, $73,782.45, and Singer Sewing Machine Co., $3,800.

Kiwanis Home Names Officers For This Year

The monthly meeting of the Kiwanis Children's Aid Society at the Kiwanis Children's Home Monday night elected H. W. B. Douglas to serve as chairman of the home in 1944, in succession to W. A. Bailey.

Other officers elected are: I. Telmer, vice-chairman; H. Griffith, 2nd vice-chairman; Walker Blake, secretary, and A. M. MacDonald, president of the Kiwanis club, honorary chairman of the home.

The new board of directors of the home includes Sid Easton, J. Kienapple, L. Larsen, M. Ross, M. Hamilton, Dr. Leslie McIntyre, J. A. Christiansen, George Hagelstein, Norman Castle, H. Forrester, John Monroe, S. MacDougall, Walter Sprague, L. McIntyre, George Hayward, R. M. Moore and F. Thyne.

The meeting was opened by Mr. MacDonald, who turned it over to the new chairman, H. W. B. Douglas, after the election.

The increased activities and admissions during 1943 were reviewed, after which the membership voted an expression of thanks to retiring chairman W. A. Bayley and W. M. Fawcett, secretary-treasurer, for their work in 1943.

NEW MEMBER

At the luncheon meeting of the club Monday, a new member, Paul C. Seddicum, was introduced by H. Brock Smith. Mr. Seddicum is United States vice-consul in Edmonton. He was welcomed into the club by the president.

Mr. MacDonald also paid tribute to Kiwanis member Fred Burton, whose son, FO. Gordon Ralph Burton, was recently awarded the D.F.C. for gallantry in action.

Members were given the opportunity of reviewing 1943 activities which took the form of the annual financial report, also the 1944 budget read by club secretary William M. Fawcett, these reports being unanimously endorsed by the members.

President Alex MacDonald occupied the chair during the first business part of the luncheon. The Kiwanis Children's Home committee headed by William A. Bayley, conducted the latter half and major portion of the meeting.

At this point Mr. Bayley gave a most optimistic review in spite of difficulties in maintaining a competent administrative staff during 1943, quoting several interesting and enlightening figures and facts to members.

53,786 MEALS

Mr. Bayley stated that during the past year the home served 53,786 meals to its young charges and the cost of maintenance per child is $27.30 per month.

Mention was also made that 15 per cent of the children cared for were soldiers' dependents.

The chairman was particularly appreciative of the generous support by Edmonton citizens of the now well-known "Kiwanis Apple Day", also the help given by those not directly associated with the Kiwanis Club, among those mentioned being the "Stagette Club", Mickey Ryan (who entertained the children at his St. Albert farm), Dr. J. Folinsbee and the United States Air Corps.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Kiwanis Club, headed by Mrs. Arthur Burrows, were also extended sincere thanks for their help and co-operation during the entire year.

Mr. Bayley terminated his report by thanking the Home committee for their co-operation and assured the club the Kiwanis Home was in a fine, healthy state for 1944.

Labor-Progressive Convention Opens

The first Edmonton Council convention of the Labor-Progressive Party opened Monday night at the Queen's Hotel with Charles T. Roberts, city executive committee member, acting as chairman.

Following the report of the credentials committee, Mr. Roberts reported for the executive committee on the party's activities since September and gave the committee's suggestions for the 1944 program to be considered by the convention.

The nominations committee reported the following nominations for membership on the city executive: Jan Lakeman, Mrs. M. M. Crowe, H. G. Swanson, Charles T. Roberts, C. Sievers, S. C. Gee and John Rawliuk.

James McPherson and Margaret Mills Halina were nominated as provincial candidates for the Edmonton riding.

The results of the balloting will be announced Tuesday. Also scheduled for the second day of the conference is the voting on resolutions prepared by the various committees which met Monday night.

Five Below Zero Is Recorded Here

Overnight minimum temperatures again hit the below-zero mark in Edmonton Monday night when the official reading of frost was five degrees below zero. Fog which enveloped the city most of the day Monday continued throughout the night, but had nearly disappeared by 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, when the temperature had risen to four degrees above. Monday maximum temperature was six degrees above but a little warmer weather is forecast for Tuesday.

Alaska Highway Traffic Board Offices Moved

Offices of the Alaska Highway Traffic Control Board, which have been in the Massey Harris Bldg. on 100 street, Tuesday were moved to 405 Tegler Bldg.

Maj. J. H. Mobberley, D.C.M., E.D., is Canadian representative on the control board with Maj. Freeman C. Bishop, the U.S. representative.

Office space occupied until now by the Alaska Highway Traffic Control Board will now be occupied by the Regional War Labor Board.

Pianist Wins Appreciation For Artistry

Max Pirani, who already occupied an enviable position in the front rank of favorite pianists with music lovers here, further entrenched himself when he appeared in recital Monday night at Convocation Hall, University of Alberta, under the joint auspices of the Edmonton branch of the Alberta Music Teachers' Association, and the university's extension department.

Although he has given several recitals his popularity, far from decreasing, has shown a progressive increase, which is a test that gives abundant proof of his artistry.

Mr. Pirani is a pianist with a technique of proportions sufficient to cope easily with the intricacies of his programmed works, thus enabling him to concentrate on interpretation.

He played fluently, easily and with apparent enjoyment. His rubato, dynamics and meticulous attention to detail at all times adduced a preponderance of evidence in favor of the verdict that he is a genuine, highly developed musician and thorough interpretive artist.

DIFFICULT WORKS

His program included Haydn's Variations in F Minor; Beethoven's Sonata in C opus 53 (The Waldstein); Papillons, opus 2, Schumann; Intermezzo in B Flat Minor and Rhapsody in C Minor by Brahms and Chopin's Nocturne in C Sharp Minor and Polonaise-Fantasie.

This was a program to challenge the technical and interpretive capacities of any artist. Mr. Pirani met that challenge readily and with alacrity, and throughout gave a scintillating and always enjoyable performance.

He was accorded an excellent reception and responded with several encores. He will return here in May to act as an adjudicator at the Alberta Musical Festival.—J.O.

Gideon Planish

By Sinclair Lewis

THE STORY: Gideon Planish is an English professor at Kinnikinick College in 1921, where he is well-esteemed but vaguely dissatisfied with his lot. He would like to be married but his sweetheart, Techla Schaum, refuses to admit his brilliant future. He dates Peony Jackson, freshman.

• • •

"Oh, I think maybe I might be an actress and—"

"Yes?"

"And I'd like to have another class with you!"

She was delicately shameless.

"My dear young lady—" Then his flatulent academic tone changed into a boyish demand: "What's your name?"

He felt a tiny chill. "Did you?"

"Don't give it a thought."

"I won't!" They laughed, like freshmen, or very aged professors.

"I betcha I learn enough here so's the court will let me get married."

"And who may this be that you are going to marry?" Very coldly.

Was it possible that she was looking at him with appraisal?

"Look, Miss Jackson—Peony. I've got the idea. Forget the Oral Interp. Did you know that it's part of my job here to coach a play, four times a year?"

"Swell."

"Swell."

"And will you read for it?"

"I'll be glad to." Her wristwatch, he noted, was rather expensive. "Gee, I got to be skipping along now."

"I got a date."

"With some boy, I suppose!"

"Uh-huh."

He was writhing. He was sick. These blab-mouth freshmen boys! Not human yet!

"Well, look, Peony, I'd like to have more chance—I mean now, at the beginning of the year, when we're sort of making plans—I mean, for the year—and I'm very interested—I mean in your reactions to the different—you know, different styles and modes of instruction—and it's so interesting to get your reactions and—"

"Give me some, and see if I don't!"

"Swell!"

"At Lambda House."

"Um! Well, look. I'll be in Postum's drug store at exactly 10 o'clock tonight, buying a soda. Suppose you happened to be there, and had a soda with me?"

"They aren't. But if you just happened to be dropping in there to buy some talcum powder—"

"I got some talcum powder!"

"Are you going to be there or are you not?"

"Maybe so. We'll see. G'bye!"

He was at Postum's drug store at 9:56.

Miss Peony Jackson wiggled in at 9:59. Without looking at him she went to the cosmetics counter and said, "Have you a small box of rice powder?" She was even fresher and softer and more miraculously special than he had remembered.

As she turned around, he said, "Oh, good evening, Miss Jackson."

She said, "Oh, good evening, Professor."

"Can I buy you a soda?"

"A soda?"

"Why, yes."

"Oh, a soda, I'm afraid it's very late, Professor."

"No, do sit down and have a soda. Or a sundae. I want to ask your opinion about—weekly themes."

CHAPTER VII

FOR a gentleman professor in Kinnikinick College to look upon a maiden student as a human being was poorly thought of, and to meet her over a dish of marshmallow, ground nuts, caramel and two kinds of ice cream was as dangerous morally as it was dietetically. Now that he had once run that danger, he did not dare try to see her except across the footlights in his rhetoric class.

He knew that for the first time he was really in love. In all his life he would have only four or five people who would completely know him and accept him. Certainly Teckla Schaum did not. Of these four or five connoisseurs of Gideon Planish, Peony would be the only seducible girl, and he no more intended to lose her than to lose his life.

Professor Planish felt that he might need influence at court very soon, and he danced with Mrs. Bull twice, stepping high and wiggling his plump behind and thrusting out his beard in an ecstasy of social elegance, and telling her that on the entire Atlantic seaboard he had not found a lady with so light a foot and such vital ideas about teaching domestic science. In return, she gave out everything about her son Eddie, aged 11.

Just once he danced with Peony, and that far more sedately than with Mrs. Bull. But he had been watching her, in her cheery yellow silk frock with a golden girdle, kicking up hoydenish heels with unspeakable brutes of young freshmen.

Now he was talking to Peony; he was talking to a woman, not to a social obligation:

"Why didn't you come up after class, last time?"

"Why, Professor Planish!"

"I'm not Professor Planish, and you know it. I'm Gid."

"Gid!" mockingly.

"I've got to see you."

"It's so hard. I'd like to, but people watch you. You're too popular, Gid!"

"I've never had a date with a girl there and you know it."

"How would I know it?"

"Because I just told you so, and I never lie—to you. Can't you feel that's true? Don't you know it?"

"Maybe—yes!"

"Then be there in the park at 10 tomorrow evening."

"I'll try."

"Do you like me, Miss Jackson?"

"I can't tell yet, Professor Planish. I don't know how sound you are on the gold standard."

They laughed. That laugh was the only possible betrayal in a tabby-looking conversation, and Professor Planish looked hastily to see if Teckla and President and Mrs. Bull were observing. No, he was still safe.

• • •

With Teckla he danced only once. She had been frozen in with the chaperones, the faculty wives, who all had a fixed and smiling look of intense distaste.

"Having a good time, Teckla?" he glowed.

"I'll dance with you again, and I'll see you home, and now I'll bring you a bottle of strawberry pop. I know how you like strawberry pop."

He did not dance with her again, but he did bring her a bottle of that horrible drink, and he did "see her home."

"Course not!"

"Because if there is — Gideon, you never once looked at me. When L was dancing with you, I was dancing with a stranger—a stranger that didn't like me very much."

"Gideon, I do love you so. God knows why, but I do."

(He was thinking, "Why don't I be honest with this female? Go on, Dr. Planish—can you ever be honest? By God I will!")

"Teck! You've saved my life, out here in Kinnikinick," he flowered. "But now I'm going to be very serious, and this may sound like a funny question, but do you think I'll have a chance to be a leader of the United States Senate some day and maybe even go higher—say a post in the cabniet?"

"How can I—"

"Do you?"

"No! Frankly, I don't. I think you are a good teacher—you have a sort of zest that makes up for what you lack in scholarship—"

"So I lack in scholarship!"

"—but I don't think you'd ever have the patience or the ideas to become a political leader."

"Darling Teckla! Oh, I don't mind. But you don't really believe in me."

"I think I love you—some!"

"That's sorta beside the point. You're tired. You lack the enthusiasm of youth. I shall certainly try to keep from it, but I'm afraid that, as you yourself hinted recently, some day I'll fall in love with some girl that's—oh, call it credulous, if you want to."

"Have you fallen for one yet?"

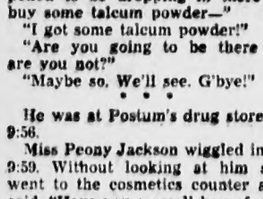

"No, of course not!" (He congratulated himself. "That's the only lie I've had to tell her!") "But I might. And if I ever did, I know that she and I would both turn to you as the wisest and kindest woman living, as a woman—"

"Hey now, wait! I'm only 33, you know, not 73. Oh, yes, I suppose I'd be kind and sensible—damn it!"

He had, then, to get through not over six minutes of farewells.

War Kitchen

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Cereals are abundant. Use them in some form for breakfast every day—they contain protein, minerals and calories. They are not rationed.

Felt-over cooked cereal, pressed and cut into strips, can be fried and served with syrup, honey or jam. This makes a welcome cold morning "starter."

STEW WITH FARINA SQUARES

Season left-over farina with salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce. (Add a little sauteed chopped onion and green pepper if desired.) Pour into greased pan; chill until firm and ready to use. Unmold, cut in 2-inch cubes. Saute farina cubes in meat drippings, turning to brown on all sides. Arrange cubes on serving platter; pour meat stew over cubes to serve.

CRISP FARINA CUBES

CEREAL CHEESE CASSEROLE

Pour left-over cooked cereal into greased loaf pan; chill until firm and ready to use. Slice; arrange in casserole in layers, sprinkling each layer with salt, pepper, dry mustard and grated cheese. Beat 1 egg; add 1 cup milk. Pour over cereal, adding enough milk to cover cereal. Bake in moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.) 30 minutes, or until set.

QUICK LUNCHEON ENTREE

Tomorrow's Menu

(Eat the Basic 7 Every Day)

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Any child is sure at sometime to be "bad," according to the parent's estimate of what constitutes business. In such circumstances the child may need punishment. This is a plea to the parent to make such punishments mild ones.

Punishment, to have value, must be immediate. To have a lasting and salutary influence on the child's future behavior it should be mild. For children become progressively more immune to "mean" or "painful" punishments. They arouse anger. They inspire revenge. They impress the child with the idea that the parent is unjust and he may consider his punishment to be unmerited.

Instead the child should be aware he has erred and acted undesirably but his mother still loves him. He isn't always going to be this way, and immediate but mild punishments reflect his mother's belief and faith in that.

Children can be punished immediately by being removed from the environment in which they are misbehaving. If they are naughty at Grandma's, then they must go home, or be banished to a room in which they can reflect on their misconduct.

If they are quarrelling with friends, they or the friends depart, emphasizing the necessity to be good if one is to enjoy companionship. If they misbehave at the table they may finish the meal in the kitchen or upstairs in their room.

It should be plain to a child that if he cannot behave when he is with people he must suffer loneliness and solitude until he learns better conduct.

When he refuses to conform to the good schedule set up for him and his refusal frustrates the parent's desire to put the schedule into practice—in a word he won't come in, he won't take his bath, he won't get dressed—then in most cases she can ignore his refusals and carry through the activity.

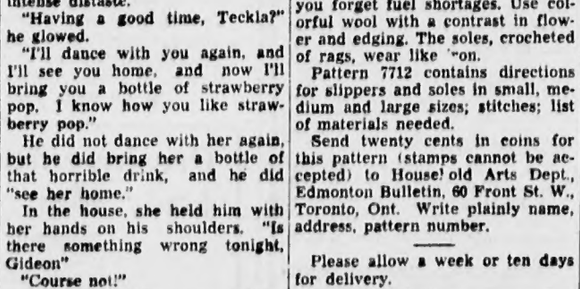

If it is time to come in the house his mother sees that he does come in; if it is bathtime, he goes into the bath-tub; if he must get dressed, he is dressed. Imposing her will and desires over the child's is a punishment to him. It is to be used when necessary. Additional punishment would be to pile insult on injury.

What children must learn is that some situations carry their own punishment (mis-use of inanimate things), some bring solitude, some bring deprivation of privileges, some enforce good regulations because they are good. There is little necessity here for any more drastic and painful punishments to teach a child how to act.

Our leaflet on, "Undesirable Punishment," outlines the various methods by means of which children can be punished mildly. If you wish to have it, simply write for it, enclosing a 4-cent stamped self-addressed envelope, to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Points for Parents

By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE

Mother: "We'll let Jean have the first turn playing with your new doll. I'll set the clock and when it rings it will be your turn to have dolly."

Mother: "You play with something else and let Jean have your new doll. She's your guest, you know, and you can play with your doll when she isn't here."

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Selfish Women Close Hearts to Wounded

Welcome Home Often More Tragic Than Parting, But Girls Must Bear Up, Smile and Lend a Helping Hand to Broken Lovers

A girl writes: "Before he entered the service I was engaged to be married to a boy with whom I was very much in love, as he was with me, and we planned to be married at the end of the war. He was wounded in action and has been invalided home and is now in the hospital. He will never be perfect physically again. He will always be a cripple.

"When he came back he told me that he no longer loved me and he thought we should break our engagement, but I have since found out that he is only calling our marriage off because he feels that it would not be fair to me. But I still love him and want to marry him in spite of this unfortunate accident.

"Do you think I should try to forget him, or should I make him realize how I feel and that his misfortune makes him all the dearer to me, and makes me all the more anxious to be with him to comfort and help him?"

WOUNDED FIANCES A PROBLEM

The problem that confronts this girl is one that many thousands of women are going to have to face today or tomorrow, for Johnny is not always going to come home with flying banners and playing bands and his chest covered with medals. So piteously often he will come back maimed, a wreck of the strong, handsome, upstanding lad who went forth so gayly to fight for his country.

Sometimes he will have worse than physical wounds. Under the stress of battle, with the scream of shells and the roaring of cannon in his ears, many a man's mind gives way and he is never normal again. He finds it impossible to adjust himself to the dull routine of everyday work and supporting a family. Many another man will be left by the war just a jangle of nerves that will make him irritable and unreasonable and hard to live with.

Much as it wrenched the hearts of wives and sweethearts to say good-by to the men they loved when they went off to war, their welcoming back may be a still more heartbreaking experience. But it is one that many people will have to go through, and there is no question so important right now as how they are going to meet the situation.

MUST PAY DEBT TO SOLDIERS

Are they going to be like the girl who writes the letter I have quoted—big enough and strong enough to take the poor, shattered wraiths, who were once stalwart men, to their bosoms and heal them with their comfort and sympathy? Or are they going to be quitters who will turn their backs on the men who can no longer give them good times and luxuries?

I think that we women will be a poor and contemptible lot of Quislings, a despicable sixth column of traitors to our country, if we welsh on paying our part of what we owe to our soldiers, who have given their youth and strength and prospects in life to defending us, if we shut our doors and our hearts against them.

Yet already we hear many tales of that being done—of wives who are getting divorces from husbands who are unable to ever be moneymakers again, or whose physical and mental state calls for continual tenderness and patience in those who must care for them; and of girls breaking engagements to boys who are not glamorous as they were, nor such good catches.

But each woman is as she is made, and if it is not in her to love her man the more he needs her love, and to consider it a privilege to work for him and nurse him and take care of him when he is ill and down on his luck, then the kindest thing that she can do is to leave him and make way for a better woman. And no man who loses that kind of a wife or sweetheart need mourn her disloyolty.

CRIPPLED SOUL MISFORTUNE

But I would like to say to the men who have been wounded that there is a far greater misfortune than to be crippled in body. It is to be crippled in soul. As long as they hav that intact, as long as they have courage and hope and determination to make something of life still left to them, they need not feel that they have nothing to offer a woman and that they should set their wives or sweethearts free. That is mistaken chivalry. For they still have love and tenderness and companionship to give their wives, and the privilege of letting them help them to build their futures together. And there is no surer foundation on which to erect a happy marriage than that.

Nor need the crippled man feel that all the opportunities of life are over for him. Medical science does wonders now in building new bodies, in making the lame to walk, the blind to see and the deaf to hear, and just because a man has almost insurmountable obstacles to conquer often spurs him on to accomplisments that he would not otherwise have done.

Bulletin Patterns

By ANNE ADAMS

The scalloped yoke is a cute feature of Pattern 4552. And there's a pert flare to the action-free skirt. A smart little frock when made up in a colorful print spiced with contrasting ric-rac or with collar and cuffs of spanking white pique. Takes little time to make.

Minute Make-Ups

Dry skins are driest now! A famous beauty oils her skin by this method. She washes her face with a light, creamy lather, then rinses over and over with clear, cold running water. She drys by blotting, not rubbing, using a soft towel. Now, with the fingertips, she blends on a light cosmetic oil. The skin just drinks it in! Next, cream rouge then face powder. Finish with makeup accents!

Miss Gallinger Elected Head Aberdeen Club

At the annual dinner meeting of the Lady Aberdeen League held in the Macdonald hotel Monday evening the slate of officers for 1944 was announced. Miss Margaret Gallinger was returned for a second term as president; Mrs. P. Fletcher, first vice-president; Mrs. R. M. Moore, second vice-president; Mrs. E. Wright, treasurer; Mrs. E. R. Roach, war services convener, Mrs. M. D. McCallum, social convener and social welfare convener; Mrs. H. L. Richard, rink convener.

Sub-Lt. Elizabeth Fisher, W.R.C.N.S., recruiting officer for Edmonton and Calgary, was guest speaker, and she gave an outline of the training received by a woman enlisting in the W.R.C.N.S.

In a report given by Mrs. R. M. Moore the year's activities were reviewed. Mrs. W. H. McKinnon, gave the treasurer's report.

Early in the year club members did a considerable amount of knitting for the merchant marine. A successful bingo party was held and instruments were furnished for a band at H.M.C.S. "Nonsuch." In June the club sponsored a concert by the Kiwanis Glee Club, and members assisted with the Navy Tag Day. Twenty-five ditty bags were packed and sent to the Navy League of Canada.

At the begining of December the club took over its biggest job of the year when members started operating the Rossdale skating rink. They will continue this work for the balance of the season.

New members introduced at the meeting were Mrs. H. Speer, Mrs. J. K. Brown and Mrs. S. Pow.

Honored Thrice By I.O.D.E.

At a recent meeting of the Fort Edmonton chapter I.O.D.E. held in the Macdonald hotel, a life membership in the provincial chapter of Alberta was presented by Mrs. R. C. Marshall, to Mrs. T. J. Johnston.

This marks the third occasion that Mrs. Johnston has received a life membership from the Fort Edmonton chapter, I.O.D.E., and is evidence of her devotion to the work of the order, and of the high esteem in which she is held by the members.

Previously Mrs. Johnston was presented with life memberships in the Municipal chapter of Edmonton besides the Fort Edmonton chapter.

RE-ELECTED VICE-PRESIDENT

Mrs. O. J. Walker, who was re-elected vice-president of the Edmonton Art Club at its annual meeting held recently. The entire 1943 executive was re-installed for the first time in the history of the club, and H. G. Clark is president.

Model's Charm Lies in Power to Be Natural; Glamor Unnecessary

By ENID NEMY

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 11.—(CP)—You don't have to be beautiful to be a model!

That old saying "Beauty is only skin deep" has a lot more truth in it than most people believe, says P. J. Edgar, art director of one of the largest advertising photographic studios in Canada.

"We have hundreds of girls coming up here each year," Mr. Edgar said, "and most of them are unsuitable. They range all the way from doll types to dazzling blonds, and it's quite a job trying to convince them that their greatest charm lies in being natural."

Several years ago Mr. Edgar originated a school for models here. Ten of the better models are selected to attend 10 two-hour lectures. The girls are taught how to dress simply and in good taste, how to apply cosmetics with discretion, how to walk gracefully and the fundamentals of good grooming.

Miss Elinor Kickley, stylist and model herself, conducts the classes. "We prefer our models on the tall side," she said. "Their figure measurements should be in proportion to their height and they should be slender—the camera adds weight. However, most important of all," she continued, "a model should have an intelligent face with character and imagination. That face is important in the selling of merchandise."

QUALITY COUNTS

Miss Kickley has very definite ideas on clothes—not only for models but for the average woman.

"I can't put sufficient emphasis on the fact that quality, not quantity, is the basis of any wardrobe," she said. "Three good dresses, several smart suits, and you have an excellent basic wardrobe. Accessories, of course, can make or break your costume. They needn't be expensive but they should be chosen with care."

There are from 50 to 60 girls on call for modelling at all times. They model only as a side-line. The majority of them hold regular office positions or attend school or university

There's Margaret McInnes, junior Canadian figure skating queen. Margaret, a brunette, is third year Home Economics at the University of Manitoba. Barbara Baldwin, a stenographer, exemplifies the sophisticated type. Marilyn McIvor, a blond typical outdoor girl, is studying radio telegraphy.

Peggy Hilton, a high school student at United College, is a good junior model. One of the more versatile models, Alice Bull, studies architecture and interior decorating. The girls are enthusiastic about their work. "Call it glamor or anything you will," said one of them, "but it's still a fascinating job."

Concert Party Presents Show

Mrs. Richard MacDonald was in charge of a concert party which put on a show at the No. 2 Basic Training Centre, C.W.A.C., Vermilion, through kind permission of the acting commandant, Captain Helen Graham. The performance was given in the drill hall where officers, enlisted women and their friends were an enthusiastic audience. The artists were entertained after the show at an informal party in the officers' mess.

Those taking part were Miss Betty Cairney and Miss Joy Dobbie, in novelty dances, accompanied by Piper J. Milne; Miss Marie Yvonne Roy, vocalist; Miss Marion Morrison, accordionist, and Jack Jones, comedian.

The program was augmented with selections by the U.S. Army Air Base orchestra. The U.S. part of the performance was organized by Cpl. Morry Malkin. Members of the orchestra were Pfc. Beauplais, pianist; Sgt. Hansen, base violin and vocals; Pfc. Buchanan, accordionist; Sgt. Betzler, drummer; Cpl. Herschcowicz, trumpet; Sgt. Mittenthal, violinist; Cpl. Vance, vocal soloist. Sgt. Frank Herman of the U.S.A.A.F. acted as master of ceremonies for the entire show and took part in the show with an act of magic and wizardry.

Lt. S. Ward, C.W.A.C., welcomed the party to the station and contributed two vocal selections to the program.

Lucky Jackie Looked After By 70 Co-Eds

WINNIPEG, Jan. 11. — (CP) — Young Jackie has 70 starry-eyed young women running around at his beck and call, but he takes it nonchalantly in his stride as though it were the due of every young man five months of age.

Jackie is one of the first male members of the Home Economics Faculty of the University of Manitoba. He will remain in his blissful surroundings with all those co-eds looking after him until April when the girls will have to turn their attentions to examinations and forget about men.

The Home Economics faculty obtains babies like Jackie every year from the Child Welfare Bureau to give the girls a real subject on which to practise their course in child care. Jackie is the faculty's 21st ward and he will be returned to his mother at the end of the girls' training period. Each girl in the faculty has three days in which Jackie is entirely in her care.

Jackie is the only gentleman on the campus who gets away with sleeping regularly through lectures. In fact, he yawns with impunity right in the lecturer's face. He is taken for regular walks in his pram with bevies of attendants bowing and scraping to his every whim.

The University of Manitoba is the only Canadian educational institution which can boast a guest in Jackie's status. He is housed in a special building complete with nursery, kitchen and quarters for his regular attendants.

Just like genuine mothers, the co-eds have Jackie's career all mapped out for him, insisting that his masterful air indicates that he will be an engineer or a scientist.

FIFTY YEARS MARRIED

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Conroy, of 10138 113 street, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Sunday. One hundred friends called at their home to offer their congratulations. The couple has lived in Edmonton since 1927, and previously resided in Peterborough, Ont., where Mr. Conroy was a member of the contracting firm of Conroy Bros. They have three children, who reside in Edmonton and district.

Mr., Mrs. Edward Conroy Celebrate Golden Wedding

More than 100 friends called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Conroy, 10138 113 street, Sunday, when the couple entertained at a reception to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary.

Married in Lakefield, Ontario, Mrs. Conroy was the former Miss Helena Chamberlain. They made their home in Peterboro, Ontario where Mr. Conroy was a member of the contracting firm of Conroy Bros. until 1927. At that time they moved to Edmonton where four of Mr. Conroy's brothers were living.

The couple's three children, Gerald of Wainwright, Miss Catheleen Conroy at home, and Mrs. Roy A. Irwin of Edmonton, together with their grandchildren, Marjorie and Barbara Ann Conroy of Wainwright, and Billie, Jean and Richard Irwin of Edmonton, were all present at the celebration.

White and gold chrysanthemums were used in profusion throughout the reception rooms and in the dining room the tea table was set with an ecru lace cloth centred with a mirror bearing a tiered wedding cake decorated with gold leaves. Tall gold tapers and crystal vases of crimson roses flanked the centrepiece. Miss Catheleen Conroy presided at the table, assisted by Mrs. Gordon Campbell, Mrs. Maurice Bleuler, Mrs. Fred D. Conroy and Mrs. Roy Irwin. Mrs. Frank Conroy was in charge of the souvenir guest book and Miss Jean Irwin opened the door to callers.

Among those calling to offer their congratulations were the Rev. Msgr. Carleton, Rector of St. Joseph's Cathedral, the Rev. Father Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Burger, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Bougie, Mrs. A. J. MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Jeffers, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Miquelon, Flt. Lt. J. G. Middlemas, Wainwright, Frank Stevens, Wainwright, George Perkins, Calgary, Dr J. H. Conroy, F. Pot Roast, Plus

Try the marinade given in the panel with a pot roast of beef . . . a 4 lb. beef rump or chuck . . . prepare the meat as directed and let stand, covered, in cool place for 2 hours or more. Pour off liquid and save. Rub meat with mustard and brown in hot fat. Add the spiced mixture. Cover and cook slowly adding hot water as needed for 3 to 3½ hours. Vegetables (onions, carrots, celery, etc.) may be added just long enough before serving to ensure tenderness.

'MARINADE FOR BEEF'

1 teaspoon (each) grated nutmeg, ground cinnamon and cloves
2 bay leaves
½ cup brown sugar
1 cup vinegar
1 onion, sliced
1 clove garlic (optional)
1 cup apple or grape juice
Boiling water as required

Wipe meat with damp cloth and place in bowl. Mix salt and spices and rub over top of meat. Add sliced onion, garlic (if used), bay leaves, brown sugar, vinegar and fruit juice.

BULLETIN WANT ADS LOW IN COST, HIGH IN RESULTS

Consolidation Of Tax Arrears Being Planned

Home owners whose taxes prior to 1940 are in arrears will have until June 1, 1944, to apply for a consolidation of these taxes if a bylaw sponsored by Ald. James H. Ogilvie is passed by the city council.

The proposed bylaw is similar to one passed last year, and is being re-enacted because it was considered that there was insufficient time given to home owners to avail themselves of the 1943 enactment. It was considered also that too little publicity was given to last year's consolidation bylaw.

GIVEN SECOND READING

Second reading was given the bylaw at Monday night's meeting, and it was then referred to the city solicitor for the re-drafting of certain of its clauses.

The consolidation bylaw provides that arrears in taxes prior to 1940 may be consolidated provided current taxes are paid in full within the tax year.

Council decided also that a special meeting be called to discuss proposed charter amendments dealing with the city's powers of borrowing. The amendments are being sought in connection with refinancing negotiations now being carried on by the city commissioners.

It was pointed out by Mayor John W. Fry that the charter provisions governing the city's borrowing powers had not been reviewed since 1913, and that many changes in methods of financing had been made since the present borrowing powers were enacted.

Commenting on resolutions from the Canadian Legion and the Edmonton Trades and Labor Council protesting council's action in permitting Japanese to come to the city, Ald. Sidney Bowcott said there appeared to be an opinion prevalent that his opposition, and that of the Legion and Trades Council was based on the racial, rather than economic considerations.

NOT RACIAL ISSUE

Neither the Legion nor the Trades Council would take the racial stand against the entry of the Japanese, he stated, adding that his own stand had always been against racial discrimination.

He said the hard facts before council were that this country was at war with Japan. The history of the conflict did not inspire trust in the Japanese and it had been the experience of trade unions that where Japanese labor was permitted, it had worked to the detriment of wages and working conditions enjoyed by organized labor.

After some discussion it was disclosed that permission had not been granted by the authorities at Winnipeg to permit the Japanese, given permission to come to Edmonton, to proceed to the city.

Council instructed the city commissioners to inform the British Columbia Security Commission of the terms under which these Japanese were permitted to come to Edmonton to work, and to request that these conditions be complied with through the Commission.

A communication from the International Association of Machinists, Edmonton Lodge No. 817, asking the city to officially adopt some devastated city in Russia was ordered filed.

FAVOR JOINT APPEAL

It was pointed out that a consolidation of appeals for relief of European countries ravished by war had been made, and that better results could be obtained through contributions to this fund than by the adoption by Edmonton of some city or town in the devastated areas.

The proposal by the Edmonton Public School Board that the city participate in the plan for erecting a composite high school at Victoria high, at which recreational facilities will be made available to the general public after school hours and on holidays, was referred to a special committee for consideration.

The special committee appointed will consist of Aldermen H. D. Ainlay, James H. Ogilvie and R. Winslow Hamilton. This committee will meet representatives of the school board and the town planning commission to consider the proposal and will report back to council.

Ald. Ainlay asked that the city commissioners give consideration to the installation of a fire alarm system that will permit the detection of persons turning in false alarms.

22 FALSE ALARMS

He pointed to the fact that during November there were 22 false alarms, and that each such alarm costs $10. The false alarm nuisance became so great in the United States that it became necessary to install devices that took photographs of the person turning in the alarm, and in some instances the persons turning in the alarms was automatically handcuffed to the alarm box until released by the fire brigade members.

Interned Japanese On Hunger Strike

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 11—(AP)—The Chronicle said last night 200 Japanese-Americans at the Tule Lake, Calif., segregation camp have been engaged in a protest hunger strike for 10 days. The Chronicle said it learned the strikers were so-called leaders of a group of Japanese-Americans who wished to "negotiate" concessions with the camp administration. These 200, the paper said, have been confined to military barracks.

Many Placed in Positions by 'S.S.' Office Here

The Edmonton office of the Unemployment Insurance and Selective Service Commission, ranks fifth among all the employment offices in Canada in the number of placements of workers handled in the last year according to a report from Ottawa.

Improvements in the manner of handling applicants as quickly and efficiently as possible are constantly being made according to William Carnill, manager of the office.

Elimination of unnecessary delays and regulation of the flow of traffic has been assisted greatly by the innovation of a new system recently installed.

Have you a release from your last position? Are you registered at this office? Have you got your unemployment insurance book?

With this information the form is handed to the applicant who is quickly sent to the section of the office which handles his type of employment. On the form is also recorded the time which the applicant arrived. The officer who discusses jobs with him and sends him to a prospective employer for an interview also records on the form the time the interview was completed and keeps the form which is collected at the end of the day.

FROM FORMS

The information is compiled from all the forms at the end of the day and gives a complete picture of the number of applicants handled by the office, the length of time it took to interview each and various types of workers applying for work.

According to the compiled information of these forms, Mr. Carnill stated that on Monday, Jan. 10, 1,000 applicants were handled in the Edmonton office. These applications not only included those seeking employment but also persons making inquiries on unemployment insurance, legal interpretations, permission to change jobs and employers seeking employees.

MORE TRAFFIC

The majority of traffic through the office is also shown to have been between the hours of 11 and 12 a.m. and 2 and 4 p.m.

U.S. Army Air Base Entertains C.W.A.C.

In furtherance of the good neighbor policy, soldiers from the U.S. Army Air Base in Edmonton entertained the C.W.A.C.'s stationed at No. 2 Basic Training Centre at Vermilion, Sunday night, and the Canadian girls had a time they will not soon forget.

In a sparkling two hour show the station orchestra played popular numbers and Cpl. H. Vance, local croonatra, was the vocalist. Sgt. F. Herman who acted as master of ceremonies, put on a dazzling performance in magic and his sleight-of-hand act was enthusiastically received.

High ranking officers at the C.W.A.C. training centre welcomed the men and after the performance heartily thanked them for appearing. Due to the many requests this was the second time within a few months that enlisted men here entertained the girls at their training centre. These and other programs given by the U.S. soldiers are made possible by the generous donation of the men's off-duty hours, after the completion of their regular army duties.

Members of the station orchestra who participated in the program included Sgt. C. Hansen, Pfc. G. Dauplaise, Pfc. C. Buchman, Sgt. Betzler, Cpl. P. Hershkowitz, and Cpl. H. Nittenthal.

Germans Murdering Thousands of Poles Daily in Prisons

LONDON, Jan. 11—(CP)—Tens of thousands more Poles have fallen victim to a new phase of the German terror which began in October, Polish home minister Wladyslaw Banaczyk said in a broadcast last night.

"Up to Dec. 10, 617 persons had been shot in 23 public executions in Warsaw alone," he said. "In Cracow and neighborhood up to Dec. 5, 596 persons had been shot publicly. In Torun 400 have been shot and the same thing is happening all over Poland.

"The Germans are murdering thousands of Poles daily in Pawiak prison in Warsaw and in hundreds of other prison and concentration camps. These murders, unlike the public executions, are done secretly in prison cells and 'interrogation rooms' of the Gestapo headquarters."

Cosmopolitans Hear Address By President

In an informal address to members of the Cosmopolitan Club at the Corona hotel Tuesday, C. O. Tanney, the president, said that a survey made by him on a recent trip east indicates that the "Canadian government has done an excellent job of price control, especially in the furniture industry."

In reviewing conditions in the furniture industry, Mr. Tanney pointed out that there will not be much easing in the furniture situation for civilians until after the war.

CONDITIONS EASIER

"While labor conditions and steel restrictions are easing up," he said, "there are now the problems of upholstery fabrics and lumber supply.

"Upholstery fabrics, as a rule, are made of rayon mixtures and rayon has gone to war, because of its superior heat resistant qualities," he said.

In the lumber field, birch is being used in aircraft production, and the combination of fewer loggers and greater wartime demands means that there is less available for the furniture industry. Finer woods such as walnut are also fairly hard to obtain.

"If it isn't one thing, it's another," he told Cosmopolitans, "but at the present time there isn't too much chance that the same variety of pre-war furniture will be available for civilian consumption."

Sales City Land Continue Brisk

Sales of city owned land continue brisk with 13 purchases being made since Jan. 1, it was reported Tuesday by John Paterson, city land department superintendent.

Of the 13 sales made since the beginning of the year eight were to prospective home builders, four to purchasers desiring to extend their homesites, and one of an existing dwelling.

Mr. Paterson said that inquiries for the purchase of lots for building purposes were numerous, and on present indications there is a possibility that the 1943 record of sales will be maintained. City land sales in 1943 reached an all-time high.

C.P. Air Lines Makes Changes Personnel Staff

Several changes in staff of C.P. Air Lines Western Lines, were announced Tuesday by Grant McConachie, general manager of the company's Western Lines.

U. S. Wagner has been appointed superintendent of the central district of C.P. Air Lines, Western Lines, with headquarters at Winnipeg. Mr. Wagner has formerly been superintendent of the Yukon district. He will take over his new duties immediately.

Changes in the executive of traffic department personnel are also announced by H. Johnston, regional traffic manager.

TRAFFIC MANAGER

T. W. Brown has been appointed district traffic manager for Alberta with headquarters in Edmonton, while A. Kramer, formerly of Edmonton, has been appointed district traffic manager of the central district with headquarters at Winnipeg. These changes are effective immediately.

On Jan. 17 W. N. Horner, formerly superintendent of reservations, will take over the duties of acting district traffic manager for British Columbia with headquarters at Vancouver.

New Expansion Plan Announced By Canada Dry

Following a recent directors' meeting in Toronto, R. H. MacDonnell, vice-president and general manager of Canada Dry Ginger Ale Limited, issued a statement announcing that the company's plans for the future will mean entering the franchise bottling field. Selected bottlers across Canada will be offered the opportunity of bottling under license the main product, Canada Dry Ginger Ale, as well as a variety of other popular flavors. As no Canada Dry product has ever before been manufactured outside a company plant, the announcement of franchise represents a radical departure in policy.

It is the intention of the company to add a complete line of five-cent products as soon as conditions will permit. These will include the more popular flavor drinks and a cola, already well-established on the American market. It will give to franchised bottling plants a complete line of what is known in the trade as "shelf" and "cooler" products.

Mr. MacDonnell pointed out that after fifty years of progress, in which the company's fame and business have become world-wide, the demand for the company's products in Canada has grown beyond the capacity of the four plants situated in Toronto, Montreal, Winnipeg and Edmonton. This increased demand, which will be intensified when new post-war products are added, necessitates greater manufacturing and distributing facilities. This can be done efficiently and economically only by local manufacturing, by licensed bottlers.

In areas where no suitable plant is available, it is the intention to interest local capital in the erection of modern plants suitable for the manufacture of Canada Dry products.

LONDON STOCKS

LONDON, Jan. 11—(AP)—Only moderately active trading caused the stock market to show a lower tendency today.

Industrials ended irregular, while Mexican Eagle oil shares provided a firm feature on rumors that a settlement with the Mexican government is pending. Kaffirs finished generally quiet, while diamond shares moved ahead. Rhodesian coppers and home rails eased.

All Grains Rally On Chicago Mart

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—(AP)—All grains strengthened after a weak opening today and both wheat and rye showed enought rallying power to effect substantial gains from the previous close.

Buying, however, was scattered, support in wheat coming from locals and in rye from houses with eastern connections. Generally the trade held back from the market to await developments in country marketings as a result of the fixing of ceilings and pending further study of the president's message to congress.

Wheat finished ¼ to ⅞ higher; rye was ⅝ to 1¼ up; oats were ⅛ to ⅜ off, and barley was ⅛ to ⅛ off.

Wheat: May 1.72, July 1.70¼, Sept. 1.69⅞, Dec. 1.69⅞.

Oats: May 79, July 77⅝, Sept. 76⅞.

Rye: May $1.32¼-⅜, July 1.31¼-½, Sept. 1.30½-⅝.

Barley: May 1.22⅛, July 1.21⅛, Sept. 1.20⅛.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, Jan. 11—(AP)—Gains ran to 2 points or so on today's market before the Roosevelt communication was released a few minutes past noon. Doubts arose as to whether the chief executive's desires could be translated into a statute. South Porto Rico sugar jumped to a 1943-44 top as hopes revived for a boost in the island's sugar ceilings to offset wage demands and other costs. Farnsworth television also touched best levels for the past year.

Livestock

Trading is slow on the cattle market and prices are under pressure on all classes. Insufficient sales to establish reliable quotations up to noon. There was a large carryover from Monday's receipts, and farmers would be well advised to hold back until the situation clears. Receipts of in-between kinds are large and indifferent demand. The trend is lower prices, and if receipts of the quality offered, continue, a sharp reduction of prices is likely to result. Stockers and feeders of suitable quality in fair demand.

Butter Production Drops in December

OTTAWA, Jan. 11—(CP)—The Canadian butter situation, which already has caused Prices Board authorities some concern, took a turn for the worse in December, a bureau of statistics report showed yesterday.

Creamery butter production in December was 12,370,059 pounds, compared with 14,672,510 in the same month last year, a reduction of 15.7 per cent.

Consumption of all milk products has been rising, and Prices Board officials said a month ago they felt concern over maintaintaining the half-pound weekly butter ration per person during the winter months of low production, in light of recent output and the condition of butter reserves.

They declined further comment on the situation when the December figures were made public yesterday.

French Coast Area May Be Evacuated

LONDON, Jan. 11—(CP)—Prefects of the French channel coast departments were reported by the Vichy radio yesterday to have met in Paris to discuss "Possible evacuation of the French channel coast, particularly the areas now subjected to heavy air attacks."

"Evacuation of the country districts of the Somme already has been ordered," it was announced.

The Somme region is south and west of the Pas de Calais area, the so-called "rocket coast" which has been taking a terrific blasting from British and American planes.

Small formations of R.A.F. Typhoon and Mosquito bombers struck at the French coastal area again yesterday while Germany appeared to have received another 12-hour respite in the Allied heavy bomber offensive which has been halted since Friday.

Two 'Teen-Aged Boys and Girls Held in Murder

PLEASANTVILLE, Ia., Jan. 11.—Two boys and two girls were charged jointly with first degree murder yesterday in connection with the slaying of William H. Bare, Pleasantville filling station operator, and all waived to the county grand jury.

The boys, Earl Simbro, 18, and John A. Culp, 16, were held without bond. The girls, Mary Brown, 18, and Phylis Peirce, 19, were held in bond of $10,000 each.

Simbro and Culp, authorities said, entered the filling station Dec. 22 bent on robbery while the girls remained outside in an automobile. Bare, 63, was shot and killed when he resisted the holdup.

World News Highlights Presented in Picture Form

Shellfire and Moonlight Provide a Great War Picture

This is a night battle scene in Italy and is believed to be the first time that such action ever has been photographed. In the middle foreground, the town of Lagone and the mountainside back of it are illuminated by the bursts of shells as American artillerymen bombard the German line prior to an infantry attack. Higher up the mountain at left, and on over the summit, other flashes show where enemy gun positions are being shelled as they return the Allied fire. A full moon helps to reveal the distant peaks and detail in the foreground. This picture was made by Bert Brandt, NEA-Acme cameraman for the war pool of photographic agencies. Using a 15-inch telephoto lens, he gave the film a 12-minute exposure at F-6.3.

With the invasion of Europe looming as the greatest blow of the war, Canadian troops in Britain are training night and day for the epochal landing. This picture, just received from overseas, shows how the men might be launched on their grim attack against hostile shores. In those practise manoeuvres, the boats, loaded with heavily armed fighting men, make a quick trip out to sea then turn back toward a specially prepared strip of beach. The men leap from the assault boats under a thin smoke screen spread by the Royal Navy, which will have a major invasion role, and half-wade, half scramble ashore waist deep-in-water. Bren gun bullets whine overhead.

My Day

BY ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

NEW YORK.—Wednesday, January 6, 1944, marks the 25th anniversary of ex-President Theodore Roosevelt's death. There is a poem written by his sister, the late Hrs. Douglas Robinson, called "Valiant for Truth" which I think many people would find profitable to read again on this day.

But I want to recall the great contribution which I feel that he made to the young people while living. I think it has a special bearing on the problems which we face in the present day. Theodore Roosevelt never failed to convey to young people that he believed they should take an active part in the public affairs of their community and of their nation. He thought every man and woman faced first their family responsibilities, but he was quick to point out that these could not be faced fully without recognizing the tie that the family had to the community and the obligation that each member of the family could discharge only by being a good citizen of that community.

Many of us are apt to think of government activities as something quite apart from our daily lives. Theodore Roosevelt made you feel that every act in your daily life was a part of your citizenship. I am sure that today he would preach to young people their obligation actively to participate in the government of their community, of the nation and of the world, and the necessity for bringing their influence to bear as individuals and as members of any groups.

He believed that every man had an obligation, if he were physically able, to carry arms in times of war but he believed no less in the obligation of every man and woman to discharge obligations as citizens at all times. If they could take public office, he thought they had an obligation to do it. If they could not take public office, he thought they had an abligation to do all that they could in the interests of the public good. He had very little patience with those who kept aloof from public life because they disliked criticism or might have to deal with disagreeable situations. He had very little patience with those who wished to advance their own personal fortunes, regardless of the fortunes of the American citizens as a whole.

Many of us have forgotten that his interest in the American people generally, brought him the accusation of being a traitor to his class—an accusation which other people have suffered under during the course of our history.

Theodore Roosevelt's life should be remembered by young people, for it will encourage them to enter into the arena where public questions are threshed out, in spite of the fact that they will have to take some pretty disagreeable mud slinging and verbal castigation at times.

As I look back I think perhaps the inspiration which Theodore Roosevelt gave to young people was one of his enduring contributions, not only to the youth of his generation, but to the youth of all generations.

The formation of gallstones is somewhat of a mystery but is evidently concerned with a stagnation of bile. An over-use of starches and sugars in the diet, lack of exercise, sedentary occupations and disturbances of cholesterol metabolism, may contribute to the forming of stones.

The diagnosis of gallstones is best made with the X-ray, the patient having been given a dye which will make the gall bladder visible. Many stones are found this way with considerable accuracy, showing up very plainly on the X-ray picture. Stones containing calcium are the ones most easily detected.

The treatment of gallstones depends upon the individual case. The larger type of stone may require surgical removal, as it is hopeless to expect it will be able to pass out of the gall bladder of its own accord. When a large stone is detected, the best plan is to rely upon the advice of a good surgeon, who will decide whether immediate operation promises successful results, or whether it is advisable to delay.

The small stones may often pass spontaneously. Many surgeons recommended a period of "watchful waiting" when the patient is getting along reasonably well and when the stones are quite small. In my own experience I have found that in the case of the small stones the patient may often be helped by going on a short fast, and using olive oil and grapefruit juice emulsion. The emulsion will stimulate the flow of bile and will bring about a situation favorable to the passage of the small type of stone. During the 5-day fast, one enema daily is required.

The fast may produce the desired escape of the stone or stones. The acids of the fruit used in the fruit juice fast often seem to stimulate a better flow of bile and the improved bile drainage will help to wash out the smaller stones. When the stones do not escape the patient should go on a very careful diet, omitting foods having much fat or oil and also omitting sugar and starch in an quantity. Constipation must be avoided. These measures may provide the patient with long periods when he is comparatively free from symptoms.

If, after a most careful fasting and dieting regimen, the stones still remain in the gall bladder, there is still plenty of time to consider an operation if it seems necessary. Infection, lodgment of a stone in the common duct producing persistent jaundice, and similar situations may force a crisis requiring surgery, but it is also true that in many cases the best plan is to leave the stone in the gall bladder, giving the patient relief through a good dietary management of his case, avoidance of constipation, and the use of heat over the gall bladder.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Premier Ernest Manning Has Two Social Credit Proposals To Reform Monetary System

Two Social Credit proposals for reform of the present Canadian monetary system were outlined by Premier Ernest Manning, in an address delivered in Edmonton Monday night.

The premier's first proposal dealt with the control and issue of the nation's money. "The sovereign power of controlling and issuing the nation's money, and I mean all the money, both currency and credit, must be exercised by the people through parliament," Mr. Manning said. "To this end a national finance commission, operating through the Bank of Canada, should be established and made responsible to parliament for controlling the monetary system to meet the requirements of the Canadian people."

The second proposal advanced by Mr. Manning dealt with purchasing power. "The national finance commission should, at all times, see to it that the people collectively have sufficient purchasing power in their possession to buy all of the goods on the market," he said. "It is important that there should never be either a deficiency or an excess of purchasing power."

Mr. Manning's address follows.

In my address last week we established three very definite and important facts which cannot be challenged successfully on the evidence of actual experience. May I restate those three basic facts in order that we may all have them clearly in mind as a basis for our discussion tonight.

1—The great problem that we must solve in order to assure every Canadian a proper standard of living and complete economic security after the war is not a problem of production.

Past and present experience proves conclusively that the Canadian people under a system of free enterprise can produce ample goods to guarantee social and economic security for all.

2—The great problem which must be solved and which was responsible for the poverty and privation and economic insecurity of the pre-war depression years is the problem of insufficient purchasing power in the hands of the people to enable them to purchase the goods which they can produce in abundance.

Let there be no mistake about this. The solution of the problem of the chronic shortage of purchasing power is the key that alone can unlock the door to a post-war Canada of security and opportunity and prosperity for all.

3—the third important fact that we established last week was that a chronic shortage of purchasing power is inevitable in peace time under our present financial system.

This fact has been demonstrated repeatedly not only in Canada but in every other country operating under our so-called orthodox monetary system.

In every case it has resulted in a chronic shortage of purchasing power which has been evidenced by the inexcusable existence of poverty amidst plenty.

I want especially to emphasize this last point because it is a defect in our orthodox monetary system which Social Crediters alone seem to recognize For some mysterious reason it is either ignored or denied by all other political and monetary reform groups. Yet, its existence and its seriousness is surely evident to all.

DEFECTIVE FEATURE

However, this is not the only defective feature of our present financial structure. There are two others which we should note briefly before passing on to the Social Credit proposals for reforming our monetary system to the end that its defects shall be removed and swift transition to a properly functioning economic democracy.

I do not need to say much about the outrageous feature of private monopoly control. It is no longer a matter of controversy that the issue of money—both currency and credit—is a sovereign power which should, in a democracy, be under the effective control of the people themselves. This fact is now generally recognized and the power of a few private corporations to create, issue, withdraw and cancel the money upon which the well-being of the entire nation depends has been condemned by prominent men and women everywhere.

The other defective feature that should be noted—and it is a vicious defect—is the unsatisfactory manner in which the present monetary system distributes purchasing power to the people.

ISSUED AS LOANS

Under our present monetary arrangement money is created and issued by the banks in the form of loans to finance the production and distribution of goods. Generally speaking the only manner in which an individual can obtain purchasing power is by either participating in the production or distribution of goods or by performing some service wanted by those doing so which will give him a share of their incomes. In other words the individual citizen has to depend upon getting a wage, a salary, or a profit, for service in the economic field in order to exist.

In the first place such an arrangement places the majority of the people completely at the mercy of a minority group. A man who can say to his fellow men, "You shall accept the wages and the conditions of work I impose upon you or else you and your family can starve" exercises a tremendous power. It divides the country into the controllers and the controlled—with the majority in the latter category.

ECONOMIC SLAVES

Such an arrangement can be called by all kinds of names, but it cannot be described as democracy, for it literally places the overwhelming majority of the people in the position of economic slaves. It is high time we recognized that the wage system as the sole source of obtaining an income and economic security is, to put it bluntly, a system of modernized slavery.

However, bad as that is, it is by no means the worst aspect of the present wage system. Under modern power-production methods, vast machines and elaborate systems of organization make it possible to produce an ever-increasing abundance with less and less human labor. Labor-saving automatic and semi-automatic processes are progressively eliminating wage earners from the field of production. Yet the present financial system requires that if ten men are displaced by a power driven machine and even though our ability to produce has been increased, that those ten men must surrender all claim to share in the production of the machine. In other words, under our financial system the more we can produce with less human toil, the worse off we become relatively. Under any sane system the result of greater production with less human effort should be increased security and increased leisure for everybody, without anybody being penalized. Surely that is just plain commonsense.

GIVES SUMMARY

Now, let me summarize briefly.

First—the control and the issue of the nation's money supply is at present exercised by a financial monopoly whereas such a function is a sovereign power which should be exercised by the people themselves through their parliament.

Bear in mind that money should be simply tickets entitling the holder to so much goods and services and therefore the money tickets should be created and issued as goods are produced and withdrawn and cancelled as goods are consumed.

Secondly, the beneficial results we should obtain from our increasing ability to produce goods with less and less human labor under modern, scientific power production methods, are automatically sabotaged by our present orthodox monetary system. Instead of everybody getting more goods and having more leisure, the men displaced by machines are rendered unemployed and destitute and have to be kept by those still enyojing incomes. Thus everybody is worse off and the blessing of leisure is turned into a curse.

SOLE MEANS

Furthermore, as I have pointed out, the present wage system as the sole means of distributing incomes is basically a system of serfdom, under which it is impossible for men to be truly free. It is therefore a system contrary to the principles of true democracy.

That brings me to the definite constructive proposals of Social Credit for the necessary reform of our present monetary system. These proposals are designed to remove the glaring defects which we have been considering.

1—The sovereign power of controlling and issuing the nation's money—and I mean all money, both currency and credit—must be exercised by the people through parliament. To this end a national finance commission, operating through the Bank of Canada, should be established and made responsible to parliament for controlling the monetary system to meet the requirements of the Canadian people. It would be the commission's responsibility to see that an adequate amount of money was made available to finance, not only all wanted production, but also the equitable distribution of all goods produced. Proper safeguards against inflation would also be a responsibility of the finance commission.

PRIVATE BANKS

The private banks would cease to issue and withdraw money and credit except as agents for the national finance commission and in accordance with the policy it laid down. In other words the national finance commission would be the issuing and regulating authority for all money—both currency and credit.

This would not mean that it would be necessary for the state to own the chartered banks. It would mean that all banking institutions would be required to operate under the control of the national finance commission, acting in obedience to parliament. Of course, if the chartered banks refused to carry out the instructions of parliament through the national finance commission, their charters would have to be withdrawn by parliament and a state service provided in their place. If, on the other hand, the banks were prepared to operate as agencies for the national finance commission, there is no reason why they should not retain their individuality as institutions.

SECOND PROPOSAL

2—The second Social Credit proposal is that the national finance commission should, at all times, see to it that the people collectively have sufficient purchasing power in their possession to buy all of the goods on the market. It is important that there should never be either a deficiency or an excess of purchasing power. It is just as dangerous to have a condition of inflation as it is to have a condition of deflation.

As I have already pointed out, the present monetary system, under peace time conditions, creates a chronic deficiency of purchasing power. The extent of this deficiency could be readily ascertained if proper accounts were kept by the finance commission and new additional money could then be issued to the people to bring their purchasing power into balance with the total prices of the goods for sale.

This additional purchasing power could be made available to the people in two ways:

First—instead of distributing incomes to people and then taxing back a portion of such income to meet government expenditures, the money to finance government services, including various reconstruction projects, could be created by the finance commission, thereby putting additional new purchasing power in the hands of the people and at the same time making it possible for taxation to be drastically reduced.

POSITION OF MONEY

Secondly—a portion of the new money issued for the purpose of making good the deficiency of purchasing power could be paid directly to each individual citizen as a national dividend thereby ensuring basic economic security to every Canadian. This would mean that everybody would get an income apart from wages and salaries sufficient to ensure a basic standard of living—provided, of course, that production was maintained at a level sufficiently high to permit this being done. Thus, while wages and salaries would still form the main course of income, in addition every Canadian would be assured that if, through sickness, unemployment or any cause whatever, his wages or salary was cut off he and his dependents would not be left destitute. He would still have his national dividend. This would ensure economic independence and economic freedom for all. It would do away with relief and dole forever and it would remove the objectionable features of our present wage system.

As I have stated in our submission to the Turgeon Committee on Reconstruction and Re-establishment, I quote:

"The reform of our monetary system along these sound and scientific lines not only will remove the present financial restrictions upon the implementation of the many desirable and physically possible post-war projects, but also will enable the people of Canada to be assured of post-war economic security and a standard of living limited only by their aggregate productive capacity and the abundance of their material resources." unquote.

Now, it is not enough to just talk and think about these matters. Nothing will be accomplished unless we do something about it. The urgent need is action—definite and constructive action. •••

Repair Schools To Open Again This Province

Three-week schools giving instruction in repair of tractors and farm machinery will be operated again this winter by the provincial department of agriculture, it was announced Tuesday. The first school has opened at Lloydminster, and at least seven more are to be set up in various parts of the province.

The schools are made available under the Dominion - Provincial Youth Training Program, and costs of instruction are shared by the two governments. Farm boys and young farmers between the ages of 16 and 35 years inclusive are eligible for the courses.

Instruction is to be given at the schools in tractor overhaul, gas engine overhaul, and shop work in the simpler repairs of farm implements. Instruction is also given in the operation, adjustment and care of all lines of farm machinery, keeping in mind farming methods most suitable to various districts.

WAR RESTRICTIONS

"Owing to wartime restrictions on the manufacture of tractors and other lines of farm machinery, there is a definite limit to the amount of new equipment available to farmers," department of agriculture officials state. "As a consequence, it is essential that the equipment now in use on Alberta farms shall give the maximum service, and in order to do this it must be kept in the best possible state of repair. These repair schools will help to meet this emergency in districts where power farming is extensively followed."

The complete schedule of the schools will be announced as soon as it is ready.

Germans Planning Destroy Industries In Polish Capital

LONDON, Jan. 11.—(CP)—The Polish underground radio said Monday that German plans for the evacuation of Warsaw provide for the destruction of the former capital's industries and communications, and the deportation to Germany of all Poles capable of work. The broadcast appealed to underground forces to resist the deportation.
